AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The great bill which has delighted thousands during the week will be presented to-night and the entire proceeds of the performance will be given to the sufferers by the Chicago fire. Billy Emerson will sing his best songs, including "If Ever I Cease to Love" and "The Drum Major;" Charley Howard assisted by G. H. Foster, and other members of the company will present the screaming act of "Dr. Colton's Laughing Gas," which sends the audience into fits of laughter; Sheridan and Mack will appear in their best specialties; Foster will in songs and dances and Miss Fanny Gibson in ballads. The Alhambra Theatre will of course be crowded to its utmost capacity.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The rush to see Johnny Allen "bounce" the non paying customers of Thornton's Inn continues unabated. Everyone is delighted with Miss Alice Harrison in song and dance, and "Keyser Don't you want to buy a Dog?" is received nightly with thunders of applause. Miss Alice takes her benefit on Friday.

California Theatre.

An immense audience brought together partly by a desire to assist the sufferers by the late terrible calamity in Chicago, and partly by the excellence of the entertainment offered, witnessed the beautiful comedy of "Much Ado About Nothing" last night, and the applause and laughter it drew forth proved that Shakspeare's comedies when presented in such excellent style by Mrs. Bowers, John McCullough, Henry Edwards and the California Theatre company are not "played out" in San Francisco. To-night "The Hunchback" will be presented with Mrs. D. P. Bowers as Julia and John McCullough as Sir Thomas Clifford, Harry Edwards as Master Walter, and an excellent cast. To-morrow evening Mrs. D. P. Bowers will take her benefit and a splendid bill will be presented.

Benefit of Sheridan and Mack.

To-morrow night Sheridan and Mack the talented artists whose wonderful lightning changes, songs and dances have afforded so much pleasure to the public, will take their farewell benefit and will present an extraordinary entertainment comprising many new features which will be found enumerated in another column. Vivian, Callie Curtis, the champion skater and others have volunteered.

Bella Union.

Mlle Gaugain in artistic dances; Aline Le Favre in the very popular play of "Woman's Rights;" the Reynolds Brothers in song and dance; the Stanleys, Fanny Garretson and many others in beautiful ballads; J. H. Larkin in Teutonic comicalities; H. D. Thompson and Mat Kelly in the screaming farce of "Learning to Act," and many other favorite performers will appear to-night. To-morrow night a great entertainment will be given and every cent taken at the doors will be devoted to the relief of the Chicago sufferers.

Theatre Comique.

A great variety entertainment will be presented for the delectation of the numerous patrons of this live place of amusement to-night. It will comprise songs and dances by Maggie Knight; Johnny Taers in original eccentricities; Harry Howard in banjo solos; the great clog dancers and a numerous company of balladists, dancers in an attractive programme. To-morrow night the entire receipts will be given to the Chicago people, who have been overtaken by misfortune. "Schnoozer; or the Oakland Grocery Store," a burlesque on "Schneider; or Bot House Von Der Rhine" is in active rehearsal.

Oxford Theatre.

Mathews and Price the great song and dance artistes, clog dancers, and character actors; the wonderful Samwells, the little and agile Montague, Miss Ida St. Clair, song and dance artist, and a score of others will appear to-night. The always pleasing Amelia Dean will appear in two characters: Jack in the play of "Jack Sheppard" and the "Dumb Girl of Genoa," in the pantomime. Charley Vincent will be here, there and everywhere, and will make things lively. To-morrow night will be for the benefit of the Chicago fund, when the total receipts will be handed over to the Chicago Relief Committee.

Lecture.

Francis Dillon Eagan will repeat his lecture giving his reasons for renouncing Protestantism and embracing the Catholic faith, at Dashaway Hall this evening. Tickets 50 cents.

The Whale.

The skeleton of the great whale which came ashore recently near Fort Point, is now on exhibition at the foot of Fourth street, and is attracting crowds of visitors. Forty men can seat themselves in the monster's mouth.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Another Theatre.

By referring to our programme space it will be seen that yet another theatre, "The Globe," situated on the Northwest corner of Kearny and Pacific, will be opened in a few days. Mr. Charles Vincent, than whom there are but few more energetic managers, is the lessee; and advertises for a variety of talent. The theatre will be fitted up in good style, and it is the intention of the manager to collect together a good company and make "The Globe" a popular place of amusement.

Eureka Theatre, Vallejo.

The Vallejo people will be afforded a dramatic treat to-morrow night. The San Francisco Dramatic company, which met with such success in Petaluma, and by the excellence of their entertainments, won golden opinions from all sorts of people, will appear in a great bill at the Eureka Theatre. The performance will commence with the ever-popular play of "Fanchon, the Cricket," with the charming and vivacious Miss Maggie Moore in the title role, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sinclair, Miss Nellie Cummings, Miss Helen Marbl and others in the cast. This will be followed by Nan the Good For Nothing," with Maggie Moore as Nan, and the other characters by Harry Sinclair, Pierpont Thayer, James Moore and William Sims. An extra edition of FIGARO will be published for circulation in Vallejo, and for the house programme.

Social Party.

The members of the City Guard, will give a social party, complimentary to Capt. David Wilder, this evening at the Regimental Armory, N. W. corner of New Montgomery street. We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation.

Ward's Celebrated Shirts

An Improvement in the Peanut Trade

"Gris," in his last letter to the Cincinnati Times, tells how the boys on the Pullman cars, running on the Northwestern road sell shelled peanuts put up in small boxes. This is an improvement much needed in theatres. The peanut muncher and shell cracker in the theatre is a relic of the brutal ages, a barbarian who becomes a nuisance to all around him. If the animal must eat them, let him be fed on shelled peanuts only, and thus avoid the shell crushing operation, which is the biggest part of the nuisance.

A Long Day.

The following remarkable paragraph appeared in the New York Sun the morning after the recent workingmen's parade in that city:

Another small banner bore the device: "Journeymen Stonecutters' Society;" on the back, "Eight Hours for Work, Eight Hours for Sleep, Eight Hours for Recreation, and Eight Hours for Rest." Still another banner had a similar inscription in German.

Eight hours for work does not seem a pure impossibility, but to make a thirty two hour day will prove difficult.

More Valuable than Gold.

A quantity of hair, silky, silver-gray, and thirty inches long, was recently sold by a Broadway, New York firm for $35 an ounce—nearly twice as much as gold will bring. The same firm, the largest dealers in the United States in made-up hair goods, have imported 6,000 pounds of hair since January, paying for it $100,000, gold. They have at work on it 100 girls, who earn from $12 to $18 a week; and yet they find the demand greater than the supply. Hair has advanced 25 per cent. in market value, and is likely to go up 25 per cent. more.

Investing for a Rise.

An Olympia (Washington Territory) paper says it will not be long until every acre of land in the Puget Sound country will have been purchased by capitalists, to be held for a rise.

A friend of ours is spending his money on flour with same object in view. He is a baker.

A Modest Donor.

The Congregational Church, of Duluth has been made the recipient of a fine new organ, the generous donor, not allowing his name to be known. Our lisping apprentice wants to know "if that generous man ith Duluthing himthelf with the idea that he won't be found out?"

Here is Ours.

YE SERENADE.

Ye maiden looked down from her lattyce
On ye howlers down below,
As they stoode tunin' their voyces
At midnighte, in a row.

In a row beneath her lattyce,
With ye tenor at ye head—
A pallyd youth who ought to have
Been "Put in his lyttle bed!"

And now ye viols sounded,
And ye flute on ye midnighte air;
And dysmal noyses went wailing out
From him of ye swarthy hair.

He called her hys sun, hys light, hys star,
And lykened her to ye moon;
And ye viole and flute and light guitar
Took up and echoed ye tune.

And ye longer he sung ye louder
Hys voice was pyched and hygher;
He clasped hys hands where hys heart should be,
And, in verse, swore hys heart was on fyre!"

Then ye mayden smiled a pensive smyle,
And went to her lyttle stand,
And appeared in wnyte at ye lattyce
With a pytcher in each hand.

Then ye howlers grew more frantyc!
And fiercer ye music grew!
But onto their heads cold water
She very deftly threw.

Ye fyre was quenched and ye tumult
Was over and all was styll,
And naught was seen of ye howlers
But their coat-tayls over ye hyll!

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England, and

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention here on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics in San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what Dr. TOZER attends to.

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

FIGARO ON THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD

"Figaro" is circulated every day on the cars of the Southern Pacific R. R. which leave San Jose for this city at 3:20 P. M.

A Budding Poet.

DEAR FIGARO.—I wish to become a poet—to be the first laureate of San Francisco. Please tell me if there is any celestial spark—at least enough to kindle a fire in the heart—in these few lines which I call "A Reverie from a Second-story Window:—

How the bright sunlight glancing streams,
In floods of hyacinthine beams
Along you busy street;
How the long shadows move and dance,
As if among the vines of France,
Beneath the passers feet,

How on each carriage passing by,
And each fair girl with laughing eye,
A polio sheds his sheen;
How hoodlums in a long-tailed crowd,
And dirty draymen swearing loud,
Adorn the mellowing scene.

PARNASSUS MINOR.

Repentant.

The man who broke a chair over his wife's head in Sacramento a week or two ago is now very sorry for it. When the clergyman visited him in jail, he showed a good deal of penitence. He admitted he was very sorry that he had permited his anger to obtain the mastery of him, and to suffer him to do such an act, because it was a good chair, one of those good old-fashioned Windsor chairs, which was an heirloom in his family, and he knew he could never replace it.

Alas!

In the last number of the pretty Bouquet Programme of Hooley's Opera House, Chicago, we find the following:

Sound, reliable and successful is the Firemen's Fund Insurance Company of this city. Its stockholders are among our best business men. Its record is unstained. It promptly pays all honest losses, and is abundantly fortified by solid assets against all possible disaster.

Such a disaster as has befallen Chicago seemed impossible.

Something Like an Endrosement.

For thorough-going praise commend us to the Pittsburgh Evening Star. This is what it says of Edwin Adams, who is now playing at the Opera House:

Mr. Adams has made the character of Hamlet a study of many years, and is acknowledged to-day, as superior to anyone who has ever played the part.

That's the way to do it. How tame compared to this would it seem to Edwin Adams to be told that he was "the best Hamlet living!" Superior to anyone who has ever played the part, Edmund Kean, Kemble, Macready, not to mention such small people as Forrest, Charles Kean, Edwin Booth, and Fechter! It is worth an actor's while to go to Pittsburgh.

Eight bridesmaids and no groomsmen is the new wrinkle.

Business is improving and merchants are jubilant.

Horton's Tobacco Antidote

Will destroy the appetite for tobacco. Its great success has originated many spurious imitations under the name of Orton's, Burton's, and other similar sounding titles. Be not deceived. Take only Horton's. See that the name of Hug & Schmidt, 535 Commercial st., is on the wrapper. HUG & SCHMIDT, Successors to P. J. Reilly, Agents

How He Reported a Sermon.

The following is clipped from the Oregon Bulletin: "On Sunday one of our reporters, who has made theatrical criticism a specialty was instructed to attend a certain church and furnish a synopsis of the sermon. Yesterday morning he came into the office, with a face wreathed in smiles, and handed us his report, with the remark that the performance was only second rate—the star only average. The report is as follows and we ask any candid person if it isn't a shame to treat church service in such a manner:"

"The audience at —— church on Sunday was not so large as the attractive programme offered by the enterprising management authorized us to expect. Quite a number of the female portion of the audience showed by coming in late that they had an itching in their hearts to attract some of the attention which should be given to the performers. The performance commenced by one of the actors reading a chapter in the Bible.

He was not 'up' in his part and had to refer to his text frequently, which somewhat marred the effectiveness of the same. The orchestra then played an overture, which was supplemented by a glee, sung by a club composed of ladies and gentlemen. The organ was not exactly in tune — considerable wheeziness being observed in the bass notes The contralto voice in the chorus was also slightly affected, and occasionally glanced into a shrill falsette pipe. The bass voice did very well, but in one or two instances it rasped somewhat.

The principal part of the matinee however was the sermon of Mr. ——, who took for his text a verse from Romans, which read: 'But now I am going to Jerusalem to minister to the saints.' [This allusion to Jerusalem must be a mistake. He evidently intended to say Salt Lake, as there is where the saints dwell. — Reporter.] He handled his text quite skilfully and talked about the saints and the river Jorden in a very beautiful style. His voice, however, is not under good control and his knowledge of elocution is superficial. While he does not 'tear a passion to tatters' he neglects to be boisterous where it would be effective. He spoke his piece, without ever raising his audience to the applauding pitch. He ought to have had a few judicious claquers scattered among the auditors.

The performance concluded with another glee or round by the chorus. During the singing the ticket taker, (who had been absent from the door when we entered,) went around and collected the admission fee from those who had failed to pay at the door. The greater portion had paid when they entered or at least we infer so, from the fact that they gave nothing to the ticket taker."

The White House Silk Window

This is the street show of the week, and attracts the attention of everybody. It is nearly filled with the best black French silks, each piece bearing the inscription in gold letters "White House, J. W. Davidson & Co., San Francisco, manufacture de C. J. Bonnet & Cie., Lyon-Paris." There can be no doubt about those silks being genuine "Bonnet's." M. Davidson, who has recently returned from a business trip to Europe, contracted while there for supplies of dress goods, direct from the leading silk and other manufacturing houses.

Tennie Claflin to be Married.

Mr. Tilton, in his paper says: There is a pleasing rumor among newspaper men (though we hardly credit it) that bride-cake white ribbons, orange blossoms, and plain gold rings are soon to grace a solemn yet joyful occasion, wherein the chief figures will be Mr. William H. Hurlbert and Miss Tennie C. Claflin.

And we never disappoint, at the What Cheer Laundry.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

A Sensation in Hats

The new Fall and Winter styles are fast arriving at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. One in particular has already been adopted as the fashion; it is a fine low-crowned felt hat, with a curved brim, and is called "The Grand Duke." Those who wish to be in the fashion must go to "THE" Hat Store, long famed for having the latest styles and for its moderate prices.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

But a few nights more and the play of "Schneider" which has afforded our public so much amusement will be a thing of the past. All should see Johnny Allen and the sprightly and versatile Miss Alice Harrison in this play before it is withdrawn. Judging from the crowds which have flocked nightly to witness it, this play with its mixture of fun and sensation, suits the public exactly. The performance to-night will be for the benefit of Miss Alice Harrison who has done so much to secure the success of the piece.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night the talented and versatile artists, Sheridan and Mack, will take their farewell benefit and present a bill of extraordinary attractiveness. After a brilliant first part, the beneficiaries will appear in their very popular act, "Little Fraud," and other specialties; Charles Vivian has volunteered for this occasion and will sing some of his songs and make his last appearance in San Francisco; The screaming farce of "Dr. Colton's Laughing Gas," in which Charley Howard is immensely funny, will be played Miss Fanny Gibson will sing a ballad and make her first appearance in a song and dance; Billy Emerson will sing "The Drum Major;" W. E. Calder will appear in a Highland Fling; Callie Curtis and Mr. Burt will present their comic skating act, and a variety of other entertainments will be given. Such a bill and such worthy artists should draw an over-flowing house

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. D. P. Bowers, who has for many weeks entertained the more intelligent portion of the San Francisco public in a delightful manner, will take her benefit. While sending thousands to Chicago to aid those suffering there, the fact that Mrs. Bowers has lost a heavy sum by the fire will not render the public less anxious to make her benefit a substantial one. The bill will consist of the fine comedy of "The Jealous Wife" and the play of "Guy Mannering." There will be a matinee to-morrow, when "Camille" will be played Mrs. Bowers will make her last appearance to-morrow night

Bella Union.

To-night a great entertainment will be given, and the entire proceeds will be devoted to the relief of the sufferers by the Chicago fire. Those who do not often go to the Bella Union, should visit it to-night in the cause of charity, and see how excellent an evening's amusement is afforded at a low rate of admission. M'lle Gangain, Aline Le Favre, the Reynolds Brothers and a host of others will appear.

Theatre Comique.

The gross receipts to-night will be given to the Chicago sufferers. An excellent entertainment is presented nightly. Johnny Tuers and Johnny Kelly make it lively at the ends; the latter is a bright and amusing performer and a capital clog dancer. Little Maggie Knight is as popular as ever; Lizzie Harmon's remarkable fine voice is heard to advantage in pleasing ballads; Johnny Roberts, the Arab boy, has made an immense hit, and from the time the curtain rises until it falls the audience are constantly amused. A great bill will be presented to-morrow night, and new artists, including the Reynolds Brothers and the Stanleys, will make their first appearance. A burlesque on "Schneider" is in active preparation.

Oxford Theatre.

Samuels and Montague, Ida St. Clair, Matthews and Price the clever clog dancers, Hughey Morton, Amelia Dean, Charles Vincent and many others will appear to-night in an extraordinary entertainment of singing, music, acrobatic and gymnastic feats, clog dances, fancy dances, pantomime-farce and drama. The whole of the receipts at at the door this evening, will be forwarded to Chicago, for the relief of the sufferers by the late fire.

The Whale.

The skeleton of the great whale which came ashore recently near Fort Point, is now on exhibition at the foot of Fourth street, and is attracting crowds of visitors. Forty men can seat themselves in the monster's mouth.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

For Portland.

Miss Lydia Livingston, soubrette actress; W. H Roberts, pianist and B. E. Sears, musical director leave for Portland this morning to join the company at the Theatre Comique in that city.

A Dress Sharp

A feminine child of this world, with wisdom beyond her years, lately said: "I don't dress much for the play, because everybody is looking at the stage, but no one is more particular about their dress at church."

Well Arranged.

A remark ble preacher it was that who called upon his congregation to be thankful that providence should have placed death at the end of life, and not in the middle, so that we might have all possible time to prepare for it.

A North Carolina editor expresses the hope that the lives of a certain newly married pair in his neighborhood may be "glad as the throbbing of angel music in the empyrean space."

These "Waterfamilias"

who really feel interested in their children's gait should call at KAST'S Fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre, to see the sensation employed in his peculiar make of children's Balmorals and Button Gaiters, the adoption of which will certainly guarantee comfort, ease and grace.

Make-Believe Shoes.

The shoe worn by the young woman of the period, is surely one of the most abominable contrivances ever brought into vogue by the caprice of the sex. What need to describe it? Do we not all know the absurdity of its construction, and how ingeniously it has been designed for the destruction of all comfort and ease, and grace in walking, and also of all semblance to a real woman's foot? When it first came into fashion, the ladies were told by a few sensible men that to put their feet into a machine with a toe like a bird's bill, and a heel three inches high brought forward under the instep, would insure suffering and deformity. But the dear creatures, in their irresistible way, resented this interference with their prerogative of self-torture, and self-caricature, and asked, "Would you have us look like dowdies with broad toes to our shoes, and low heels, and all that?"—"all that" meaning heels where nature intended they should be. The plea was unanswerable. But the predicted consequences have come. Ladies' shoemakers, (certain truthful ones) tell us, what observation also reveals, that there is hardly a young woman now who regards herself at all fashionable who has not bunions, callosities, corns, and enlarged joints, and that the crop of those ornaments developed within the last four or five years, is astonishing and pitiful. The worst of it is that there appears to be no prospect of relief, except a turn in the whirligig of fashion, and that there are no exceptions to the rule of torture and deformity. For the good and the sensible of the sex immolate themselves with the foolish and the frivolous. No degree of sense, or independence, or stability of character, seem to absolve any woman who has the charm of womanhood about her from slavery to fashion, at whatever sacrifice of time, comfort, money, or health, Suffrage! right to hold office! Show us first the woman who has independence and sense and taste enough to dress attractively, and yet to walk down the street wearing an unfashionable bonnet, or in a shoe which does not destroy both her comfort and her gait.

'Alas Poor Yorrick!"

Joe. Bowers is dead. He who used to set the house in a roar with the humors of his acting, has gone from the stage. The curtain has fallen upon the last act.

John Heaney made his first appearance upon the stage at the American Theatre, San Francisco, California, '55–'56; rising slowly from the position of general utility he became a favorite as a comedian in Oregon and Washington Territory.

While at Portland, Oregon, he sang in such an inimitable manner the song of "Joe Bowers" that the name clung to him and adopting it as his own, he was thenceforth known as "Joe. Bowers." For five years he was connected with the Bowery Theatre, this city. During the rebellion he enlisted as a private in the Union Army, and returned from the seat of war bearing the rank of Captain. The insidious seeds of desease were sown during this campaign, and he fell a victim to consumption in his native city, Albany. A great portion of his life was spent in giving pleasure to others, and now he sleeps the sleep that knows no waking. His name will be remembered in connection with his many good qualities.

"Death, so called, is a thing that makes men weep
And yet, a third of life is pass'd in sleep."

—New York Corner Stone.

A Good Example.

A Texas paper says: A formidable expedition, under Col. Grierson, is getting ready to make a movement against Kicking Bird, and other Kiowa chiefs, who now offer to restore all the mules they have stolen, and not make any more raids into Texas.

Government contractors might imitate Kicking Bird in his present mule policy and they would probably feel happier when they die.

How Nice!

A country girl wrote to her lover: "Come over and see me, we have a new lamp at our house that we can turn down, down, down until there is scarcely any light in the room." —He went!

A poetic American describes ladies' lips a "the glowing gateway of pork and potatoes."

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The Proctor Troupe returned from Marysville to play for a complimentary benefit to Walter M. Leman. It will come off this evening. Next week a night's receipts will be devoted to the Chicago Fund.

CARSON, NEV.—The Royal Yeddo Troupe of Japanese performers exhibited at the theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

GRASS VALLEY.—The last amusement the Grass Valleyites had was the exhibition of a small pig with eight legs, four eyes, four ears, two tails, two mouths and one body, at the Wisconsin Hotel. The Union says:

Grass Valley used to be a good town for shows Of late months, however, the Grass Valleyans do not evince any eagerness to attend any kind of performances to which admission of one dollar is charged. A circus will draw always, and is therefore an exception. We talked with a gent'emean yesterday, who is posted on the show business, and he says that a "fast" four bit performance would do well now in Grass Valley. The "legitimate" would not draw at a tariff of a dollar What is the matter with California?

PORTLAND.—Theatre Comique gives a good variety show. F. M. Bates is trying to get together a company to open the Gro Fino Theatre on the 23d.

SALEM, O.—Miss Annie Pixley will play with her troupe during the Fair. The Nathan troupe will also appear there, and still another that is now playing at the Theatre Comique, Portland, who have engaged Reed's Opera House, Salem will be lively during the Fair.

SAN JOSE.—Bachelder's panorama of "A Tour Across the Continent" was exhibited at the Opera House on Thursday and Friday evenings, and will be on exhibition to-is afternoon and evening. Madame Pattianni intends to give a concert next week for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—The members of the Choral Society will give a complimentary concert to Professor E. J. Passmore at Piper's Opera House on Monday, the 16th inst.

MARYSVILLE.—Proctor's dramatic company played at the theatre this week, commencing on Monday, in "Guy Mannering" and "A Quiet Family," the bill for Tuesday was "The Octoroon;" Wednesday, "After Dark;" Thursday "Sweethearts and Wives" and Crosbey's burlesque of "Ernani" The Fiji Islanders exhibited during the week, and Thompson's stereoscicon Panorama of the Franco-Prussian War, also afforded entertainment to the holiday visitors

A Legislator's Heaven.

They have just opened a new hotel in a Southern State capital, and one of the newspaper men who assisted, writes: "It is a beautiful house! Amid its bowers, its frescoed, grand, glittering parlors, the member of the legislature, at nine dollars a day, can have his heaven, and listen to the music of a sixteen-string band, and the voice of his nightingale, and enjoy the felicities of the only paradise that perhaps, will ever be his."

The Carpet and Furniture

Emporium of JOHN C. BELL is on Market Street, nearly opposite the Grand Hotel. Mis-

Johnny Thompson at the East.

The New York Season, which has consolidated with "Our Society," has the following first-class notice of Johnny Thompson, the Lively Fraud; now playing at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn:

This week a bleached Ethiopic minstrel of undoubted Celtic spawn, by name Johnny Thompson, has electrified that portion of the town comprised in the packed Park galleries with a wonderful drama called "On Hand" The title, which is sufficiently suggestive and felicitously chosen with reference to its pictorial advertising possibilities, conveys but little idea of the stupendous play itself. Mr. Thompson personates twelve characters, and does them all badly, with one exception. His assumtion of a Bowery "rough" was wonderfully vivid, easy and life-like. The piece abounds in murder, arson, theft, rioting, gambling and other atrocities, which seems to us to be the bane of the stage.

The Drama as an Art.

Mr. Henry Neville lectured at a meeting of the Society for the encouraging of the Fine Arts recently in London, on "the stage" with its relation to the Fine Arts; its origin influence, and present position. The author showed clearly, that properly applied, the drama is a fine art, capable of effecting much public good which, he said, in this stage of educational advancement, should not be over looked, but reformation is required. Government support, and recognition should be given as abroad, which would cast its rays of improvement over the whole profession, and the public would benefit by it accordingly. The stage should not be given over to mere amusement, there is now too much "bread and butter" acting, so many taking to it not for itself, or from that feeling which makes it precious to the artist because it is his art, but merely as a vehicle by which to gain their daily bread. There are numerous scholars, and gentlemen in the profession; why should not honor and even title be within their reach? The Royal Academy at once raised Joshua Reynolds to a title. Music has done the same for Michael Costa and Julius Benedict. Why should not the Drama give us Sir William Macready.?

Opera In Boston,

Max Strakosch commenced his season of Italian Opera at the Boston Theatre, on Monday Evening Oct. 9. The Opera selected was Gunoud's "Faust," performed with the following cast:

M'lle Christine Nilsson, Margurite; Miss Annie Louise Cary, Siebel; Victor Capoul, Faust; M. Joseff Jamet, Mephisto; M. A. Barre, Valentine;

The chorus numbered fifty voices. Mr. Max Maretzek is the musical director. Boston is in a wild state of excitement about the appearance of Mlle. Nilsson in opera.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Anteiope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

A Sensation in Hats.

The new Fall and Winter styles are fast arriving at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. One in particular has already been adopted as the fashion; it is a fine low-crowned felt hat, with a curved brim, and is called "The Grand Duke." Those who wish to be in the fashion must go to "THE" Hat Store, long famed for having the latest styles and for its moderate prices.

It is not strange it should do the largest oyster business in the city. Emerson Gorville's oysters are gathered fresh every day—Eastern and California transplanted ones, from his own oyster beds at San Bruno; the first oyster beds in the State. Try them.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The Alhambra is a good place to take a benefit, as Sheridan & Mack must have thought last night. The house was packed from pit to dome. The bill was a attractive one. Vivian was received with three rounds of applause in making his re-appearance; Billy Emerson was encored again and again; Charley Howard made the audience laugh till their sides were sore, and altogether a better pleased set of people than those at the Alhambra Theatre last night, it would be hard to imagine. A splendid bill will be presented this evening and Sunday evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Mrs. D. P. Bowers had last night, as she deserved, an immense house for her benefit. The performance went off splendidly. Mrs. Bowers as Mrs. Oakley in the comedy of "The Jealous Wife" did some capital acting, and "Guy Mannering," which followed, was well played throughout. The same bill will be presented this evening and Mrs. Bowers will make her last appearance before the San Francisco public.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE. — "Schneider" will be played this afternoon and evening and on Sunday evening for the last time. Next week will be the the last week of the fun-making Johnny Allen, and the pretty Alice Harrison. Additional attractions will be presented on Monday. Johnny Allen will come on in black, in the sensation drama of "Jeff," and the Lancashire Bellringers, who were so successful in Australia, will make their first appearance before a California audience.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The performance last night for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers was a most satisfactory one and the audience enjoyed it all the more on account of the good purpose for which they were assembled. To-night an entirely new bill will be presented, and new performers will make their first appearance. Among them Miss Gipsy Gilbert, Mr. Ricardo, and Chris. Matthews. The performance will conclude with the extravaganza of "Adam and Eve," will be performed with Aline Le Favre as Adam; Miss Gipsy Gilbert as Eve, and Mr. Ricardo as Paddy Kearny.

THEATRE COMIQUE.—To-night the Reynolds Brothers will commence here their farewell engagement in California, and will present some of their best acts. Edgar and Ethel Stanley the popular balladists, also make their first appearance to-night. Roberts, the young Arab boy did some wonderful feats of vaulting; one a somersault act, in which he springs in the air, alighting on his head, and vaults to his feet again, without the assistance of his hands, was enthusiastically encored.

THE OXFORD.—The performance at this house last night was a very good one. The same excellent bill which last night drew such a house for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers, will draw another for the benefit of the management.

THE BENEFITS FOR THE CHICAGO FUND.—Each of the theatres has during the week given a benefit for the sufferers by the Chicago fire. In each instance all the actors and employees have given up a day's salary, which has been added by the management to the gross receipts. The Metropolitan Theatre benefit, on Wednesday evening, brought in $678 25: that at the California Theatre, on the following evening, amounted to $1,422 75, and the Alhambra Theatre's, on the same evening, to $585. Last night the gross receipts at each of the minor theatres were devoted to the same purpose, with the following result: Bella Union, $228; Theatre Comique, $80 25, and Oxford Theatre $76 45—this being taken in at 25 cents admission.

CHARLEY HOWARD.—Next week this very popular performer and inimitable impersonator of old darkey characters will take his farewell benefit Those who wish to say good bye to the old man had better buy tickets as soon as they are issued. There'll be a jam on Thursday night, "shu."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—There is not within miles of this city a more delightful spot than the groves of San Rafael. The steamer Contra Costa will leave the wharf on Davis street, near Vallejo, to-morrow at 10½ A. M., on an excursion.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Everyone with means to hire a team drives out to the Cliff House on these beautiful moonlight nights. Those who wish to visit this beautiful seaside resort economically to-morrow can do so by railroad and omnibus. Captain Foster has a hearty welcome for all.

THE WHALE.—To-day and to-morrow is will be the last days of the exhibition of the skeleton of the whale at the foot of Fourth street. Go see the monster.

CHARLES VIVIAN.—This popular comic vocalist and character-actor leaves next week to fill an engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre Sacramento.

F. S. CHANFRAU.—This popular character actor will commence an engagement at the California Theatre, on Monday evening, in "Sam."

THE GLOBE.—Manager Vincent is engaging talent for, and supervising the fitting up of, this new candidate for public patronage.

These "Materfamilias"

who really feel interested in their children's gait should call at KAST'S Fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre, to see the sense displayed in his peculiar make of children's Balmorals and Button Gaiters, the adoption of which will certainly guarantee comfort, ease and grace. •

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The Theatre at Richmond, Va., was opened Sept. 25th, with the "Lady of Lyons" by G. O. Davenport, Miss Anna Masten and company. Mrs F. S. Chanfrau commenced an engagement on the 2d inst. in "Christie Johnston"

The New Opera House, Utica, N. Y. will be opened Oct. 15th'

Joseph Murphy acted at Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 25th, 26th and 27th.

Miss Jennie Wallace, it is said, is to have an original ten thousand dollar drama written for her by Dion Boucicault, which it is intended to produce at one of the New York theatres during the next season.

Harry Sanderson, the pianist, died Sept. 27th, after a long and lingering illness. He was a very popular performer and possessed the wonderful power of playing in octaves and tenths, with the same facility that other performers do on single notes. His funeral took place Sept. 29th, from the Church of the Messiah, which was crowded with friends of among whom were many eminent professors of musical art. When the coffin had been placed in front of the pulpit, Mr. Brookhouse Bowler sang an air from Mozart's Twelth Mass.

Joe Jefferson commenced an engagement at Indianapolis, Ind., on October 2d.

A feature of the season at Wallack's will be a new comedy, by John Brougham.

Fechter will call the Fourteenth street Theatre the Lyceum.

Matilda Heron is engaged to appear at the Grand Opera House.

The Boston Sun thus howls at an approaching infliction:

Gracious goodness what are we coming to. Kate Fisher has translated, and will read during the season, selections from Longfellow's poem of "Hiawatha" in in Spanish. Shade of Byron, Spectre of Mazeppa. What have we done?

Walter Bray has closed his engagement with Newcomb and Arlington, and joins Thompson's Varieties, Vicksburg.

Mark Smith's old comedy company, organized in Boston, consists of F. Burroughs, A. Piton, Willie H. Page, John Howson, George Holland, jr., A. Jaques, C. Beckwith, A. Williams, C. Gilbert, Hannah E. Bailey, Mrs. Susan E. Flood, Emma Marble, Marion Page, with W. H. Bowditch, late of the Fifth-avenue Theatre, as Business Manager.

Miss Fanny Mordaunt, the new leading lady engaged at Wallack's Theatre, made her debut on Saturday, the opening night, in "The Rivals." Miss Mordaunt is known in London as a stylish, versatile, and finished artiste, and there is every reason to believe that the expectations excited by her reputation will not be disappointed. Her last engagement in London was at the Olympic Theatre. She is a pure blond, rather above the medium height, inclined to embonpoint, with an expressive face, fine eyes, and the ruddy glow of health peculiar to the women of England. Her engagement by Lester Wallack was quite sudden, in consequence of the unanticipated and unwarrantable breaking of contract by Mrs. Louisa J. Jennings Henriques.

The New York Clipper says:

The Alhambra, Philadelphia, after remaining open four evenings last week, under the management of Mel Kartz and George Thatcher, succumbed to want of patronage on the 28th, and now remains closed. This place of amusement has had a singularly unfortunate career, no less than half a dozen different managers having been connected with it during the last six months, and all have sunk money in their attempts to make a first-class variety theatre pay in its location.

The Alhambra got a bad name at the start, and has never been able to recover from it.

"The Black Crook" is running at the Opera House, Louisville, Ky. Miss Charlotte Crampton plays Dame Barbara.

Willie Edouin, the principal feature of Lydia Thompson's Troupe, was lying very ill in New York, unable to join in Boston at last advices.

Charles Storms, who joined Kelly & Leon's Minstrels, has gone with other members of the troupe to Peru.

Lilian, a sensation actress of the Menken school will shortly arrive in New York from London, and will appear in a horse drama entitled "Joan of Arc." She also includes in her repertoire "Mazeppa" and "Lady Godiva."

M'lle Aimee has secured a lease of Lina Edwin's Theatre for the remainder of the present season and intends to produce operas bouffe with a good company. The opening performance was announced for Monday evening, Oct. 9th.

At Niblo's "The Streets of New York" with Frank Mayo as Badger. On the 23d Sothern will appear as Lord Dundreary. He is said to receive $500 a night during his engagement....."Humpty Dumpty" is running to crowded houses at the Olympic....."Divorce" continues its prosperous run at the Fifth-avenue Theatre. Charlotte Cushman and Mr. Creswick are playing in Shakesperian dramas at Booth's....Lucille Western and J. A. Herne are playing at Wood's Museum....The season at Wallack's commenced on the 2d with "The Rivals"....Kelly and Leon's and Newcomb and Arlington's Minstrels have both given up business in New York....At the Globe Theatre the local drama entitled "A New York Policeman," is still running....Tony Pastor is doing a good business at his Opera House. The Fox Sisters, Charles Webster, and the Zitella Family are the last new engagements....Leffingwell appeared at the Union Square Theatre on the 5th, Johnny De Angelis has received no notices from the papers.... Bryant's Minstrels are doing pretty well.....The San Francisco Minstrels draw big houses.

Charles Foster, Fred Maeder and McClosky, the dramatists of the period met a few days since in Brooklyn, when they agreed to write a three-act drama, each writing an act, and sharing the profits.

Madame Scheller started on the 23d ult, for Galveston, Texas, from Milwaukee, where she has been detained by sickness. She will open at the Tremont Opera House, Galveston, for ten weeks From that city she will proceed to Philadelphia and commence a long engagement at Simpson's New Museum, on the 18th of December

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. •

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention here on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure: but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

Professional Peculiarities.

A Texas paper has been studying what it calls professional peculiarities, or the tendency of man to identify himself with his business, and gives some interesting results. A New York lawyer is instanced who, in his zeal to use old Weller's pet legal weapon, an alibi, roared forth: "We can prove that at the very time we were accused of perpetrating this dreadful deed we were serving out a term of imprisonment at the Tombs for larceny." in "Pelham" the same trait is noted in the fashionable tailor, who remarks to his customer, "we are a little narrow here; we must be padded there," &c, while an equally fashionable bootmaker says: "We have a bunion on the great, and we also have a corn on the little toe." The queerest fish, however, is an undertaker; he is called in a hurry, and his coffin happens to be a little short, "We will settle," he cries "during the night so as to fit the coffin; it is astonishing how we settle sometimes; we have been known to settle three inches in a single night!" The same man was given to dallying lovingly with his subjects, and was proud when they looked well. Once he said: "Don't we look natural? this neckcloth needs a little fixing, and we'll do. Aad another time, "Will our friends be kind enough to take a last look at us?" And on still another time, on receiving a body from a distance, be said, "Here we are, eleven days from New Orleans, and as sweet as a nut!"

A Legislator's Heaven.

They have just opened a new hotel in a Southern State capital, and one of the newspaper men who assisted, writes: "It is a beautiful house! Amid its bowers, its frescoed, grand, glittering parlors, the member of the legislature, at nine dollars a day, can have his heaven, and listen to the music of a sixteen-string band, and the voice of his nightingale, and enjoy the felicities of the only paradise that perhaps, will ever be his."

LETTER FROM LONDON.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON Sept. 19th, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO.—By what accident I received your letter of August 6th with carte de visite enclosed, I cannot tell, and the thing will probably remain a mystery forever. You had addressed it to the Royal Alhambra Palace, where I supposed I was almost entirely unknown. Somebody, however, has known where to find me and kindly left it to my address at the Occidental Hotel here. It may be a matter of wonder to you all in San Francisco to know that such a name has been given to a hotel in London, but such is the case. The old name was the Coal Hole, famous in its time for the celebrated trials by Judge and Jury of the famous Baron Nicholson. Upon his death, which occurred a few years ago, it changed hands, and was conducted very badly by a Mr. Hinton, who finally succumbed to the demand of Nature—death. From the death of Hinton up to the purchase of the lease by the present proprietor, it gradually became less and less a place of desirable call. A few months ago it fell into the hands of a Mr. Charles Wilmot, an actor from Australia and New Zealand, and at present is a splendidly conducted establishment. The history of the name was in this wise: On the night of the house warming, a number of professional people, representing all branches of art, were assembled in the dining hall to welcome its new proprietor. The cloth being removed after dinner, the usual amount of toasts and speech making was indulged in. It occurred to me while I was endeavoring to say a lot of complimentary things about the new host, that the house might not be the worse for a change of name, and where could I find a better one than San Francisco suggested—as San Francisco is in the United States, so is the Strand to London, both to the West. I proposed the name to the host, who readily assented; it was referred to all about the board with the same result; the babe was born and christened "The Occidental."

THE THEATRES.

The London season has now fairly opened, and within a week or so every place of amusement will be in full blast. The finest play I have seen for years is being performed at the Queen's. It is called "Hinks," and is by Mr. Wills, editor of All the Year Round. He was a colaboratenr of Charles Dickens and is one of the cleverest men in England. The play is a great success, and ought to go for a whole season. You will have an opportunity of seeing it, as I shall shortly send a copy of it to John McCullough, which I have purchased for him at rather a high price.

I have said the theatres would soon be in "full blast." I recall that expression, and while I ponder over it, think what a mockery it is to speak of the theatres here as we speak of those in America. To be in full blast with us (Yankees, as they call us here) means at least $500 to $800 per night for some time. Here that sum is scarcely ever realized in a night save by opera or some very important piece, effect or star, and I will also add the Christmas pantomimes, and then only for a short time. I believe I am speaking truth when I assert that were the combined receipts of the ten or twelve prominent theatres averaged for a season, they could no show a nightly aggregate of £50 ($250) each Some will run a little over for a month or so; others will never touch that amount.

THE "ORDER" SYSTEM

Has in a measure tended to bring about this result. Orders here are given to people in rather good circumstances, not those who cannot afford to pay (as with us), merely because they promise to come dressed, which managers assume gives beauty to a part of the house that would never be filled save by this method. All the theatres here are supported solely by the pit and gallery, and yet there are only two nights when they count on this part of the house being filled—Saturday and Monday. I will wager that only one theatre here is doing a business that will average £50 per night, and that is the Princess, where Mr. Falconer is playing his new piece of "Eileen Oge," which is a success, so-called. Billy Florence was over here this summer and purchased this piece for the United States.

BARNEY WILLIAMS

And wife will play at the Adelphi, opening in November. There have been a great number of Americans here during the past summer. Those who came for pleasure have not, possibly been disappointed; but all who made the journey on business I fancy have been badly swindled, as there is really nothing left in Europe worth taking to America. The country has been thoroughly drained.

MY OWN PROGRAMME

This year will comprise a new entertainment for four people. I have called it "A Novel Sensation," and shall travel throughout the British Kingdom with it, and return to New York in May or June. I shall start in about six weeks, first going over to Paris for some new material.

Remember me to any and all of my old friends who may desire to hear from me. In this case I will specially mention Messrs. Marlowe and Williamson, both gentlemen and artists of the highest order. I trust they will be cherished and patronized as they should be by all Californians.

HARRY WALL.

The Place.

The Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, a few doors above Montgomery, is the place supplied with every luxury and comfort with best of attendants, and with the largest and fattest oysters. It is not strange it should do the largest oyster business in the city. Emerson Corville's oysters are gathered fresh every day—Eastern and California transplanted ones. from his own oyster beds at San Bruno; the first oyster beds in the State. Try them. •

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone. •

A Sensation in Hats.

The new Fall and Winter styles are fast arriving at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. One in particular has already been adopted as the fashion; it is a fine low-crowned felt hat, with a curved brim, and is called "The Grand Duke." Those who wish to be in the fashion must go to "THE" Hat Store, long famed for having the latest styles and for its moderate prices. x

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

This week is (positively the last of the engagement of Johnny Allen and Miss Alice Harrison, who during the past two weeks have crowded the Metropolitan Theatre to overflowing, and whose popularity is undiminished. A bill of extraordinary attractions will be presented this evening. The performance will commence with the celebrated Schneider sketches, including the great Bounce Scene; after this the Campanologians, the original Lancashire Bell-ringers, and S. Holdsworth, will appear in a programme of vocal and instrumental music, and the entertainment will conclude with the new and original drama of "Jeff; or, Plantation Life as it Was," in which Mr. Allen will appear in black. In order to obtain even standing room it will be necessary to go early.

California Theatre.

To-night the very popular eccentric comedian, Frank Chanfrau, will appear in his famous character of Samlin De Walden's comedy of that name. To speak of the success Mr. Chanfrau has achieved in this part would be a work of supererogation; his Sam is as famous in this country as Sothern's Lord Dundreary is in England. The play is admirably cast and will have full justice done it by the company.

Alhambra Theatre.

A very lively bill will be presented at this popular place of amusement this evening. M. Ainsly Scott, who has recovered from his recent severe indisposition, will resume his place in the first part; Billy Emerson will sing in the first part and appear in the interlude in his great song of "The Drum Major;" Sheridan and Mack will present some of their most attractive specialities; Miss Fanny Gibson will appear in her new and original song and dance; the screaming farce of "Dr. Colton's Laughing Gas" with the inimitable Charley Howard in the character of Levi Purnell, in which he makes the audience scream with laughter, will be played, and the performance will conclude with "The Intelligence Office" by Sheridan and Mack and Charley Howard.

Bella Union.

On Saturday night and again last night many were turned away from this popular place of amusement unable to obtain admittance, the house being full long before the curtain rose on the first part. A varied entertainment of songs, dances and comical acts was given, in which the beautiful M'lle Gangain gained much applause for her Bee Dance, Chris Mathews, who made his first appearance at this house on Saturday, at once established himself as a favorite. J. H. Larkin brought down the house with "Rhine Wine Charley," and other favorites appeared in specialties. The performance concluded with "Adam and Eve" with Aline La Favre as Adam. The play is an extravagant composition, with the creation, the flood, the Tower of Babel, and other events mixed up together in admirable confusion. As a matter of course it will draw and will be continued on the stage until further notice.

Theatre Comique.

This house was thronged on Saturday night and last night. The Reynolds Brothers, who made their first appearance on Saturday night, were encored five times, and Edgar and Ethel Stanley, the pleasing balladists, were most favorably received. The entertainment given at this place of amusement is hard to beat. J. Roberts, the Arab boy, is a wonderful performer; Miss Maggie Knight is the pet of the public; "the "Goat Island Ghost" has now run a hundred nights, and should run a hundred more, as performed by Johnny Lyers and Harry Howard it is one of the very best acts ever put on the stage, and makes the audience fairly scream with delight. The burlesque of "Schneider" entitled "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store" is in active rehearsal.

The Oxford.

"Novelty" is the motto of this go-ahead establishment. Among the new engagements are the attractive balladist, Miss Eva Silva, and the talented cornet player, Joe Green, both of whom made a most favorable impression on the large audience assembled last night. Samwells and Montague, the talented gymnasts; Charles Vincent, Amelia Dean, Ida St. Clair, Hugby Morton, and a host of others appear nightly.

The Musicians of San Francisco.

The musicians, though most of them have contributed to the relief of the Chicago sufferers, by at least one day's salary, are talking of making a combined effort to help those unfortunate people by giving a grand concert some day this week. The affair will be under the management of G. T. Evans.

University School.

The pupils of the University School will give a dramatic entertainment for the benefit of Chicago at Mercantile Library Hall to-morrow.

Mercantile Library Hall.

Dr. Spencer will read Dicken's Christmas Carol this evening for the benefit of the Chicago Relief Fund.

Charley Howard.

This unrivalled impersonator of the old plantation darkey, who has afforded amusement to so many thousands of people, will take his farewell benefit at the Alhambra Theatre on Friday evening next, when the house will not be large enough to hold all who would like to attend.

Mrs. Bowers.

This lady left this morning for St. Louis, where she is engaged to appear on Monday evening next. Mrs Bowers' engagement of six weeks, just finished at the California Theatre, has been a successful one, both for the management and herself.

FAITH AND REASON.

BY LIZZIE Y. CASE.

Two travelers started on a tour
With trust and knowledge laden,
One was a man with mighty brain,
And one a gentle maiden,
They joined hands and vowed to be
Companions for a season:
The gentle maiden's name was Faith,
The mighty man's was Reason.

He sought all knowledge from the world,
And every world anear it,
All matter and all mind were his,
But her's was only spirit.
If any stars were missed from Heaven,
His telescope could find them,
But while he only found the stars,
She found the God behind them.

He sought for truth above, below,
All hidden things revealing,
She only sought it woman-wise,
And found it in her feeling:
He said this earth's a rolling ball
And so doth science prove it,
He had discovered that it moves,
She found the springs that move it.

He reads with geologic eye,
The record of the ages,
Unfolding strata. He translates
Earth's wonder written pages.
He digs around a mountain base
And measures it with plummet,
She leaps it with a single bound
And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the hidden force
In nature's labyrinths lurking,
And binds it to his onward car
To do his mighty working
He sends his message 'cross the earth
And down where sea gems glisten;
She sendeth her's to God himself
Who bends His ear to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art,
In common they inherit,
But he has only clasped the form,
While she has clasped the spirit.
God's will Infinite now looms up
Before Faith and her lover,
But while he tries to scale its height,
She has gone safely over.

He tries from earth to forge a key
To open the gate of heaven;
That key is in the maiden's heart
And back its bolts are riven.
They part—without her, all is dark,
His knowledge vain and hollow.
For Faith has entered in with God,
Where Reason cannot follow.

EUGENIE.

How She Looks and Dresses.

[From the London Globe]

Cassell's Magazine for October contains an article written by a lady who visited and conversed with the ex-Empress Eugenie at Chiselhurst. The writer says:

She looked what Tennyson calls "divinely fair," but as one who has suffered much. There was a worn, weary look inexpressibly pathetic in her eyes, just touched over the lower lids with black; her cheeks were thin and very pale, her fair hair simply arranged low on the neck behind, drawn back at the sides, and with curls on the forehead, and it was her own hair—distinctly and palpably her own. Her dress was of black paramatte, self-trimmed, with a small tunic, and a general look of scantiness about it. She wore a little white shirt-collar and cuffs, and not a single jewel, save one diamond star that held the little collar. Her manner suits her imperial presence—simple, courteous, earnest. It is as of a ready-witted women, sweet-tempered, full of human interests and feelings, impressionable, mobile, fascinating; emphas zing all she says with her grandly cut Spanish eves, that might almost indeed stand her in lieu of speech, so eloquently do they converse. There is a wonderful and varied charm about her, Cleopatra-like, that neither age nor custom can wither or stale. To see how the woman struggled with the Empress, and how it brought her down to calm sympathy and pity from a solitary stranger, was very touching. Decorum alone kept tears from my eyes.

Dexter—A Card From Mr. Bonner.

To the Editor of the N. Y. Evening Express:—I have observed in your paper a paragaph stating that certain citizens of Milwaukee offer to make a bet of $10,000, if Dexter will trot on their course. This proposition is absurd on its face, as everybody knows I never allow my horses to trot for money; but even if I were going to trot for money, I certainly would not do it on a track like the Milwaukee track, where a quarter of a mile is out of sight of the judges. You might as well talk about trotting a horse on a pitch dark night, where not only could see whether the horses trotted or ran. But while I do not bet, I am ready, as I have previously offered, to pay $10,000 for the mere privilege of seeing any horse equal Dexter's last great performance, when he trotted a mile to a road wagon in 2:21¾.

Another absurd report is the one that Dexter was lately beaten on Harlem Lane one Sunday morning. In the first place, I never drive or even travel on Sunday, and Dexter never was on Harlem Lane in his life on Sunday. Moreover, he never was beaten on Harlem Lane any day. Who speaks next?

A French Empire.

It is believed that Louis Napolean has abandoned all hope of again becoming Emperor of France, but it is said that he confidently believes that his son will ultimately ascend the imperial throne. Touching this subject, a late London letter says: "There is one thing which the Emperor had reason to dread, and that was an early appeal to universal suffrage. He claims to have derived his sovereignty from the nation; and again and again he has admitted that the same power which made can also unmake his title. So long, therefore, as the election of a permanent government is delayed, so long will the Bonapartists have time to intrigue for a restoration. The Emperor's friends are active; but they exhibit more discretion than they did when they took to lettering and issuing manifestos which invited sharp criticism, especially as the events to which they referred were painfully fresh in the public recollection. In their case the German maxim—'Silence is golden'—holds strictly true."

Cupid Tested by Mathematics.

An amusing instance of unconsciously splitting a difference is recorded in the "Memoirs of Madame de Launy" a French writer of the last century:

A certain literary gentleman of her acquaintance paid her marked attention for a considerable time. It was his habit to call for her at a friend's house where she usually spent the day to offer her his arm, and to see her home. After an interval, however, at about the time when a declaration might have been expected, the attention of the man of letters relaxed somewhat. He still manifested a regard for her, but not so intense a regard as he had shown her at first.

It had been his wont, in passing through a large square on his way to the lady's home, to take her round two sides of the square; as his fervor abated, he still escorted her home—he could not at once give up the practice—but he made short work of it. Instead of going along the two sides of the square, he "split the difference," and crossed it diagonally. "Then," the witty lady remarks, "I concluded that his regard for me had at least diminished by the difference between the diagonal and the two sides of a square."

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. •

THE GREAT SPECIALIST,

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY INFORM those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in one of the most celebrated Hospitals in England, The London

He has now re-opened his old Medical Institute at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was so successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention or refer to on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating what they cure; but to most persons my name will be sufficient to explain what DR. CHAS. H. TOZER attends to.

A Protest From The "Fire Fiend."

"The Fire Fiend am I! Don't you go on a bust yourself now and then? I work your steamboats, run your manufactories, warm your fingers and toes, roast your beef, keep you alive and make you comfortable, and just because I go on a bit of a spree now and then, I'm a "fiend." I even work the engines which throw water on me and put me out, just to show there's no animosity. If I do burn up a city now and then, isn't it good for trade! Hasn't the Fire Fiend by burning up that Chicago which you all said was a second Sodom, brought forth a great deal of good. Come, now, if you San Francisco reporters go on calling me names, I'll have a go at your old tinder-box city. Just make me me mad once and you'll see how much good your rotton leather hose and your spavined horses and cranky engines and drunken firemen will be. I've had my little time and don't mean to go on a bender for some time, but I'm not going to stand being called a "fiend." Why don't you pitch into the "Water Fiend" sometimes? He does a precious deal more damage than I do, but you never call him bad names. This sort of thing has gone on long enough and I won't stand it any longer!"

Very Hard Times.

[Scene—A five-cent groggery on Pacific street. Four "Vags." discovered.]

Bill—I tell you there ain't no harder city anywhere than San Francisco is now-a-days, Jim. It's a sin and a shame, with so many houses with "To Let—Apply to Badlam & Berry," stuck on 'em, that when a fellow takes one to sleep in he's hauled up for a vag.

Jim—Oh, there's worser places than this. If a fellow's industrious he can make money. It's perseverance does it. How many men do you think I struck before I got that two bits we're a drinkin' now?

Bill—Don't know.

Jim—Twenty-seven, so help me; but then when I did get it, it was a good coin, and not a nickel cent, as it would have been anywhere else. Yes, twenty-seven times I said "may I speak to you a minute, sir?" to well-dressed men. Fourteen of 'em wouldn't listen; six said they "had too much of that sort of thing;" and seven listened while I told 'em I'd been in town three days and wanted twenty-five cents to get a bed. Three of 'em told me to go to—well, where it would be too warm to sleep; and three more said I wanted the money to get drunk with, and the last said, as he gave me the money: "here, now go and get drunk as quick as you can;" and I'm a doin' it, though the whiskey is awful weak here.

Jake—I wish I could get out of the town. I tell you boys, it's pretty near played, and a man, when it takes so long to get twenty-five cents, might as well go to work at once.

Charley—I'll tell you, boys, if you have any grit in you, how you can just live in comfort all the winter. But you must make an effort.

All—How?

Charley—Go to Chicago and become sufferers by the fire, I'm going and Ned Wobbles and Wilkins, and Jamieson, and Jack Gulger and a lot more of us.

Jake—How are you goin' to get there without money?

Charley—Well, we ain't a goin' in a Pullman palace car, we're goin' to walk.

All—Walk?

Charley—Yes. It's easy walkin', a followin' on the track, and when we get there it's hard if we don't fare as well as the best of 'em. There's millions of dollars subscribed and no one's got more right to some of it than we have. So we're goin' to cadge along the road, takin' it as easy as you please.

Jake—Well, that isn't a bad idea. I'll be a sufferer.

Bill—So will I.

Jim—We'll all go and be sufferers. We're used to suffering and if we don't find it pay we'll walk back.

[Scene closes.]

Give us the Trial.

Dr. Barlow J. Smith has challenged Prof. Fowler, who styles himself "The Greatest Living Phrenologist," to a public exposition of the fundamental principles on which the science of phrenology is based, and also to attest in the delineation of character through phrenology blindfolded or otherwise as he may elect. Dr. Smith claims to have made important discoveries both in physiognomy and phrenology, and the relation of them to the mind and body. We hope for the good of science that a public discussion of this character may be brought about as contemplated in the card of the doctor.

A Good Suggestion.

We have received the following from a member of one of our local theatrical companies, and think its suggestions worthy the attention of the profession:

Dear Figaro:—Calamitous indeed as the great fire is to the whole people of Chicago, if there is one small section to whom the consequences are more disastrous than to another, it is to the members of the theatrical profession. Unfortunately for them, the dramatic "season" has commenced, and in every theatre of importance throughout the country, each rank in the profession is filled for at least the ensuing six months, thereby precluding the possibility of anything like a speedy engagement; and even if engagements were offering, in many instances they would be compelled to decline through want of a suitable wardrobe, which is as necessary to an actor as tools to a mechanic. True, Chicago will arise, Phœnix-like, from the ashes, but during its reconstruction the actor's "occupation's gone," while skilled and unskilled labor of all kinds will be in brisk demand. Merchants will resume their business in temporary locations, as already announced.

In many cities the theatrical profession were among the first to give practical assistance towards alleviating the general distress, yet it is incumbent upon them to bestow particular consideration on their professional brethren, who are made destitute through this dire catastrophe. The various friendly societies are making up certain amounts for particular destitution among their respective brethren.

Hoping that artists in San Francisco will take the initiative in this good cause, and that there is still enough esprit du corps among them for such an object, I suggest that those in high places set the ball in motion. Each will give his mite, according to means. Mine is ready.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The bill presented last night at this popular theatre proved a very attractive one. The performance commenced with the bar-room scene from "Schneider," in which Miss Alice Harrison gained great applause for her songs and dances, and Johnny Allen kept the audience in high good humor. The Lancashire Bell-ringers made a most decided success, far surpassing any of their predecessors in the same line in this city. They produce most delicious music from their bells, the sounds mingling and harmonizing most pleasingly. Many of the pieces in their programme were encored. "Jeff" served to introduce Johnny Allen as a young plantation darkey, which he played capitally and executed some original songs and dances which fairly brought down the house. Miss Alice Harrison as Susie, a mulatto girl, was the personification of fun and mischief, and delighted everyone by her sprightly acting, songs and dances. John Woodard was very good as the heavy villain of the play; James M. Hardie made up for, and dressed and acted a Yankee very well, and all did their best. The same bill will be played to-night. There is a general demand for the reproduction of "Schneider," which may, perhaps, be complied with.

Alhambra Theatre.

In the first part Arthur Stanley sings the beautiful ballad of "Little Footsteps" with admirable expression; Charley Howard is great in comic vocalisms; M. Ainsly Scott, sings "Queen of the Night" in a manner which proves that his fine voice has not been impaired by his late illness; Billy Emerson's comic ditty is encored again and again, and Gustave Bidaux sings 'Rock me to Sleep, Mother;" the finale, "The City Horse Cars" is very amusing; This is followed by a programme of acts, songs and dances by Sheridan and Mack, Billy Emerson, Charley Howard, G. F. Foster, Miss Fanny Gibson, and others.

California Theatre.

An immense house greeted Mr. F. S. Chanfrau, who made his first appearance last night in the extravagant comedy of "Sam." The audience were kept in a continual state of merriment all the time Sam was on the stage. J. C. Williamson was very amusing as Dick Jenkinson: Harry Edwards played the villain, Bill Crockett, capitally; Mrs. O. R. Saunders was all that could be desired as Lady Cropley; Miss May Howard played Laura Roslyn with much spirit; Miss Minnie Walton looked charmingly pretty in a white dress sprigged with green leaves, and played the character of Emily Cropley for all it was worth, and Mrs. Judah as Euphemia Roslyn performed the character of a walking dictionary very amusingly. Mr. Chanfrau will during this engagement appear in his great character of Mose for the first time in San Francisco. "Sam" will be played till further notice.

Bella Union.

There is no end to the variety presented at this theatre. Those who can appreciate grace and beauty are delighted by the dances of M'lle Gaugalo, those who go for fun, can laugh at Larkin, H. D. Thompson, Chris Matthews, Nat Kelly and the other sons of Momus, lovers of music will enjoy the overtures under the able leadership of E. Zimmer, and the sweet ballads of Fanny Garretson, Minnie Corbyn and others. Little Marie Zoel does a neat little song and dance, and as to Le Favre—Le Favre pleases all tastes, some say she is "Shocking," but all go to see her in the new play of "Adam and Eve."

Theatre Comique.

The Reynolds Brothers have created a furore in this establishment, and are encored again and again in their admirably artistic songs and dances until sheer fatigue forces them to beg for mercy; Johnny Roberts, the Arab boy, is the talk of the town; Edgar and Ethel Stanley are accomplished balladists, and the latter is one of the finest pianists in the State; Little Margie Knight appears in character songs and dances, and acts and is an immense favorite with everyone; the Goat Island Ghost, is received with roars of laughter nightly. The burlesque of "Schneider" entitled "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store," will be produced shortly.

The Oxford.

Miss Eva Silva, the beautiful balladist is a great favorite; Joe Green's performances on the cornet are much applauded; Samwells and Montague are unrivalled in their gymnastic and acrobatic feats; Bushy Morton causes much laughter in "Paddy Miles' Boy," which is one of the most lively pieces presented on the Oxford stage for some time. Charley Vincent is everywhere in the entertainment, and carefully looks after the comfort of his patrons. The Oxford is a popular resort, and an hour or two can be pleasantly spent there.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Charley Howard.

This unrivalled impersonator of the old plantation darkey, who has afforded amusement to so many thousands of people, will take his farewell benefit at the Alhambra Theatre on Friday evening next, when the house will not be large enough to hold all who would like to attend.

Overworked.

[From the Home Journal.]

John Savage, the poet and dramatist, has, for the present, left his pleasant cottage at Fordham, where he resided so many years, and has gone to seek health on a farm some seven miles beyond the Delaware Water Gap, among the hills of Northern Pennsylvania. Mr. Savage is a victim to that great American disease, overwork. In no country do literary men, journalists, lawyers, merchants, and business men generally cultivate the high-pressure system as in America. The result is visible on all sides in premature old looks, bald heads, and shattered nerves, which are certainly poor accompaniments to success in any work of life. Mr. Savage has been actively engaged in the vocations of journalism and literary life in our midst for some twenty-three years, making not only eminent reputation as a poet, dramatist, and prose writer, but troops of friends, outside of his profession, in society, and in the most distinguished diplomatic, artistic, and political circles, by whom he is deservedly held in the highest estimation. For the past few years Mr. Savage has suffered from periodical attacks of the ague; his active mental habits, as well as the responsibility resting on him as chief director, of a powerful political organization, throwing continual obstacles in the way of its successful treatment. His physician has, however, recently decreed that a total cessation of mental labor for some months, with complete change of air, is imperatively necessary; hence Mr. Savage's flight from the Banks of the Bronx to the woody hills of Pennsylvania. His numerous friends and professional associates will be delighted to hear of his entire recovery and seasonable return to those walks his genius has enriched with more than one striking and original creation.

A Fatal Balloon Ascension.

LOUISVILLE, October 2.—Last Saturday evening, near Paoli, Orange county, Indiana, Professor Wilbur made arrangements for a balloon ascension. He was to be accompanied by George H. Knapp, editor of the Orange County Union. Just as they were about getting into the balloon, the cords gave way, and they made a spring for the car, but only succeeded in grasping the ropes. As the balloon rose, Knapp let go, and fell a height of about thirty feet, without serious injury. Professor Wilbur held on, and attempted to climb into the basket, but was unable to do so, and the balloon shot up rapidly, with the Professor hanging below. The spectators were thrilled with horror at the terrible scene, which ended in a horrible manner. At a height of about one mile the doomed man loosed his hold, and came whirling to earth. At the height he had obtained, he looked like a stick about a foot long. As he approached the earth, he was coming down feet foremost—then spread out horizontally—then doubled up and turned over—then straightened out, head downward. As he struck the earth, he fell upon his head. The back of his head was mashed into an undistinguishable mass, and the body crushed horribly. The concussion was so great that half a gallon of clotted blood was thrown from the mouth. His body made an indenture in the ground eight inches deep, and rebounded about four feet from where it struck. To add to the awful character of the accident, the Professor's young wife and little daughter were on the ground, and witnessed the terrible affair. The remains of the unfortunate man were properly cared for, and buried at Paoli yesterday afternoon.

A FENIAN RAID.

Expectations of an Attack on Fort Garry—Men, Arms and Money Being Collected.

[From the St. Paul Despatch, October 3.]

A gentleman just arrived from Fort Garry informs us that the people of that neighborhood are anticipating trouble from a body of Fenians, who are gathering in different places between St. Cloud and the border, in conjunction with the half breeds. The priest Donahue, who will be remembered as Riel's ally in "the Red River Rebellion," is said to be the moving spirit in the affair. He is reported to have obtained from New York both money and arms, with which he has furnished the half-breeds at St. Joe. Arms are also said to be concealed at Fort Abercrombie, where a company of men have been sworn in, and are being drilled by a Captain Bodkins. A train of thirty wagons lately arrived at St. Cloud is suspected of being intended for the transportation of supplies to St. Joe. Our informant says that everybody from St. Cloud to Fort Garry is convinced that an active movement is really on foot, and that the English and Scotch Canadians in Manitoba are resolved, in case of a Fenian and half-breed out-break, to wipe out the disturbers of the peace.

We have also learned that Consul Taylor has telegraphed to General Sherman asking that more forces should be sent to the boundary to prevent the expected raid.

Much dissatisfaction with General Archibald's management of affairs in Manitoba, and that gentleman's resignation is talked of.

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics in San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

Advantages of Advertising.

Every now and again the Chronicle publishes an editorial showing the wonderful advantage attendant on advertising in that paper. It tells "stories" of how some one advertised a house and lot for sale in the Chronicle one day at an expense of 75 cents, and the next day had five-hundred answers from persons who were willing to give more than its real value, because they saw it advertised in the Chronicle. We used to believe these stories, but we don't do so any more, The following advertisement has been published in the Chronicle "new every day" over and over again and without effect: "English Coach Dog for Sale. A very pretty young pup. Inquire of"— That "very pretty young pup" is getting older every day and is not sold yet. An advertisement in the Chronicle may be effective in procuring a situation as cook for Bridget Maloney, selling Jake Junnet's peanut stand, or recovering a lost or stolen cow, but it won't sell a "dorg." There's that very pretty young pup on the owner's hands and he would have been for some time to come had not FIGARO thus kindly re-advertised him. The Chronicle must stop blowing about the great benefit of advertising in its columns until it gets rid of that very pretty young pup.

Editorial Change.

We understrad that there is to be a change in the editoiial management of our respected contemporary the Alta. Dr. Ames, who has for some time been general editor, will retire, and it is not yet definitely settled who is to take his place. Always anxious to be of assistance to any of our contemporraries in time of need, we would suggest Major Jack Stratman for the vacant position; he would give a tone to the Alta that is now lacking. As to newspaper experience no one can say that the Major hasn't had a good deal of that, and it ought to be worth something to him.

The Immortal Squarza.

Academy of Sciences.

The Academy of Science held a session on Monday evening, Professor Hanks in the chair:

Professor Doddle pulled out of his pocket something wrapped up in a newspaper, which he said was a remarkable double-tooth extracted from the jaw of a tomcat belonging to his landlady, Mrs. Watkinson, 7050 Dupont street, who has beautiful furnished apartments, single and en suite, at prices ranging from $10 to $25.

Dr. Trump interrupted and asked whether this sort of thing—advertising lodging-house keepers, and butchers, and oyster houses, at the Academy of Science, oughtn't to be put a stop to.

Professor Stumper said if the learned gentlemen intended to refer to him because he had on one occasion referred to the Pacific Oyster House, on Bush street, above the Alhambra, elegant private rooms, oysters in every style, and open all night, he threw the imputation back in his teeth. Mr. Winant was a scientific man himself, as might be seen by his having sea-weed and curious shells in his window.

Professor Doddle said: For the matter of that, his landlady was scientific too"—

Professor Blunker told Professor Doddle to shut up and pocket his tomcat's tooth as he had something of real importance to bring before the meeting.

The President having called the meeting to order, Professor Blunker offered a resolution that no newspaper reporters be admitted to the meetings of the Academy.

Professor Stumper moved that an exception be made in favor of the Alta. The Alta was a scientific paper and one of its editors was about to become a member of the Academy and contribute a paper on "hydraulic rams, and the necessity for their cultivation."

Dr. Frump moved that the reporter of FIGARO be excepted, as there was a darned sight more fun in his reports than in the proceedings of the Academy they was a sorter minglin' of science, instruction and amusement, which would popularize the Academy and bring it into notice, and when any member of the Academy made a dodrotted jackass of hisself, he liked to see him showed up in FIGARO.

Professor Blunker said that his motion was especially aimed against FIGARO, a paper which had done more to bring the Academy into ridicule and contempt than any half dozen of its members had done to gain it the respect of the community.

Professor Smonch moved that all the reporters be excluded, save the reporter of the Hebrew Observer, and that the reports of the meetings of the Academy be published in Hebrew in that paper.

Professor Slimpkins thought that it was much better to let all the reporters in. They couldn't do the members of the Academy no harm as they was all men of station and respectability as well as learnin', and reporters was a poor lot of devils anyhow, and had to wrastle round for their hash, and no one didn't mind what they said. He pitied 'em himself and hoped they'd all come and learn somethin',

No conclusion was arrived at, and the meeting adjourned.

Chronic Grumblers.

Our chronic grumblers are tired of life; they don't want to live another minute! they are just aching to die, but if they are taken sick in the course of an hour, they will send for the best doctor in town, to see if pills and blisters, and other agreeable concomitants, can keep them in their house of clay a while longer.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Hascke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The Lancashire Bell Ringers have made a decided hit; they use 61 bells to produce the delicious harmony which has so delighted the audience at the Metropolitan Theatre the last two evenings. The bells are made of a compound of brass and silver and other metals, and cost $275. This is the original troupe that visited the United States under engagement to Barnum in 1844. Johnny Allen and the delightfully vivacious little Miss Alice Harrison, are great in the bar-room scene from "Schneider" and the lively play of "Jeff," which is put on the stage with new scenery, and in excellent style.

California Theatre.

Thomas de Waldree's play of "Sam" is such a mass of amusing absurdities, and F. S. Chanfrau's acting in the character of Sam, is so unlike anything ever seen on earth, or in the heavens which are above the earth that the audience are kept continually laughing. The characters are generally dressed well and played well, though we should like to know what regiment General Ashton (W. H. Sedley Smith,) belongs to, a blue coat, gilt buttons and a cap with a gold band round it, being an unusual undress uniform. Sam has it all his own way and amuses everyone. There will be a matinee on Saturday.

Alhambra Theatre.

Billy Emerson's comic ditty in the first part and the song of the "Great Drum Major" in the interlude, are received with much applause. Sheridan and Mack are so wonderfully good in their lightning changes, that the public never weary of them; Miss Fanny Gibson has made quite a success in song and dance, and the act entitled "Dr. Colton's Laughing Gas," with Charley Howard the funniest of old nigs, as Levi Prunell, G. H. Foster as Dr. Colton, Miss Olorinda as Mrs Prunell, John Robinson as Edwin Forrest and Geo. Ashton as Signor Brigunoodle, is the most laughter provoking piece presented on the stage for many a night.

Bella Union.

The play of "Adam and Eve" draws like a house on fire. Le Favre is so lively, so attractive, and so thoroughly in earnest, that she is the life of this as of all pieces in which she has appeared; the black-eyed Gipsey Gilbert as Eve, forms a striking contrast to the blonde, Adam, represented by Aline Le Favre; Johnny Manning plays Lucifer devilish well; Minnie Fillmore as Mrs. Ski-hi makes a very pert little Chinawoman; J. H. Lartin as Abraham Dickinspeil, is very amusing and the piece causes much laughter; Marie Zoel, May Leroy and Fanny Garretson look very pretty as Air, Earth and Fire.

Theatre Comique.

This house is thronged nightly. The Reynolds Brothers are more popular than ever; Miss Ethel Stanley and Edgar Stanley are already great favorites; Johnny Tuers is immense in first part and interlude, and is ably supported by Johnny Kelly Little Maggie Knight is the pet of the public; Lizzie Harmon's fine voice is heard to advantage in pleasing ballads, and a number of pleasing features too numerous to mention, make up an attractive programme.

The Oxford.

Those who visit this popular place of amusement, should after listening to the sweet ballads of Miss Eva Silva, and the beautiful cornet playing of Mr. Joe Green, admiring the wonderful and graceful feats of Samwells and Montague, and laughing at the funny acts by Charley Vincent and the Oxford Minstrels, wait for the after piece which is a great success. "Paddy Miles's Boy" as played by Hughey Merton and the company at the Oxford is very amusing, and pleases everyone.

Benefit to Charley Howard.

Charley Howard will present a fine entertainment on the occasion of his benefit on Friday evening next. Among those who have volunteered are Callie Curtis and Billy Burt, and W. E. Calder, the Scotch dancer.

Benefit of the Chicago Sufferers.

The Acme Minstrels, assisted by a number of volunteers, will give an entertainment at Platt's Hall in aid of the sufferers by the Chicago fire, on Friday evening next. The programme, which appears on our first page, is a very full one; and we trust that the public will cheerfully second this laudable move of the Acmes.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Off for the East.

A. H. Adrien, the French actor who afforded efficient support to Madame Lea Silly during the season of French Opera Bouffe, left for New York yesterday.

The Globe Theatre, New York.

J. Stetson, of the Howard Athenæum, Boston, has opened the Globe Theatre, New York, with a variety company. Charley Howard goes to fill an engagement there when he leaves San Francisco.

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1854, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

A Japanese Boudoir

A lady of Hon. James Brooks' party in Japan, looked into a Japanese boudoir, and this is her inventory: Little or no furniture; no chairs: no bedstead,—nothing but mats to sleep on. A toilette box was on the floor near the wall—about the only article of furniture in the room. In this box were five drawers, and two lacquer basins, no top. In the top drawer of this box was a metallic mirror like our hand-glasses. In the second drawer she kept her powder, paint, wax, brush, tooth-powder and brush. Two little drawers came next; in one she had her false hair, and in the other, pins, gilt paper, and other fixings for her hair. In the lower drawer was her pillow, which is placed under the neck when sleeping on the moss, so as to prevent the hair from being rumpled. It is made of wood, and covered with paper on the top. The powder looks like starch, and when they use it they mix a little water with it, and rub it in like paste; and they have two brushes which they use to rub it off. The paint looks green, and turns red when put upon the lips and cheeks.

Woman's Logic.

"Because I'm in a hurry to-day the gate of Union Square is shut."

"Because I particularly wanted it for the Fair, that provoking woman has not sent my new bonnet home."

"Because we've only cold mutton for dinner, Harry has chosen to bring a friend home with him."

"Because we've fixed to go to the fireworks to-morrow it's sure to rain."

"Because I wanted him to take me out for a walk, my husband was kept in that horrid office all the afternoon."

"Because I wished to show him to Mrs. De Tankerville, baby has gone to sleep."

"Because I was a 'great figure' and Mary cleaning the kitchen things, and not fit to go to the door, the Fitz-Eustace Browns called.

Because Henry and I were all alone, and going to spend a cozy evening together, that dreadful bore, Joe. Ramble, must drop in."

"My dear," said a husband to his better half, after a quarrel, "you will never be permitted to go to heaven."

"Why not?"

Because you will be wanted as a torment down below.

The Boston Post having ventured to express the belief that it is wrong to fly to one extreme to correct another, the New York Commercial Advertiser hastens to reply that "every disobedient, pig-headed urchin in the land will endorse that sentiment."

"Doctor, isn't there a disease called the shingles?" asked a gentleman of his physician. "Yes, to be sure," replied Pillbox. "Then I've got it—no mistake," said the patient, "for the roof of my mouth is broken out in two or three places."

Diamond rings are now set without any fancy work.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention here on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics in San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

"FIGARO."

Published every day, except Sunday, by

J. P. BOGARDUS

Below Montgomery Block.

THURSDAY.....OCTOBER 19, 1871

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

300 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

An Indignant Young Corn-fed.

In Toledo, Ohio, recently, the attention of a lady was attracted to a couple of boys in the street, one of whom, seemingly addressing the other, was expressing his indignation in the most bitter terms. "You fool, you," he went on; "you cussed fool, I am ashamed on you. Your'e the darndest fool I ever did see, confound you!" The lady finally interposed to suggest the unfitness of such language toward his associate, when he replied: "Why, I wasn't talking to this boy; I was talking to my dorg here. Why, don't you believe, ma'am, the cussed fool barked at that stone dorg back there in that dooryard. Why, darn him, I won't be followed by a dorg that don't know more than that!" The lady gave up the job and retired.

Cheap Advertising.

Under the above title the Call has the following:

It should be borne in mind that small business advertisements are inserted in the Morning Call for about the same price that other newspapers demand, which have a circulation of but one or two thousand copies. In truth, it does not cost much more for a small new advertisement in The Morning Call, than it does in the gratuitous sheets, which print on an average scarcely a thousand copies, where we print twenty-three thousand.

If the above is intended to refer in any manner to FIGARO, it proves that the Call, not content with persistently lying about its own circulation, is now beginning to lie about that of its contemporaries.

Barnum plants his dead horses 'neath his grape-vines.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

"Uneasy Rests the Head

"That wears a crown" unless it has one of Shaber & Co's wonderful easy chairs—the best and cheapest ever offered to the public. Coin will buy furniture and bedding of Shaber & Co. at very low rates.

What is Glucolein?

Mission Creek Obstruction

Does not interfere with the AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT, which continues to grow in favor, as it is cheaper, more durable and economical than any other. Selling at eastern prices. Office, corner Fourth and Townsend.

Horton's Tobacco Antidote

Will destroy the appetite for tobacco. Its great success has originated many spurious imitations under the name of Orton's, Burton's, and other similar sounding titles. Be not deceived. Take only Horton's. See that the name of HUG & SCHMIDT, 535 Commercial st., is on the wrapper. HUG & SCHMIDT, Successors to P. J. Reilly, Agents.

Watches.

The finest assortment of Gold and Silver Watches ever offered for sale in this city is offered by J. W. TUCKER & Co. Also, a large assortment of Watch Chains, Jewelry, Cameos, Diamonds, Topaz, Amethyst, Coral, Turquoise, Onyx, Pearl and Etruscan Sets, etc., all of which will be sold at the very lowest prices.

To the Unfortunate.

A Cowardly Proceeding.

The Call of Tuesday has the following paragraph:

"The Academy of Sciences met last night, but transacted no business of importance. The question whether the reporter of a small morning contemporary should be excluded in future, for publishing false reports of the Academy's meetings, was the subject of some conversation, but it was finally considered of not sufficient importance to warrant any official notice being taken of it."

They can't keep the reporter of FIGARO out let them try ever so hard, and even if he were kept out, the same full and particular reports of the proceedings of this body of Solons would still appear. The public have long learned to depend on FIGARO alone for an account of the proceedings of the Academy of Sciences, and they must not be deprived of them.

A Woman of Experience.

A women-woman who has started a paper at Portland, Oregon, opens her salutatory with this sharp broadside: "We have served a regular apprenticeship of working—washing, scrubbing, patching, darning, ironing, plain sewing, milking, churning, and poultry-raising. We have kept boarders, taught school, taught music, written for the newspapers, made speeches, and carried on an extensive millinery and dressmaking business. We can prove by the public that this work has been done well. Now, having arrived at the age of 39, and having brought up a family of boys to set type, and a daughter to run the millinery store, we propose to edit and publish a newspaper, and we intend to establish it as one of the permanent institutions of the country."

Shaking in Their Boots.

The people of Connecticut are suffering at present from a sickness to which hitherto they have been almost utter strangers. For generations they have been exempt from that most uncomfortable malady, the fever and ague, which now has become almost epidemic throughout the State, shaking not only the inhabitants but their nearly universal belief that malarial disorders were impossible on their soil. It may be that the universally rainy Summer has been the cause of this by creating stagnant pools of water, and making every low-lying meadow a swamp where the fever may be bred.

Treating.

No American custom excites more surprise and amusement among traveling foreigners than that which is known in our saloons as "treating," and which consists in the reciprocal payment, by each member of a convivial party in turn, for the refreshments consumed by the "crowd." That this custom leads to great excess there cannot be a doubt, annihilating true temperance among those even who would only drink moderately, or occasionly, if left to their own volition. It is clear that the disuse of this fashion would have greater effect in diminishing the vice of drunkenness than scores of prohibitory laws.

"Awful jolly sad" is a sympathetic phrase with London maidens.

Next to honesty, civilty is the best policy.

A Sensation in Hats.

The new Fall and Winter styles are fast arriving at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. One in particular has already been adopted as the fashion; it is a fine low-crowned fcit hat, with a curved brim, and is called "The Grand Duke." Those who wish to be in the fashion must go to "THE" Hat Store, long famed for having the latest styles and for its moderate prices.

The Drum Major.

This last new sensation of Emerson's, in the song way, has just been published by M. Gray, 625 Clay street, and is adorned with a very handsomely executed colored titled page by G. T. Brown & Co., lithographers. The music is arranged by Geo. T. Evans, and the song promises to become a popular one.

Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own orders at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 937 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Hascke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

Billy Emerson, Charles Howard, Ainsley Scott, Arthur Stanley and Gustave Bidaux present a pleasing programme of songs, sentimental and comic, in the first part. In the interlude, Miss Fanny Gibson appears in song and dance; Billy Emerson in "The Great Drum Major;" Sheridan and Mack in their lightning changes; Charley Howard in the very laughable act of "Dr. Colton's Laughing Gas," and the performance concludes with "The Arrival of Nilsson," by Billy Emerson, M. Ainsley Scott and Fostelle.

Metropolitan Theatre.

There is so much variety in the entertainment presented at this theatre that it pleases all tastes. The public never weary of the "Bounce Scene," the sprightly songs and dances of Miss Alice Harrison, and the comicalities of Johnny Allen. The Campanalogians, or Lancashire Bell Ringers, will perform a fine programme to-night, and by special request, James M. Hardie will recite a new and original poem entitled "The Parting of Napoleon and Josephine." The performance will conclude with the sensational play of "Jeff," in which Johnny Allen introduces some of his best dances. There will be a matinee on Saturday.

California Theatre.

To-night Tom Taylor's "Ticket-of-Leave Man," one of the most interesting and best constructed dramas of modern times will be presented with F. S. Chanfrau in the character of Bob Brierly. It is some time since this play was presented on the the California stage and it should draw a good house. The cast is an excellent one and appears in full on our first page.

Bella Union.

In the interlude which follows the first part, M'lle Gaugain, the bewitchingly graceful danseuse, appears twice in pas seuls; Johnny Manning causes much laughter by his song of "The Artful Dodger;" Chris Matthews draws much applause in his song and dance; J. H. Larkin never fails to bring down the house in "Rhine Wine Charley;" Minnie Corbyn sings sweet ballads and a variety of entertainments are given. The tremendous extravaganza of "Adam and Eve," with the brilliant Aline Le Favre as the first man, closes the evening's amusement.

Theatre Comique.

This house is thronged nightly. The Reynolds Brothers are more popular than ever; Miss Ethel Stanley and Edgar Stanley are already great favorites; Johnny Tuers is immense in first part and interlude, Johnny Roberts is a miracle of agility in gymnastic feats; Maggie Knight is inimitable in comic songs; Lizzie Harmon popular in ballads; Blanche and Maggie, pleasing in double dances; Zadie Zelmar graceful on the slack wire; Harry Howard, a favorite in banjo solos; Nellie Leonard, well received in ballads; Miss Abecco, interesting in sentimental songs; Ida Fisk, lively in song and dance; Rose Vincent, attractive in the first part; Johnny Kelly, great on the end, and Louisa Sommers, pleasing in songs.

The Oxford.

New engagements are constantly being made by the spirited management of the Oxford. Last night the popular Miss Clara Starr, who has just returned from playing an engagement at the Theatre Comique, Portland, made her re-appearance. Samwells and Montague who as pantomimist, acrobats and gymnasts can scarcely be surpassed, give a most pleasing entertainment, and "Paddy Miles's Boy" is a great hit.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Benefit to Charley H ward.

Charley Heward will present a fine entertainment on the occasion of his benefit on Friday evening next. Among those who have volunteered are Callie Curtis and Billy Burt, and W. E. Calder, the Scotch dancer.

Benefit of the Chicago Sufferers.

The Acme Minstrels, assisted by a number of volunteers, will give an entertainment at Platt's Hall in aid of the sufferers by the Chicago fire, on Friday evening next. The programme, which appears on our first page, is a very full one; and we trust that the public will cheerfully second this laudable move of the Acmes.

Robert McWade.

This actor, celebrated for his delineation of "Rip Van Winkle," will arrive by the overland train this evening. He will open in "Rip" at the Metropolitan on Monday.

Rather a Good Thing.

The Plumas National of October 7th relates this funny incident:

Not a thousand miles from the Western end of Indian valley, strange to relate, lives a saloon-keeper. Not long since, business being rather dull, said whisky merchant was somewhat at a loss to devise ways and means whereby to corral a sufficient amount of the "medium" to make his biz. profitable. In the midst of his perplexity a stranger arrived in town and sauntered into the saloon. A happy thought suggested itself to our saloon man, and he at once proceeded to put it into execution. He informed the stranger that they were about to have a raffle for a watch—twenty chances, $1 per chance—and that all the chances were taken but one. The stranger "bit" and paid his dollar. Saloon man then said they would throw off at once, as all the others who had chances had told him to throw for them. They raffled—stranger one throw; saloon nineteen. The stranger won the watch and walked off. The truth was that the saloon man had sold no chances but wanted to capture a dollar—and lost his watch.

Treeing a Bear with an Ox-whip.

The Trinity Press of October 10th says: From Fleming Chandler and Charles Davis, who came in from Minersville on Sunday, we learned the particulars of a novel bear hunt in that locality. Tommy Mullen, who has some cattle on a range there, while riding about, came across a large black bear, and without any weapon but an ox-whip drove brnin over two miles to within a quarter of a mile of camp, heading him off from escape and keeping him out in the open timber, until finally he treed him. Mullen then went to camp, got his gun, came back and killed the bear, and skinned him right there. The bear was about a year and a half old, and weighed about 250 pounds. This is Mullen's first bear fight, and it certainly is an extraordinary one. Mr. Chandler, who is himself an old Ranger in Mexico and Texas, says that Tommy is the best horseman he has ever seen. He has a fine horse, used to driving and herding stock, and he drove the bear before him just as he would any of his herd. Brnin dodged and tried to escape, but Mullen, like the Irish soldier who took the prisoner, "surrounded him," and whipped him on, until he at last drove him up the tree. Young Mullen's home is in Shasta county; we don't know whether they raise many such bear-hunters over there, or not; but it isn't healthy for bears to come fooling around him.

HIS WIFE'S MOTHER.

He stood on his head on the wild sea shore,
And danced on his hands a jig;
In all his emotions, as never before,
A madly hilarious grig.

And why? In that vessel which left the bay
His mother-in-law had sailed
To a tropical country some distance away,
Where tigers and serpents prevailed.

He knew she had gone to recruit her health
And doctor her rasping cough,
But wagered himself in a profusion of wealth
That something would carry her off.

Oh, now he might look for a quiet life,
And even be happy yet,
Though owning no end of neuralgical wife,
And up to his collar in debt;

For she of the specs and curled false front,
And the black alpaca robe,
Must pick out a sailor to suffer the brunt
Of her next daily trial of Job.

He watched while the vessel cut the sea,
And humpishly upped and downed,
And thought if already she squalmish could be
He'd consider the edifice crowned!

He'd borne the old lady through thick and thin,
Till sh'd lectured him out of breath;
And now, as he gazed at the ship she was in,
He howled for her violent death—

Till over the azure horizon's edge
The bark had retired from view,
When he leaped to the crest of a chalky ledge,
And pranced like a kangaroo.

And many a jubilant peal he sent
O'er the waves which had made him free,
Then cut a last caper ecstatic, and went,
Turning somersaults, homeward to tea.

FIGARO ON THE C. P. R. R.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capitol, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

An Anecdote of Dumas.

At St. Germain there was a famous restaurant, called the Pavilion Henri IV. (we trust Moltke has spared it,) celebrated then for its good cheer and long bills. Dumas had the run of the house, and much of its popularity was owing to the prominence the novelist had given it in one of his romances. The restaurateur was an enthusiast, and a poulet Porthos one of the inspirations of the place. Ice was exceedingly scarce one summer, and none to be had save at the Pavilion Henri IV. One hot day in summer a servant came to the landlord with the following message:

"My master, M. Alexandre Dumas, presents his compliments, and begs you will let him have some ice." "Tell your master," was the reply, "that all I have is at the service of the genius of France. Sommelier, bring up a basket of the clearest ice for the illustrious author." The ice was brought and placed in the servant's hands, when the footman in an unlucky moment presented a napoleon, adding, "My master begs you will let me pay for it." Stop!" thundered out the host. "Here is some mistake. I am being robbed. M. Dumas never sent you. Confess, coquin, this is a vile subterfuge. Drop the ice this moment. M. Dumas never was known to pay ready money for anything. Go away, and presume no longer to impose on my credulity."

Life is Full of Chances.

Success in life is not by any means a question of putting a man in the midst of abundance of material and countless advantages. Thousands of persons trod over the hills and valleys of California before the time of Sutter, but none of them saw a particle of the gold which was left for Marshall to discover. And so life is full of golden advantages all around us, had we only the eyes to see them.

What is a theatre without a FIGARO to read before the curtain rises—dull, dumpish and uncomfortable.

The Immortal Squarza.

Josh Billings on Free Love.

I beleaf in free fight! especially amung cats and dogs. I beleaf in free rides—on a gate. I beleaf in freedom of every slave on arth. But free love iz one ov them kind ov freedum that it don't do to limber with. If this world was a garden of Ed'n an full ov Adam an Eve, az they waz when they fust launched, an then I kan imagin it mite du fir sume other Adam tu hold my Eve on his lap, an talk about his affiantese an spiritoal essence an play lamb. In them deze there want no human natur, it waz all God natur. Human natur haz been soaked so much since, it tz tu weak to be trusted in a lot whar the seed iz poor, next to a meddo without much fence between, nor enny poke on. Free love wants more poke than enny other animal. I don't believe in total depravity, unless a man has a good chance. Free love iz a good deal like drinkin' a six shilling gin for a bevrige. Bevrige iz a Chineze word an means cussedness. Awl the free love I have ever witnessed thus far, has existed between a villainous letcher on one side, and lunatic virtue on the other side; that haz been deodorized out of its truth, and haz lost awl of its modesty an shame in huntin' after a condishun where sin ceased to be a crime. The fust free lover that we have enny account of was the devil.

Professor O. S. Fowler.

The world renowned Phrenologist, Prof. O. S. Fowler, continues to give private Phrenological examinations at his parlors in the Occidental Hotel, and those who would learn their mental strength and how to perpetuate it, their weakness and how to provide against it, should consult him at once as his stay will necessarily be short.

His great lecture on "The Immortality of the Soul as Proved from the Nature of Man," will be delivered at Pacific Hall, Sunday evening, October 21st, at 7½ o'clock.

New Figure-Head.

The Washington Critic says: The Culpepper, Va., Observer, has a new figure-head. It seems to be the goddess of liberty in a short underdress, with a long spear in her left hand and an artillery sabre in her right, with a heavy brogan resting on the breadbasket of a fallen monarchy, with the inscription: "Sick, send for McGinnis."

The Worst Fool Yet.

The Danbury, Conn., News tells this: The "champion fool" radiates from Bridgewater: He threw an empty glycerine can into a fire to "see the derned thing sizzle." He subsequently remarked that the loss of four teeth was no fun of a thing just as Winter is coming on.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The performance which has afforded such general satisfaction during the week was repeated last night. Johnny Allen and Miss Alice Harrison in songs and dances and the Bounce Scene; the Lancashire Bell Ringers in an attractive programme, and the lively plantation play of "Jeff." Mr. James M. Hardie sang a descriptive ballad, "The Parting of Napoleon and Josephine," and proved himself the possessor of a very rich baritone voice, which the audience testified their appreciation of by giving him a most hearty round of applause. In answer to his encore he sang a new version of Sherman's march to the sea. To-night Johnny Allen will take his farewell benefit, and the wonderfully popular play of "Schneider" will be presented on this occasion. To-morrow there will be a matinee performance at half prices.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night Charley Howard, the prince of good fellows and the best impersonator of old plantation darkeys in the world, will take his farewell benefit, when his friends will of course assemble in full force. He will on this occasion appear as old Jeff for the last time and sing "The Days When I was Young;" Billy Emerson, Sheridan and Mack, Miss Fanny Gibson and others of the company will appear in their most attractive specialties. The ever-popular Miss Maggie Moore, who has just returned from a most successful tour in the interior, has volunteered and will make her first appearance in some time in San Francisco on this occasion. In the play of "Old Jeff's Dream of Home," La Petite Darling, the charming little artiste, who is quite a favorite with the Alhambra audience, will appear. Arthur Stanley will sing the ballad entitled "Winged Messengers," and the performance will conclude with "The Intelligence Office," by Charley Howard and Sheridan and Mack. There will be a splendid matinee performance to-morrow.

California Theatre.

Tom Taylor's drama of the "Ticket-of-Leave Man," with F. S. Chanfrau as Bob Brierly, drew a good house last night, and was excellently well played. Mr. Chanfrau received liberal applause for his impersonation of the Lancashire lad. Mrs. Sophie Edwin took the part of May Edwards, in consequence of the sudden and position of Miss May Howard, and played it in a manner which left nothing to be desired. Mrs. Sophie Edwin was the first to play the part in this city, and has since played it numerous times to general satisfaction. John McCullough made a splendid Hawkshaw; Mrs. Judah was Mrs. Willoughby herself, and gave a bit of character acting that was never surpassed on any stage; Miss Minnie Walton was a delightfully natural Sam Willoughby, certainly the most pleasing we have ever had on the California stage; Williamson was admirable as Melter Moss; Mestayer good as Dalton, and the performance went well. The same play will be presented to-night. There will be a Chanfrau matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union.

M'lle Gaugain in fancy dances, Aline Le Favre as Adam in the extravaganza, Chris Mathews in song and dance, Bruno the great contortionist, Johnny Manning in comic songs, and many others appear at the Bella Union Theatre.

Theatre Comique.

The Reynolds Brothers, Edgar and Ethel Stanley, Johnny Roberts, Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers and an immense company appear in a great programme. To-morrow night Marie Zoel will make her first appearance, and the original burlesque of "Schneider," entitled "Schnoozer, or the Oakland Grocery Store," which has been for some time past in preparation, will be produced with new scenery and a strong cast.

The Oxford.

The handsome and attractive Eva Silva, the bright and vivacious Clara Starr, Amelia Dean, Ida St Clair, Josie Mayfield, and a host of others appear nightly in conjunction with Charley Vincent, the star acrobats Samwells and Montague, Joe Green the cornet player, Hughey Merton and other male artists.

Platt's Hall.

The well-known Acme Minstrels will give an entertainment and ball this evening for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers. In addition to a rich programme by P. Winthrope, L. Winthrope, H Warner, F. Doud, I. Towser, C. Lang, J. Pauline, the Foley Brothers, J. D. Solla, Josh Davis, and Mr. McDonald; Mr. W. Northcott, late bandmaster to the King of the Sandwich Islands, will play a cornet solo; Fostelle will appear in a fancy dance and W. Pierce, the pianist, will assist. FIGARO will be the house programme.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Onsilla Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Shakspeare and the Bible.

Shakspeare constantly reminds us of the Bible; and, when a passage comes to mind, the origin of which is uncertain, a common impression is that it must belong either to the Bible or to the great poet; and no author excites the same feeling in an equal degree. There are some curious parallel passages, which show that the "Bard of Avon" was familiar with the Scriptures, and drew from them many of his ideas. For instance:

Othello—"Rude am I in my speech."

Bible—"But though I be rude in speech." (2 Cor. xi. 6.)

Witches in Macbeth—"Show his eyes, and grieve his heart."

Bible—"Consume thine eyes, and grieve thine heart." (1 Sam. ii. 33.)

Macbeth—"Life's but a walking shadow."

Bible—"Man walketh in a vain show."—(Ps. xxxix. 6.)

Macbeth—"We will die with harness on our back."

Bible—"Nicanor lay dead in his harness." (2 Mac, xv. 28.)

Banquo—"Woe to the land that is governed by a child."

Bible—"Woe to thee, O land, when thy King is a child."—(Eccles. x. 16.)

Timon of Athens—"Who can call him his friend, that dips in the same dish?"

Bible—"He that dippeth his hand with me in the same dish, the same shall betray me."

Similar parallel passages might be quoted by scores, and we will finish by asking our readers to turn to the play of Troilus and Cressida, i. 3, and see what an admirable paraphrase it is of Luke xxi. 25, 26.

"Awful jolly sad" is a sympathetic phrase with London maidens.

Who Don't Know

That to achieve the greatest desideratum in business "patronage" a person must be liberal in his outlay, by purchasing the best material, employing the best workmen, and seeing that his patrons are attentively and courteously waited on, and in a style compatible with the dignity of the establishment he pretends to manage. Such is the golden rule practiced at KAST'S Fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre, as is verified by the bon ton seen there daily who are likewise to be seen at the Opera and all distinguished resorts of the city.

"YOU KNOW HOW IT IS YOURSELF."

Dear Nellie, Sunday night, you know,
I hadn't much to say,
And yet 'twas twelve o'clock or so
Before I went away;
You say that half the time I watched
The clock upon the shelf;
Oh, Nellie! how I wish you might
See how it is yourself.

I wanted so to tell you
What I've waited long to say,
But my heart and spirits failed me,
My courage died away;
Now, Nellie, only listen,
You roguish little elf!
I'm sure you'd pity me, at least,
If you knew how it was yourself.

Excuse me, Nellie, darling,
I've loved you long and well;
Then let me keep this little hand,
Nor all my hopes dispel;
I love you more than all the world
Can give of power or pelf,
But words are weak when hearts would speak—
"You know how it is yourself."

Her lips but faintly quivering,
Her shy glance upward thrown,
I gently drew her to my side—
My beautiful, my own!
We sat there all the evening;
"Twelve" came from the mantel-shelf;
The rest you may imagine, for
"You know how it is yourself."

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services, that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention on paper.

I am aware that some of the physicians of San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure; but to most persons my name and reputation is sufficient to explain what I can do. CALL AND CONSULT ME. DR. TOZER attends to.

McWade's Rip Van Winkle.

As this young actor is to make his debut before a California audience on Monday evening, the subjoined annalysis of his qualities which appeared in a Brooklyn paper, during his successful engagement there, will not prove uninteresting to the readers of FIGARO:

His style throughout is quiet and artistic; his dialect soft and pleasant. He gives us just such a Rip Van Winkle as Irving has taught us to look for Good-natured, easy going, indolent dog that he is, his happy disposition and jolly humor have attracted all the idle children and dogs in the village to his heels. Too good-humored even to get angry with the man who has robbed him of his lands, he frequently, amid the general hilarity, brings to the eyes a tear, as a remembrance of how his property and his position have slipped away from him flashes across his mind. He dismisses the thought with a joke, having the smile to dry the tear.

Mr. McWade is thoroughly natural as well as artistic, and makes you forget that Rip is but a representation. His incorrigible good nature pervades yourself, and spite of his feelings and vices you like him, and are led to sympathize with his misfortune and laugh at his jokes.

The pathetic scene at the end of the second act, where he is banished from home, was finely wrought and a won general call before the curtain. In the third act he takes the audience by surprise, sound after sound of applause greeted nearly every point. The bewilderment in which the old man finds himself,—the bush to which he tied Schneider, now grown up to a tree, from which hangs the skeleton of the dog, the gun, falling to pieces in his hands, the strange aches in his bones, the surprise on beholding the little village of Falling Waters grown into a large town; its changed appearance; the news of the death of his old friends, the new faces—all of these great changes occuring to him in a single night so incomprehensibly, is beautifully pictured. It is exceedingly picturesque and exceedingly pathetic. Yet through all does the original Rip creep out, for in spite of his bewilderment, he jokes as of old. The artistic feature, however, is the way in which Steenie leads herself up to the recognition of him. And the first satisfaction he feels, the first warmth of friends, was felt by the audience as well as by Rip. In short, it is a thoroughly artistic representation, and as such should be seen. The audience was visibly affected, handkerchiefs were brought into frequent requisition.

LETTER FROM JNO. T. RAYMOND

COLEMAN HOUSE, NEW YORK,
October 11th, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Tell your mail clerk to send my paper at present to my address as above. I shall be at Niblo's Garden soon, where I play Asa Trenchard with Mr. Sothern for four weeks; thence to the Globe Theatre, Boston.

Mrs. Raymond goes to New Orleans for the winter, engaged by Mr. Barrett for the Varieties.

Theatricals are very flourishing here. All the theatres are doing well. "Divorce," splendid; "Eileen Oge," excellent; "Streets of New York," with Frank Mayo, a great hit; Miss Cushman is drawing crowded houses. The managers and actors are about organizing a monster benefit in aid of the sufferers by the Chicago fire.

Kind regards to all old friends.

LETTER FROM SACRAMENTO.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 20, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO.—Proctor's dramatic company after performing at Marysville for a season of five nights, returned to the Metropolitan Theatre last Saturday. The performance of that night was for the benefit of Walter M. Leman, a most worthy member of Proctor's excellent company, known throughout the State, as an artist and a gentleman. This benefit had been tendered Mr Leman by a large number of the leading merchants of this city, including the Governor elect Newton Booth. The entertainment consisted of the fine old comedy of "Speed the Plow," admirably performed by the entire company, followed by the recitation of "Sheridan's Ride," by Albert Hart, and the farce of "Turn Him Out." The house was crowded, and it was a benefit in every sense of the word.

The performance of last Monday night, was made doubly attractive by the first appearance of Charles Vivian, justly celebrated and known as "The Great Vivian," in his popular songs and specialties, and the appearance of Mrs. F. M. Bates as leading lady of this establishment. The lady is a welcome addition, and in thus yielding to the oft expressed desire of several patrons. Manager Proctor evinces great liberality and a determination to present entertainments of the highest order.

The following is the business of the week: Monday night, the drama of "Madelaine" and the farce of "Area Belle;" Tuesday, "Leah" and "Love in Humble Life;" Wednesday, "Married Rake" and the musical drama of "The Brigands;" Thursday, "The Barrack Room" and "The Brigands;" Friday, (to-night,) "Nobody's Child" is announced.

Vivian has appeared each night, and has made an immense hit. He is one of the most popular vocalists that has appeared for many years, and "Ten Thousand Miles Away" his fame will surely spread. The press of this city are loud in their praise of his performances.

Mrs. Bates in her several delineations gives proof of the most versatile talent. She has made a most favorable impression.

The proceeds of last Tuesday night, were set apart for the benefit of Chicago sufferers, and all the company volunteered their services, including Vivian and Mrs. Bates.

Johnny Allen and Miss Alice Harrison appear here next Monday night in "Schneider," and Vivian Mrs. Bates and a portion of the Metropolitan company perform in Marysville and Stockton next week.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—The reproduction of "Schneider" and the benefit of Johnny Allen combined to draw a good house last night. This very popular play will be repeated at the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow evening for the last time. We have before repeatedly spoken of the excellent manner in which Johnny Allen, Miss Alice Harrison, James M. Hardie, John Woodard and others sustain the characters they assume, but we must not write our last notice of "Schneider" without a word of praise for the excellent manner in which the Irishwoman in the Bounce Scene is played by J. Roberts. This young, inexperienced member of the profession has the making of a good actor in him. On Monday evening, Robert McWade will make his first appearance in his new and original version of "Rip Van Winkle," some information concerning, which may be found elsewhere in our columns.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—As everyone knew would be the case, Charley Howard had a splendid benefit last night, many of our best citizens doing honor to the occasion and the beauty and fashion of the city being well represented in the dress-circle. The performance went off finely, Charley Howard was encored again and again and sang "The Days When I Was Young" admirably. Emerson surpassed himself and was so many times encored that he finally had to beg off. Sheridan and Mack were also encored in their sketches; Miss Maggie Moore, who was received with a round of applause on making her appearance, sang "Sweet Spirit Hear my Prayer" in a style which drew forth an enthusiastic encore, which she responded to by singing a pathetic ballad. The excellent bill prepared for the delectation of the patrons of this place of amusement this afternoon and evening, appears on our first page.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"The Ticket-of-Leave Man," with F. S. Chanfrau as Bob Brierly, John McCullough as Hawkshaw, Mrs. Sophie Edwin in her original part of May Edwards, Miss Minnie Walton as the mischievous Sam Willoughby W. A. Mestayer as Dalton, J. C. Williamson as Melter Moss, and Mrs. Judah in her inimitable characterization of the old lodging-house keeper, Mrs. Willoughby, will be played at the matinee to-day, and again this evening. "Kit" is in active preparation and will shortly be produced.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The company at this model variety theatre is very complete. M'lle Gaugain is fascinatingly pretty and performs her dances most gracefully. Aline Le Favre is as fresh, brilliant and vivacious as ever; J. H. Larkin is capital in Teutonic comicalities; Minnie Corbyn sings amusing comic songs, and Fanny Garreteon pleasing ballads. To-night the favorite clog and fancy dancer, Miss Josephine, will make her re-appearance. The play of "Adam and Eve" has proved such a hit that it will be kept on the stage until further notice.

THEATRE COMIQUE.—An immense bill will be presented at this popular theatre to-night, in addition to a fine first part and rich interlude, in which the Reynolds Brothers, Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers, and a host of others will appear the new and original burlesque of "Schneider" entitled "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store" will be presented for the first time, with Johnny Tuers as Jake Snoozer; Miss Lizzie Harmon as Lowesa, a sweet infant only seven years old; R. G. Marsh as the villain; Maggie Knight as the grown-up Lowesa; Johnny Kelly as Bob Bubbles, and the other parts appropriately filled. During the play, Snoozer, Lowesa and the Reynolds Brothers will appear in new songs and dances and original character sketches. Johnny Roberts, the Stanleys and many other favorites are still here.

THE OXFORD.—It is hard to imagine a more lively place of amusement than the Oxford where the fun is kept alive until midnight. The latest additions to the company, Miss Clara Starr, Miss Eva Silva, Joe Green, the cornet player, and the world renowned acrobats, Samwells and Montague, are very popular. The newest sensation is the production of the capital ethiopian musical sketch of "The Boot Black Brigade," with Charles Vincent as Cuff, Hughey Morton as Sam, and the pleasing vocalist, Miss Lizzie Worrell as Rose. This was presented for the first time last night, and Hughey Morton, in the neatest of dandy nigger suits, made quite a hit.

PACIFIC HALL.—To-morrow night, Professor Fowler, whose lectures have attracted so much attention and caused considerable discussion will lecture at Pacific Hall on the "Immortality of the Soul as proved from the Nature of Man." The Professor will doubtless have a larger congregation to listen to his remarks on this important subject than many of the preachers in the churches. The lecture will commence at half-past seven.

THE ACME BENEFIT.—The entertainment given last night at Platt's Hall for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers by this fine amateur association was not so largely attended as the object of the performance and their merits warranted. The first part was well given and many of the interludes encored. The Acmes justly rank as our leading amateur association.

P. B. O. E.—The overland train which leaves on Monday will carry a magnificent pair of elk horns, with a silver plate on the frontal bone bearing the following inscription: "The gift of G. H. Foster to Charles Howard for the P. B. O. E. Boston." This handsome testimonial will be appreciated by the Provident Benevolent Order of Elks, who have lately started a Lodge in Boston.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—There is not within miles of this city a more delightful spot than the groves of San Rafael. The steamer Contra Costa will leave the wharf on Davis street, near Vallejo, to-morrow at 10½ A. M., on an excursion.

KELLY & LEON.—There is but one Leon in the world and he is incomparable. The great Kelly and Leon will shortly arrive under engagement to the management of the Alhambra Theatre

TWO THEATRES IN DANGER IN ONE DAY.—On Thursday, two of our theatres ran some risk of being burned. At half past two o'clock considerable alarm was caused by the spectacle of flames and dense clouds of black smoke, which appeared to proceed from the Pacific Theatre which is now being thoroughly altered by manager Chas. Vincent, who will open it on or about the 1st, under the name of the Globe Theatre. Thousands flocked to the spot, and found that the flames proceeded from a large kettle of asphaltum standing in the street. Chief Scannell was promptly on hand, and smothered the fire with sand. At about 9 o'clock on the same evening when the company of the Bella Union Theatre were closing up the first part performance with a joyous walk around, a bright glare at the rear attracted their attention, and frightened the ladies off the stage. There was undoubtedly a fire, and it was very close. A number of wooden shanties occupied by Chinese in the rear of the theatre were on fire the firemen were quickly on hand, and soon extinguished the flames.

THE GLOBE THEATRE.—A small army of carpenters, painters and decorators are hard at work remodeling and refitting the Pacific Theatre, which will be opened on on the 1st prox., by Chas. Vincent, the spirited proprietor of the Oxford Theatre. New, handsomely furnished boxes are being built, a splendid green room has been fitted up, a new stage put in, new scenery painted, and the theatre will, on the opening night, present an attractive and very bright appearance. A large and talented company is being got together, and an entertainment of the most popular description will be presented.

JOHN PIPER.—This well-known and much respected theatrical manager is in town. He reports Virginia City as being lively, the buildings destroyed by the fire being rapidly rebuilt. He has come to San Francisco to engage talent for the Fall and Winter season at Piper's Opera House, and to make arrangement for stars. During his stay in town, he will make J. H. McCabe's Theatrical Agency, 620 Washington street, his head quarters, where artistes of ability desirous of engaging can apply.

THE SONGS OF THE EMERSON MINSTRELS. This is the title of a little book of which many thousands have been sold during the past few weeks. It contains "Ten Thousand Miles Away," "The Old Man's Drunk Again," "The Telegraph Song," "Carry the News to Mary," "The Moonlight Walk," and many other songs which Billy Emerson, G. Vivian, Charley Howard and Sheridan and Mack and Mack have made so popular.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Everyone with means takes a moonlight drive to the Cliff House. Captain Foster is always ready to get up the nicest of breakfasts, suppers or dinners at short notice.

The Host Minstrel Troupe arrived in Weaverville last Monday and billed the town for exhibitions on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings following. On the first night they succeeded in humbugging about forty people. The next evening, contrary to all expectations, (?) they failed to get an audience. About ten o'clock the same night, they left town by the back-way, and as the hotel-keepers and other parties interested had refused, they did not deem it necessary to awake them for so small matter as settling their bills, and consequently left them unpaid.

The Footlights says: Mr. McWade is fine in the first act of this play, but it is not until his awakening that he makes his grand triumph; his make-up, pathos, and little bits of stage business are so beautifully blended with a harmonious whole, that he carries the house by storm, so complete is his mastery over the efforts attempted. Mr. McWade received excellent support from the members of the stock company.

Mr. Sothern sailed for New York on the 7th, bringing with him his family and his entire stud of horses, grooms, etc.

Work will be commenced at once, and two months will be occupied in effecting the desired change. The expenses of this remodeling will reach $80,000.

In New York, English opera under the directorship of Carl Rosa, thrives at the Academy of Music. The season opened on the 1st with "The Daughter of the Regiment." Watson's Art Journal says of Mme. Parepa Rosa:

Her voice is as rich and melodious as ever, and has lost none of the charm which has proved so powerful a fascination for some years past.

And of the tenor of the troupe:

The new tenor, Mr. Tom Karl, made a very successful debut. He has a light and very sweet tenor voice, of good compass, and sings with much taste and expression. The timbre of his voice is very delicate, and would not, we should think, stand much hard work. A want of power was very evident in some of Tonio's emphatic phrases towards the close of the first act.

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

Lady Canvassers.

The Grass Valley Union says: The Revolution, having learned that pretty lady canvassers for woman newspapers are going about hugging the men in order to obtain subscribers, says: "If any one connected with this paper ever resorts to such a course to obtain a subscriber or an advertisement, we beg to be apprised of the fact, that her connection with it may be cancelled at once. Thus it is that poor girls are checked in every attempt to help themselves. But why could not a fortune be made in starting out some of the long lean, bloodless, scraggy woman-women, with directions to threaten to hug any man who refused to "come down."—There's money in the idea.

An Elephant on a Bust.

With O'Brien's Menagerie, which was traveling through Connecticut last week, was a large elephant. At Donaldson this animal became enraged for some cause and pulling up a tree to which he was fastened as though it were but a withe, he marched out of the tent, and took a short cut to some neighboring lots, where he amused himself for some time in tipping over sheds, tearing down fences, getting up stampedes, devouring corn fodder, and doing other similar damage, despite all the efforts of his keeper. It was midnight before his lordship was brought to terms, some six hours after his escape.

Short Stories.

Sir Walter Scott once stated that he kept a lowland laird waiting for him in the library at Abbotsford, and that when he came in he found the laird deep in a book, which Sir Walter perceived to be Johnson's Dictionary. "Well, Mr. ——," said Sir Walter, "how do you like your book?" "They're very pretty stories, Sir Walter," replied the laird' "but they're unco short."

Game Plentiful.

Just at present our markets are full o ducks and geese, from the creeks and tulare lands, quail and deer from the hills, which are selling for almost nothing. Grouse and pheasants from the Sierra Nevadas sell at $1 a piece. Besides we have turtle, bear, faro, poker, euchre, pool, seven-up, etc., ad libitum. There is no city better supplied with game than San Francisco.

Reason Enough.

On the door of the Chetopka House, in Kansas, was recently posted the following notice This hotel is closed on account of a difference between the proprietor and the cook, which was settled with pistols, and sent the proprietor to his grave, and the cook to the jail."

"A Change Comes O'er," etc.

Last week a dramatic company was performing at — Red Dog we'll say, because there is no theatre at Red Dog, and in the Red Dog Gazette of Wednesday, October 18th we find the following:

The company on the whole is one of the best that has yet visited this city. Special mention is due to the gentlemanly manager of the company, Horatio Smith, who by the fulfilling of his representations has gained the respect and confidence of our citizens and theatre loving public. A hearty success and a welcome return to the gentlemen if they ever should visit Red Dog again.

This is gratifying and we are sure that Horatio Smith must have been delighted when he saw how thoroughly he had gained the respect and confidence of the Red Dogites and the Gazette. He didn't feel quite so joyful perhaps when he saw the Gazette of the 20th—two days after, and read:

MORE BILES.—The Thespian Theatrical Company who have been performing in Red Dog, for several evenings, left town on Wednesday without paying several bills which they had contracted—among which was one due this office for $27.

Then the Gazette proceeds to speak unkindly of the gentlemanly manager, Horatio Smith, whom it wishes "a hearty success and a welcome return" only two days before:

Several places in this city were victimized by the troupe out of small amounts, and the manager, Horatio Smith, took French leave of his creditors. We hope the press will pass them around, and keep the people on the lookout for such a professional bilk.

That's the way with these country papers. Any one who will insert an advertisement appears to them in the guise of an angel of light, but if he leaves town without paying for it, he becomes a fiend of blackest dye.

"Keno"

'Tis but one step from the sublime to the ridiculous, and that step was taken at Booth's Theatre the other night. It was in the grand scene where Catharine is summoned to appear before the Court. She enters, clad in regal attire, her whole appearance indicative of conscious innocence, and proud defiance. She protests against their right to arraign her. All her queenly nature is in arms at the insult. Then she launches forth into an impressive defence, concluding with a fierce torrent of eloquence, and drawing her majestical form up to its full hight, (amid the breathless silence of the audience,) stands fearlessly and triumphantly confronting her Judges; when from a remote corner of the Olympian gallery the sharp, shrill voice of an adolescent god utters the magic word, "Keno!" and the majesty of Catharine is torn to tatters.—New York Advertiser,

A Heavy Run on I's.

Rev. Mr. Beecher may be set down as the great American egotist. In an editorial in a late Christian Union, about himself and his abors, we enumerate the personal pronoun "I," no fewer than fifteen times in an extract embracing twenty-four lines. The Beechers doubtless have many peculiarities of character, and not the least of these, we guess, is self-appreciation.

Anecdote of Sheridan.

Sheridan made his appearance one day in a pair of new boots. These attracting the particular notice of some friends, "Now guess," said he, "how I came by these boots? Many very probable guesses then took place. "No," said Sheridan, "no, you've not hit it, nor never will. I bought them and paid for them." They admitted they never would have guessed that.

Theatre Etiquette.

There is no breach of that etiquette which should be observed in public places so reprehensible as that of a gentleman leaving ladies sitting alone. It is not only a matter of etiquette, but of the attention and protection due a lady under the charge of a gentleman. How often do we observe at the opera and the theatre from fifty to a hundred vacant chairs between acts, representing this reprehensible practice? Gentlemen should not be guilty of such a disrespectful act toward ladies, and should not tolerate it. There are many considerations, apart from the etiquette of good breeding in public places, to discourage such a practice. A lady is liable to be insulted in the absence of her escort; the difficulty of his returning through a crowded house to his seat, and even the probability of an accident, or panic occurring, which would require his immediate care of the lady, or ladies, under his charge. This breach of good taste and breeding is not committed in a majority of instances, once or twice, but frequently repeated between every act. The most effectual way for a lady to prevent it, is to refuse to accompany a gentleman to a public place of amusement who is guilty of this ungentlemanly breach of decorum and neglect of a lady under his charge.

A Complete Answer.

A Western preacher explained the passage through the Red Sea, by saying that the Israelites crossed on the ice. An auditor interrupted him, remarking that there is no ice under the equator. "Sir," said the excited preacher, "this happened thousands of years before the age of geographies, and before there was any equator? I think, brethren and sisters, I have answered the gentleman completely."

Want of Confidence.

A Detroit husband who caught his wife and the family physician kissing like lovers in the gushing stage, offered a few feeble remarks, whereat the lady began to cry. The husband inquired the reason, "Alas," replied she, "I weep because your utter want of confidence in me terribly affects my sensitive nature."

A Cheap Make Up.

They were discussing a masquerade and endeavoring to select the characters in which they should go. "How shall I go?" said a very tall and slender young man. "Chalk your head and go as a billiard cue," responded Deery.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Johnny Allen concluded his very successful engagement at this now popular theatre last night, and this evening a new candidate for public favor will make his first appearance. From North, South, East and West we hear most flattering accounts of Robert McWade's acting in his original version of "Rip Van Winkle," and trust that these will be fully endorsed by a California audience. The piece will be presented with new and elaborate scenery by John R. Wilkins, assisted by P. Rogers; and mechanical effects by Geo. Nichols and S. Gulliver. During the play original music will be performed and choruses sung by Messrs. Brown, Swift, Bark and Loomis of "The Twelve."

Alhambra Theatre.

A new bill comprising many attractive features will be presented at this most popular of theatres this evening. Mr. S. Holdsworth, the Australian tenor, will make his first appearance at this house; a new finale to the first part entitled "Dr. Puffstuff or, Scenes at the Academy of Natural Science" will be given; Billy Emerson will appear in his great song of "The Drum Major:" Charley Howard in his new burlesque of "Nitro Glycerine" and also in "The Intelligence Office:" Sheridan and Mack in duets and dances; Miss Fanny Gibson in her specialties, and Fostelle in imitations of Morlacchi. The world-renowned Kelly and Leon will appear on Monday Nov 6th.

California Theatre.

To-night the thrillingly sensational play of "Kit" in which F. S. Chanfrau appears to better advantage than any other in his repertoire, will be presented with eight beautiful tableaux of Mississippi scenery, startling situations, terrific combats, and some amusing comic scenes. Mr. Chanfrau will receive efficient support from Miss May Howard, Henry Edwards, Owen Marlowe, W. H Sedley Smith, and other members of the company included in the cast.

Bella Union Theatre.

M'lle Gangain in charming dances; Chris Mathews the famous clog dancer; Johnny Manning in character songs; Mat Kelly, Tommy Bree and Harry Thompson in amusing acts; J. H. Larkin in Dutch Comicalities; Fanny Garretson and Minnie Corbyn in ballads, and Miss Josephine in song and dance, make up the interlude performance which follows the first part. The evening's entertainment will conclude with the ever-popular play of "Woman's Rights," with the brilliant Aline Le Favre as he mischievous Mrs. Brownjohn, Minnie Filmore a her clever impersonation of the lack-a-daisical Fitz Foodle, and Marie Zoel, Minnie Corbyn, J. Manning, J. H. Larkin and others in the cast.

Theatre Comique.

The new two-act play of "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store," a burlesque on Schneider has made a tremendous hit at this place of amusement, and promises to draw crowded houses for an even longer time than the original. It is full of fun and makes the audience scream with laughter. Lizzie Harmon as Lowesa "a fragile flower only seven years old," is the star of the piece; Johnny Tuers is immense as Jake Schnoozer and in the Bounce Scene fairly rivals Johnny Allen; R. G. Marsh is a grand burlesque villain and causes much amusement as Dick Duggs; Maggie Knight as the grown up Lowesa is encored again and again in her songs and and dances and acts her part capitally; J. Kelly performs the part of Bob Bubbles in excellent style, and in the concluding scene the Reynolds Brothers fairly bring down the house in their new song and dance "The Apple of my Eye." Schnoozer comes on about 11 o'clock, but in order to obtain a seat an early attendance is necessary.

The Oxford.

A capital entertainment is given at this place of amusement. Among the new features are the fine pantomimic play of Valentine and Orson, by Samwells, Montague and ladies of the ballet and the musical Ethiopian sketch entitled, "The Boot Black Brigade," by Charles Vincent, Hughey Morton, Lizzie Worrell and other members of the company. The performance commences with a varied first part of comic and sentimental songs in which Clara Starr, Eva Silva, Amelia Dean, and many others take part.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Cnailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

New Play.

Col. W. H. L. Barnes, warrior, lawyer and actor now enters the field as a playwright and has produced a five act comedy entitled. "Solid Silver" which has been accepted by John McCullough for production at the California Theatre.

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1854, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

A Pen Portrait of Joaquin Miller.

Not much above the medium hight is he; slight, palé, stooping, and with a timidity in his very step which is almost painful. His voice is thin, low and slightly hesitating, and suggests a tendency to consumption. His head is handsome, and his sunny hair grows low down upon a broad forehead. His whiskers and moustache are lighter and glossier even than his hair, and partly conceal a very sensitive mouth. His eyes are violet in shade and sad in expression. He speaks little, and smiles seldom; but when he does either the effect is charming. He dresses very quietly, though slightly in the Pacific style. His suit was black, or very dark plain cloth, and neat, but not without the evidence of wear. His shirt was a delicate hair-line of blue and white, and his artistic love of color was manifested only by his scarlet necktie. His hat, poet-like, was sombrero.

He is probably the most unpretending man that ever turned the heads of poet lovers. Springing from oblivion to the position of a blazing star so suddenly, and yet showing utter unconsciousness of his altitude of brilliancy, is a proof of his genuineness as a songster.

He looks like a man who was familiar with sorrow, but who was too proud to cry out in his suffering, except now and then in a rythmed wail which brought responsive tears from all who listened. Like all such wild minstrels he cannot sing at will; consequently he has turned a deaf ear to the princely offers which have been made to him by publishers. When he has completed one poem he has no reason to believe that he can ever furnish another, and so, like a comet in the heavens of literature, he is likely to remain.

Stewart, the Millionaire.

Burleigh, the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, thus describes the personal appearance of St wart, the millionaire, as he saw him at Hempstead, Long Island, his "new city on the plains," the other day:

There is not probably a better preserved man on the continent that A. T. Stewart. A little tinge of gray on the upper part of his sandy whiskers is all the indication of age there is about him. His form is lithe and genteel. He wears fine fitting clothes, and would be taken for a successful merchant or professional man of not over forty years of age. His manners are very quiet, and, in ordinary conversation, his tone is very low. He says but little, and as he stood in the midst of his possessions at Hempstead—eight miles long and four wide—he appeared like an uninterested spectator, with perfect leisure on his hands, instead of a man carrying on a gigantic business. With his two large stores, over which he exercises personal and autocratical control; except the Astors the heaviest landlord in the city, with an innumerable number of tenants to look after; his huge hotel on Park avenue for women, now in process of erection, with the expenditure of thirty millions on his garden city, would constitute a business quite sufficient for most men. Stewart takes the whole thing as quietly as he would take his breakfast.

The Immortal Squarza,

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. •

THE FUTURE LIFE.

BY WM. CULLEN BRYANT.

How shall I know thee in the sphere which keeps
The disembodied spirits of the dead,
When all of thee that time could wither sleeps
And perishes among the dust we tread?

For I shall feel the sting of ceaseless pain,
If there I meet thy gentle spirit not,
Nor hear the voice I love, nor read again
In thy serenest eyes the tender thought.

Will not thy own meek heart demand me there
That heart whose fondest throb to me was given?
My name on earth was ever in thy prayer.—
And will thou never utter it in Heaven?

In meadows fanned by Heaven's life-breathing wind,
In the resplendence of that glorious sphere,
And larger movements of the unfettered mind—
Will thou forget the love that bound us here?

The love that lived through all the stormy past,
And meekly with my harsher nature bore,
And deeper grew, and tenderer to the last,
Shall it expire with life and be no more?

A happier lot than mine, and larger light,
Await thee there; for thou hast bowed thy will
In cheerful homage to the rule of right,
And lovest all, and renderest good for ill.

For me, the sordid cares in which I dwell,
Shrink and consume my heart as heat the scroll;
And wrath hath left its scar—that fire of hell
Has left its frightful scar upon my soul.

Yet, though thou wear'st the glory of the sky
Will thou not keep the same beloved name,
The same fair thoughtful brow, and gentle eye?
Lovelier in heaven's sweet climate, yet the same.

Shalt thou not teach me in that calmer home,
The wisdom that I learned so ill in this—
The wisdom which is love—till I become
Thy fit companion in that land of bliss?

Del Gratia,

I went to the theatre last night or I should have felt aggrieved beyond the possibility of expressing myself, as I could not have witnessed the eighth wonder of this progessive age c'est a dire, the unexampled improvement in mechanical genius displayed in the home manufacture of the ladies' shoes purchased at KASTS Fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre. s

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after a three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Rooms at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatments, which is unnecessary to mention on paper.

I am aware that some of the citizens of San Francisco make a practice of stating in the papers that they cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

"FIGARO."

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

300 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

The Family Pest.

A New York paper says: It is not the grocer or the baker, or even the plumber. It is not the kitchen range, or the gas, or the furnace. It is not the children. It's the servants. They who should be a help are a hindrance; they who should make house-keeping easy, and who within the memory of this generation, did make it comparitively so, are now become so troublesome, so trying to temper, at once so inefficient, and so exacting, that they are driving folks who love a quiet life at reasonable expenditure of money and patience out of their own houses into hotels and lodgings. Hotels quadruple every ten years, and all thrive; and restaurants multiply still more rapidly, even in the dwelling parts of the town, and the influence most needed in our society, that of home and family hearth, is every year becoming less and less, and the chief reason is that young housekeepers shrink from the daily encounter with the pest of the household untrained, inefficient, untrustworthy, untidy, impudent, extortionate, flaunting servants. They come professing to cook, when they hardly know the difference between broiling and frying and, if they did it would be of little consequence, for they are equally ignorant how to do either, and the only stew they are capable of making, is that in which they keep their mistresses.

Dishonest Dog.

The Lowell Journal tells this as a joke. One of our prominent grocers has a sagacious dog who never sees a half-barrel of flour weighed out on the scales but he goes and puts one foot on the platform, carelessly looking out of the door to avoid exciting suspicion. That foot weighs about 25 pounds

Faith.

An Ohio newspaper announces that a man in Zanesville who has buried three wives, has their photographs in a group, within which his own picture is the central figure, and underneath is this inscription: "The Lord will provide."

Sisterly.

The Salinas Standard, a paper published at the smart little village of Salinas City—a place of some 400 or 500 inhabitants—referring to the Chicago fire, heads an article, "Our Sister City in Ruins."

Disgraceful.

R. G. Marsh on hearing that the fire in Chicago was started by a cow kicking a kerosene lamp in the yard where it was being milked said it was a "cow-yardly act."

Perhaps.

A correspondent asks us whether the "Rev," attached to Henry Ward Beecher's name does not stand for "revenue."

Dobbs thinks that instead of giving credit to whom credit is due, the cash had better be paid."

McDowell, Show Card Writer,

(Of the old stand, 503 Montgomery street,) removed to No. 7 Geary, junction of Market and Kearny. U

More Alta Idiocies.

We entreat the Alta to put a stop to the drivelling insanities which now appear every Monday. Do straighten up, old lady, and show a little back bone. The only thing that will save you is to get Jack Stratman for editor. He'd never allow such bosh as "Persiflage, or a Triumverate of Freaks" to appear. Isn't this pretty stuff for a commercial daily to publish?

Or take the case of a New York merchant, who was seated one day last week in the Grand Hotel conversing with a well known local politician of the Republican school:

"We have taught you New Yorkers a lesson," remarked the Californian.

"In what way?" inquired the New Yorker.

"In the way of having sacrificed self-interest for the public good, and having in our late elections returned men of honesty and worth without the assistance of marriage symbols," was the reply.

"What connection have marriage symbols with the matter? I don't quite understand."

"Well, I'm surprised! You a member of Tammany and so innocent as that!"

"Please explain, sir," demanded the New Yorker, slightly ruffled.

"To be sure," the Californian quickly responded. "Don't rings symbolize marriage, and don't rings control all the elections of your city? Ah, ah!"

The New Yorker immediately left his companion with a cold bow and passed into the street, apparently for a cool walk."

Will some one in the Alta office look in the dictionary—if there is one there—and find out what a "triumverate" means, and then ascertain by consulting a French dictionary that "persiflage" is something better than the gibbering of an idiot?

Necessary Precaution.

A contemporary gives the following as a picture of life in Mexico: Two gentlemen of the highest rank in society meet in the evening in a street of the Capital. "What o'clock is it, Senor?" politely asks the first. The other stops, draws his revolver covers his interlocutor, then takes out his watch and gives the desired information. No. 1 thanks No. 2 without the least surprise or remonstrance at the measure of precaution. That is just what sensible people in San Francisco do after dark.

A Poor Excuse.

We find the following paragraph in the Marysville Standard: "Poor Newspaper:—If our patrons will excuse us until our present stock of poor paper is exhausted, we promise to furnish a more readable article in future." The bad quality of the paper on which it is printed is no excuse for the Standard's being "a poor newspaper," and if it defers presenting its subscribers with readable articles until it gets better paper we think they will have a right to complain.

The Chicago Sun.

The Chicago Sun comes to us minus a few columns of advertisements, so many of its patrons having been burned out; but full of interesting matter concerning the disaster, and a map of the new cities of Hyde Park and Thornton, which will be rapidly built up.

Not on Hand.

"Where was I, ma," said a little urchin to his mother, as he stood gazing at his drunken and prostrate father, "where was I when you married pa? Why didn't you take me along, I could have picked out a better man than he is."

Poor Greeley.

So much fun has been made of Horace Greeley, as a farmer, that the Louisville Courier proposes that "base ball shall be abolished and Greeley proclaimed the national game."

The Poughkepsie Stage.

This paper comes to us enlarged and improved. It is a lively and interesting sheet.

Gents' Furnishing Goods.

All persons in want of Furnishing Good should make a note that at SEGUIN & CHABLEBOIS's, 706 and 708 Montgomery street, can be found the largest and cheapest assortment of goods in that line in the city. McVickers Theatre, erected 1857. Managers, J. H. McVicker and Samuel Myers.

Crosby Opera House, Washington street. Albert Crosby, Proprietor; George W. Harrison, Treasurer.

Dearborn Theatre. Manager, William Manning; Located on Dearborn street between Madison and Washington. Occupied by Manning's Minstrels.

Hooley's Opera House, South Clarke street, between Washington and Randolph, opposite the Court House. This was formerly the old Bryan Hall, and was converted into one of the most elegant theatre structures in America, by R. M. Hooley; opened at the commencement of this year. Proprietor, R. M. Hooley; Business Manager, Charles White; Advertising Manager, A. L. Parkes.

The Museum, managed by Col. Wood.

The Globe, a legitimate establishment, conducted by Mr. D. R. Allen.

McVickers Theatre had been for the second time enlarged, remodelled, and improved. It was one of the largest and most completely appointed establishments in the country.

The Crosby Opera House, had also been expensively refitted. It ranked with similar establishments at the East, and cost half a million dollars.

It is probable that every one of these resorts will be rebuilt within a twelve month or more. Means for commencing can be procured in New York to any extent.

Masters of their Art.

Men have risen to fame, honor and wealth in all professions. Not the least among those famous as masters of their art are the names of Stoltz and Buckmaster, the former renowned for his taste in cutting pants, the latter for coats. It is all very well to say that "the tailor cannot make a man," but he certainly can do a good deal towards it. Such a tailor as G. B. Davis, 507 Kearny street, whose famous coats have adorned backs of senators, assemblymen and learned judges during the last fifteen years, can by his art set off the most unfinished man to good advantage.

Goose Talk.

This is how the Gilroy Advocate announces that wild geese are plentiful:

"Large flocks of geese are returning to this place to chatter their Winter's welcome, and daw the idle sportsman to shoot for pastime and profit. They sail along the vaulted dome above in geometrical lines of beauty until their wary eyes see the glistening ponds in silver sheens beneath them, then dashing down with almost lightning swoop they settle on the crystal wave."

The assessed valuation of property in Chicago was $270,000,000. She was the fourth city in the United States in point of wealth.

People afflicted with corns should go to Cincinnati, where the streets are said to be filled with foot-pads.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The new first part finale of "Doctor Puffstuff, or Scenes at the Academy of Sciences," by Billy Emerson, Charley Howard and the troupe, has proved quite a hit, and caused much laughter last night. Emerson is great in the "Drum Major," Charley Howard wonderfully funny in his farce entitled "Nitro-Glycerine," in which he is ably supported by G. H. Foster and John Robinson, and Sheridan and Mack are inimitable in their lightning sketches.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Robert McWade on making his appearance last night received the hearty welcome always accorded to strangers by a California audience, and at once made a favorable impression. The first act was rather dull and Mr. McWade too quiet in his style to please a large proportion of the audience. We think there was some disappointment at Schneider's not being a prominent character in that act; if a well-trained dog were introduced it would enliven the part and give Rip an opportunity for some funny talk. Sallie Hinckly was excellent as Eda Van Winkle, and the two children, Lulu Wilson and La Petite Darling, acted their part charmingly. A chorus was well sung by members of the Twelve. At the conclusion of this act Mr. McWade made a strong impression on the audience by his pathetic leave-taking, and handkerchiefs were in requisition. The third act was admirably put on the stage, the scenery being very fine, the mist illusion well-managed, and the thunder terrific. In this act Mr. McWade made a better impression than in the first, though he was still rather too slow and deliberate for an impatient California audience. In the third act where he wakes from his sleep of twenty years, his simulation of old age was admirable and he made many good points which provoked loud bursts of applause. The scene where he succeeds after long endeavor in making his daughter Steenie recognize him, was splendidly played, and the applause was loud and frequent, as it was also at the close of the play, when Rip asserts himself as a living man. The piece will of course play a little quicker to-night, and there is so much to commend in Mr McWade's performance that he should have a crowded house.

California Theatre.

The production of the highly sensational play of "Kit" last night had the effect of drawing a large house. F. S. Chanfrau as Kit Redding did some splendid acting, his grief at the loss of his wife and deadly determination to be revenged on her betrayer being depicted with much power. The bowie knife duel was one of the most fearfully natural combats ever presented on the stage. Miss May Howard played the character of Mary Riding with much feeling: Mestayer was good as the villain, Manuel Bond; Owen Marlowe gave a fine bit of Dundrearyish acting as Lord Fitzfolie; Minnie Walton was very amusing as Mrs. Washington Stubbs; Williamson, good as he has been in everything he has appeared in, fairly took the audience by surprise; his excellent acting in the role of Julius Cæsar, and Edwards and Leach as Judge Suggs and Major Squiggs, the old barroom bummers, made the audience roar with laughter at the faithfulness of the representation; Buckley was all that could be desired as James Temple, and all played their parts well.

Bella Union Theatre.

A splendid first part, a brilliant interlude in which Bruno the great contortionist, M'lle Gangain the graceful danseuse, Chris Mathews the clog dancer, pretty little Marie Zoel the song and dance artiste, and many more appear, and the original local sensation of "Women's Rights," with the sparkling Le Favre as an erratic wife, will be presented to-night.

Theatre Comique.

Johnny Tuers, R. G. Marsh, Lizzie Harmon, Maggie Knight and others engaged in the representation of the very comical extravaganza, entitled 'Schnoozer or, the Oakland Grocery Store," make the audience laugh till their sides are sore, and the scene where the bynomenus, light and airy Lizzie Harmon is thrown out of a window, fairly brings down the house. The Stanleys sing pleasing duets, The Reynolds Brothers perform several songs and dances and appear in the piece, and a great entertainment is given.

The Oxford.

A capital entertainment is given at this place of amusement. Among the new features are the fine pantomimic play of Valentine and Orson, by Samwells, Montague and ladies of the ballet and the musical Ethiopian sketch entitled, "The Boot Black Brigade," by Charles Vincent, Hughey Morton, Lizzie Worrell and other members of the company. The performance commences with a varied first part of comic and sentimental songs in which Clara Starr, Eva Silva, Amelia Dean, and many others take part.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

It is Not

Because you wear cheap boots and shoes that you become crippled—it is because they do not fit properly; neither does a bad-fitting boot or shoe last so long by half the time as one made by a first-class cutter, such as is found at Kast's fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre.

A Popular Theatre Gone.

The Victoria Theatre, an immense establishment on the Surrey side of Waterloo Bridge—a district never penetrated by the children of fashion, except when en route for the railway—has collapsed, and its properties, which were never remarkable for richness, have been disposed of for ludicrously little. Charles Kingsley, in "Alton Locke," a somewhat socially revolutionary sort of work, which gained him much fame but is little read now, alludes to the "Vic." as—what Lord Chesterfield in his will termed New market—"a seminary of infamous morals;" and Charles Matthews thus depicts it: "The lower orders rush there in mobs and in their shirt-sleeves, applaud frantically, drink ginger beer, munch apples, crack nuts, call the actors by their Christain names, and throw them orange-peel and apples, by way of bouquets." To a stranger the place was rather a curiosity, as exhibiting low London in its theatrical diversions. The pieces acted were of a "Mysteries of London" type; wicked marchionesses and abandoned baronets abounded, and blood, blood was everywhere.

Unsubstantial Property.

The property which little Lowesa in the burlesque of "Schnsider," now being played to crowded houses at the Theatre Comique, is heiress to is partly composed of the back pay of her father who died in the Amador war, for which the gentle Lowesa insists on holding Col. W. H. L. Barnes responsible.

Incredible.

The Chicago Sun publishes what purports to be the confession of a member of the Society of Internationals, in which he alleges that he set fire to Chicago. We don't believe it. It was a cow set fire to Chicago. The Internationals are all asses; havn't a cow among them.

SPIRITUALISTIC TRIUMPH. — Treasure seekers, says the White Pine News, have met with success in hunting for money said to have been buried between Treasure City and Hamilton by a man who died near Ten Piute. Two men (one the brother of the deceased) engaged the services of a spiritualist, at Pine Grove, who infomed them that he could find the money—$11,000. Since their arrival they have been prospecting for the money as secretly as possible. Abner Goblen, a miner living on Treasure Hill, reports that they have found the money—$11,000 in greenbacks buried in a tin can under a bush.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

The Question Settled.

Here is one of the arguments used by Professor Fowler, in favor of the immortality of the soul:

Man is endowed by the Almightly with an ardent desire for immortality, which he would not possess if it were not to be satisfied. Deity would not tantalize man up to the last hour of his life with the expectation of a happy future, and then blight his expectation.

This may settle the question in Professor Fowler's mind, but to ours is not conclusive. Man is endowed by nature with an ardent desire for acquiring property, but he often dies badly fooled. Man has a desire to fly, but he can't any more than that most unlikely bird—a pig. The desire for immortality has a good effect on a man's life, but we really can't see that he can complain if that desire is not gratified. In fact, we know he can't.

Too Bad.

A dispatch from Scranton, Penn., states that the Rev. Mr. Devilin, a meek and lowly follower, etc., preached a sermon in the streets, in which he referred to Catholics as "thieves, cut-throats and murderers," on which some one kicked away the box on which he stood and the Reverend Devil fell to the ground and hurt himself. When he next gets the devil in him to such an extent as to induce him to blackuard Christians, Mr. Devilin will probably be finished up.

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1854, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Anteiope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY INFORM those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in one of the most celebrated Hospitals in England, The Lock Hospital.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Institute at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was so successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention or comment on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating what they can cure; but to most persons my name will be sufficient to explain what DR. CHAS. H. TOZER attends to.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The second performance of "Rip Van Winkle" at the Metropolitan Theatre with Robert McWade in the title role gave general satisfaction. Mr McWade exhibited more vivacity than on the first night, and the play went smoothly throughout. The new scenery by Mr. Wilkins was generally admired, and the pantomime of the spirits in the Catskill Mountain scene is very good. James M. Hardie, J. H. Vinson, Miss Sallie Hinkley, Miss Fanny Young and all engaged in the representation of the piece, play their respective parts well. "Rip Van Winkle" will be repeated to-night. On Friday, Robert McWade will take a benefit, and a great bill will be presented, comprising the plays of "Rory O'Moore" and "Dick mit Dree Eyes."

California Theatre.

F. S. Chanfrau has hit the public hard in "Kit." On the first night many had to be turned away from the doors and another immense audience assembled last night. Mr. Chanfrau's acting in this part is so vividly real, and he keeps his single purpose of revenge so well in view throughout the play that the interest of the audience in him is never allowed to flag. "Kit" is a popular play because it is full of action and appeals to the eye rather than to the intellect. The bowie knife duel is a terrifically sensational affair and is well worked up by Chanfrau and Mestayer.

Alhambra Theatre.

The first part consists of sentimental ballads by S. Holdsworth, M. Ainsley Scott, Arthur Stanley, and Gustave Bidaux; comic ditties by Billy Emerson and Charley Howard, and delicious music by the orchestra under the leadership of Geo. T. Evans. In the interlude Billy Emerson appears in the Drum Major; Charley Howard in two screaming acts; Sheridan and Mack in duets, dances and character acts, and Miss Fanny Gibson in her new specialties.

Bella Union Theatre.

The play of "Woman's Rights" is running well at this establishment with the ever-popular Le Favre as Mrs. Brownjohn. Minnie Fillmore as the Hon. Aug. Fitzfoodle, Johnny Manning as John James Simpson, Minnie Corbyn as Mrs. Simpson, J. H. Larkin as a manager in trouble, and the rest of the company in a variety of amusing characters. The piece is preceded by a first part and interlude in which M'lle Gangain, Chris Matthews, J. H. Larkin and others appear.

Theatre Comique.

Johnny Thers, R. G. Mareb, Lizzie Harmon, Maggie Knight and others engaged in the representation of the very comical extravaganza, entitled "Schnoozer, or the Oakland Grocery Store," make the audience laugh till their sides are sore, and all engaged in its representation act with so much vivacity that the play goes scarcingly.

The Oxford.

A capital entertainment is given at this place of amusement. Among the new features are the fine pantomimic play of Valentine and Orson, by Samwells, Montague and ladies of the ballet and the musical Ethiopian sketch entitled "The Boot Black Brigade," by Charles Vincent, Hughey Morton, Lizzie Worrell and other members of the company. To-morrow night Charles Vincent will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, when the burlesque on Joe Murphy's "Help" will be performed and the Oxford will be closed for the season

Ellsworth Rifles' Party.

The Ellsworth Rifles will give their tenth Anniversary Party this evening at their Regimental Armory, corner of New Montgomery street and Howard. We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation.

Platt's Hall.

A grand concert will be given this afternoon at 2 o'clock, by the musicians of San Francisco, for the benefit of the sufferers by the fires in Wisconsin and Chicago. The orchestra will consist of 130 performers, all of whom have volunteered. Geo. T. Evans is conductor of the string band, and Geo. Koppitz of the reed and brass band.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

A Name.

The Bulletin is full of letters from people who know just what kind of a bridge should be built across the Bay. FIGARO confesses that he can't build a bridge, but claims the right of naming it when it is built Pons Asinorum must be the name, for all the asses in the country are trying to build it.

Anecdote of a Bereaved Husband.

A distinguishd ex-Governor of Ohio, famous for story telling, relates that on one occasion, while addressing a temperance meeting at Georgetown, District of Columbia, and depicting the misery caused by indulging too frequently in the flowing bowl, his attention was attracted by the sobs of a disconsolate and seedy-looking individual in the rear part of the room. On going to the person and interrogating him, he was told the usual tale of woe; among other sad incidents, that during his career of vice he had buried three wives. The Governor, having buried a few wives of his own, sympathized deeply with the inebriate, and consoled him as much as was in his power; said he: "The Lord has indeed afflicted you." The mourner sobingly replied: "Yes, yes, he has," and pausing a moment, and wiping his nose he continued: "But I don't think the Lord got much ahead of me, for as fast as He took one away I took another."

A Philosopher in Disguise.

Gent.—Waiter, how came this dead fly in my soup?"

Waiter—"In fact, sir, I have no positive idea how the poor thing came to its death. Perhaps it had not taken any food for a long time, dashed upon the soup, ate too much of it, contracted an inflammation of the stomach that brought on death. The fly must have a very weak constitution, for when I served the soup it was dancing merrily upon the surface. Perhaps—and the idea presents itself only at this moment—it endeavored to swallow too large a piece of vegetable, this remaining fast in his throat, caused a choking in the windpipe. These are the only reasons I can give for the death of this insect."

"Hallo, Bob, how are you?" Bob, who has been in jail for debt, for some months past, answered: "Very well, thank you, but I have been in trouble, you know." "What trouble ailed you" "A trouble past in durance."

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

A Wonderful Balsam.

A manufacturer and vender of quack medicines for rheumatism and the growth of hair combined, frequently wrote to a friend for a recommendation of his (the manufacturer's) "balsam." In a few days he received the following, which we call pretty strong:

"Dear Sir: The land composing this farm has hitherto been so poor that a Chinaman could not get a living off it, and so stony that we had to slice our potatoes, and plant them edgeways; but hearing of your balsam, I put some on the corner of a ten-acre field surrounded by a rail fence, and in the morning I found the stones had entirely disappeared, and a neat wall encircled the field; the rails were split into fire-wood, and piled up symmetrically in my back yard. I put half an ounce in the middle of a huckleberry swamp; two days saw it cleared off, planted with corns and pumpkins, and a row of peach trees in full blossom through the middle. As an evidence of its tremendous strength, I would say it drew a striking likeness of my eldest son out of a mill-pond, drew a blister all over his stomach, drew a load of potatoes four miles to market, drew grease out of a flint, and eventually drew a prize of $97 out of a defunct lottery."

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1854, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Encores.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette has the following sensible remarks on the habit of encoring songs:

"The abuse of encoring comes in with the concert season, with all its wonted vigor. Perhaps it is idle to remonstrate against it; but we are moved to say another word of protest, nevertheless. As practised in Boston, it is unjust both to performers and to many in their audiences. We do not object to hearty demonstrations of approval. These indicate a satisfaction that is stimulating to artists, and places them in pleasant relations with those whom it is their mission to entertain. In exceptional cases of general and obvious delight, a repetition may be a graceful and gracious favor which it is pleasant to see conveyed. But this is widely different from the wholesale system of demanding repetitions that is becoming the habit with portions of Boston audiences. They are not the most numerous portions, but in the vigor of their youth and persistency, they succeed in making a noise out of proportion to their real strength, and thus induce artists, unwillingly to acquiesce, and compel the balance of audiences to submit. Do these enthusiastic people realize that there is a culpable disregard of good manners in their proceedings? We presume not, but their ill-breeding is none the less manifest. To urge upon a singer, who has appeared and indicated a wish to be excused, the repetition of a difficult performance, that if they knew anything of music, they would be aware has been a tax both upon mental and physical faculties, is to perpetrate a boorish act, which is not at all redeemed by the enforced acquiescence that may follow it. Then the portions of the audiences not encoring have rights also, or at least are entitled to courtesy. They came to hear the programme. It may be that some of the last things in it are what they most desire to hear. They could hear it all if the concert were kept within reasonable limits. In some instances, being confined to the cars, as a means for reaching their residences, they are compelled to leave long before it is completed, and thus are deprived of what they paid their money to listen to. In others, they are so wearied that they leave the concert-room in disgust at the unnecessary and unreasonable prolongation of the programme. We don't know how far it is in the power of concert-givers to resist this increasingly unpleasant custom; but we heartily wish there could be a combination among them to reform altogether the practice of responding to encores, untill it can be brought within reasonable limits.

Preparing for It.

Discretion is the better part of valor. Tom and Arthur have been rude to their mama. Mama complained to papa, who is heard comming up stairs. Arthur—I say, Tom, here comes papa: I shall pretend to be asleep. Tom—I sha'n't I shall get up and put something on.

When a popular melody is arranged for an orchestra, may it be called a band-ditty? Oh! agony.

Figaro's Mission.

FIGARO'S special mission is to amuse the audience between the acts of the play at the theatre, but he often has extra duty imposed on him. We suppose, as the worthy barber of Seville, from whom he takes his name, was famous for bearing love messages and making assignations, FIGARO must not grumble at being pressed into the service of the blind god. As we have on previous occasion observed, the papers which are not carried by the audience to their houses, are the next morning gathered up and sent by mail all over the State to hotels, post-masters and exchanges. Many of these reclaimed papers show by littles billets doux written on their margin that FIGARO has during the play acted as a messenger of love. Here are some of the tender messages which last night were sent by means of FIGARO to their destination: "Dear Annie, I will call and see you Wednesday evening;" "I'm so sorry darling, it was not my fault;" "You know I do;" "The old man won't be back till to-morrow;" "I stay in till 11 every morning. Will you never come?" We suppose we must not complain, but must rather feel happy that FIGARO is thus used as a means of communicating between loving souls.

A Little Mistake.

Shoddy gave a Literary Social. Miss Shoddy, a young lady dressed in the extreme of the fashion, glittering with dirmonds, sat silent and apart from the rest, taking no part in the conversation purely literary in its character. A gentleman approached her with the remark, "You do not appear to be enjoying yourself." "No," said the lady, "This is too dry for me. Ain't there any one here that can flirt?" "Flirt," said he, "ah I see—you are a sort of Cleopatra in disguise." "Cleopatra! No," replied the intelligent beauty, "I never liked Indians!"

Greeley on Farming.

It is reported that Horace Greeley has got into a muss with a Texas editor. It appears that in an agricultural essay on tobacco, Mr. Greeley asserts that fine cut will not ripen well unless the tin foil is stripped from the growing buds early in the spring, and that plug tobacco ought to be knocked off the trees with clubs instead of being picked by hand. This the Texas editor said was nonsense, and Mr. Greeley, challenged him.

Outlawed

"I am sitting on the style, Mary," as the husband said, when he sat on his wife's new bonnet. For thirty years this appeared regularly among the "Wit and Humor" of the weekly press, and it would have appeared for thirty more, if the milliners hadn't got to making the wife's bonnet too small for the husband to sit on.

The First Bit.

Three little children fishing—two boys and a girl. Elder boy: "Oh, Johnny's got a bite!" Girl: "Oh! my sakes, and he's such a little boy—only reads the primer."

"I say Jones, that's a shocking bad hat of yours, why do you wear such a hideous thing?"—"Because my dear fellah, Mrs. Jones declares she will not go out of the house with me, till I get a better one."

Scare Among the Insurance Offices.

Since the heavy losses suffered by many large insurance companies from the Chicago fire, they are very careful as to what risks they assume. We know this because our baber only yesterday attempted to insure his shaving cups, brushes, razors and other trade implements for six hundred dollars, and the London and Liverpool Insurance Company did not like to take the risk. Well, there's nothing like being careful now a-days, its the last straw that breaks the camel's back. But they need not have made the pitiful excuse that "he had his shop in such a miserable old tinder box of a building, that they wouldn't insure him for any money.

Certainly!

Our friend Muffington's hair is a little thin on the top of his head and he likes to wear his hat in the the theatre to conceal the fact that he is bare-footed on the top. Last night an usher politely requested him to remove his head-covering, and Muffington writes to us to ask if we don't think "it was like his ush-urance."

Insinuating.

"Mar, why dont you speak?" asked little Jake. "why don't you say suthin' funny?" "What can I say, don't you see I'm busy frying doughnuts? Say suthin' funny indeed!" "Wal, yer might say, Jake won't yer hev a cake? that 'ud be funny fer you."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night Robert McWade will appear again in his original impersonation of "Rip Van Winkle." To-morrow evening he will take a benefit, and give the public a taste of his quality as an Irish comedian in the drama of "Rory O'Moore." The Dutch sketch of "Dick mit Dree Eyes" will form a part of the evening's entertainment.

Alhambra Theatre.

Billy Emerson's Drum Major is the talk of the town; Charley Howard is as indefatigable in his efforts to please the public as he is talented, and his comic songs, negro hymns, and funny stories in the first part, and his two acts in the afterpart are all received with great applause and laughter. Sheridan and Mack appear in their inimitable double character acts and dances; Miss Fanny Gibson's specialties are very popular, and altogether a great entertainment is given.

California Theatre.

"Kit" is so full of excitement, and the leading character is well played by Mr Chanfrau, that it is no wonder the California Theatre is crowded. The scenes on the steamer Medora, are startlingly sensational, and the poker game where Kit holds four aces and rakes the pile, brings forth a perfect storm of applause. "Kit" will be played every evening until further notice, and at the matinee on Saturday.

Bella Union.

In the first part performance the large audience always present at this popular variety theatre enjoy ballads, comic and sentimental, by Tommy Bree, Mat Kelly, May Leroy, Miss Josephine, C. Mathews and others; in the interlude the beautiful dances of M'lle Gangain; and a variety of acts, songs and dances. The entertainment concludes with the extravagantly funny play of "Woman's Rights" in which Aline Le Favre has made such a sensation.

Theatre Comique.

The screaming burlesque of "Schneider," entitled "Schneozer, or the Oakland Grocery Store" is received nightly with shouts of applause and laughter. As it must be taken off after this week to make way for other novelties, those who have not yet seen this very lively play in which Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers, Lizzie Harmon, E. G. Marsh and the Reynolds Brothers, all appear, should do so at once.

The Oxford.

To-night the spirited manager Charles Vincent who has so long presented a popular entertainment at this house will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit previous to commencing operations in a more extended field by opening the Globe Theatre. A great bill, including the very popular burlesque of Joe Murphy's "Help" entitled "Burning," will be presented. As the Oxford will close after to-night, many who have enjoyed pleasant evenings will like to be present on the last night and help to give Charley a bumper benefit.

Platt's Hall.

The concert given by the musicians of San Francisco in aid of the sufferers by the fires in Wisconsin and Chicago was, through not being properly advertised, a failure. The programme was an excellent one and was finely performed, and it is a matter of regret that so few were present to enjoy it.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

This theatre having been entirely renovated and refurnished and fitted up with new private boxes, new stage, spacious greenroom and retiring rooms, will be opened on Saturday night with an immense company whose names appear on our first page. Among them may be seen Harry Courtaine, R. H. Cox, R. G. Marsh, Charley Vincent, Leon Samwells, Horatio Nelson, Amelia Dean, Clara Starr, Sally Thayer, and a number of other old favorites; in addition to these are new candidates for public favor, including Signor Orosco, Signor Bernal, Signorita Realles and a Mexican ballet troupe of five dancesses, who are said to give a most extraordinary performance. The opening play will be "The Dumb Boy of Manchester." The full programme will shortly appear in FIGARO, which will of course be the house programme of this as of all other theatres in San Francisco.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillia Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Dei Gratia,

I went to the theatre last night or I should have felt aggrieved beyond the possibility of expressing myself, as I could not have witnessed the eighth wonder of this progessive age o'est a dire, the unexampled improvement in mechanical genius displayed in the home manufacture of the ladies' shoes purchased at KASTE Fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 322 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre. s

Concerning a Dictionary.

Who, that ever read it, has forgotten the irresistibly funny description of the career of a dictionary, which Mark Twain puts into the mouth of one Coon, "A nice, bald-headed man at the hotel in Angel's Camp," this State. It was to a request for the loan of a book to enliven a rainy day, that Coon replied:

"Well I've got a mighty responsible old Webster's Unabridged, what there is of it, but they started her sloshing around the camp before I got a chance to read her myself; and she went to Murphy's, and from there she went to Jackson Gulch, and now she's gone to San Andreas, and I don't expect I'll ever see that book again. But what makes me mad is that for all they're so handy about keeping her shashaying around from shanty to shanty, and from camp to camp, none of 'em got's good word for her. Now, Coddington had her a week and she was too many for him; he couldn't spell the words; he tackled them, regular busters, tow'rd the middle, you know, and they throwed him. Next Dyer he tried her a jolt but he couldn't pronounce 'em—Dyer can hunt quail and play seven-up as well as any man, understand? but he can't pronounce worth a cent; he used to worry along well enough though, till he'd flush one of them rattlers with a clatter of syllables as long as a string of sluice-boxes, and then he'd lose his grip, and throw up his hand. And so finally Dick Stoker harnessed her up in his cabin, and sweat over her, and wrestled with her for as much as three weeks, night, and day, till he got as far as B, and then passed her over to Lige Pickerell, and said she was the all finadest dryest reading that ever he struck."

A Woman of Experience.

A women-woman who has started a paper at Portland, Oregon, opens her salutatory with this sharp broadside: "We have served a regular apprenticeship of working—washing, scrubbing, patching, darning, ironing, plain sewing, milking, churning, and poultry-raising. We have kept boarders, taught school, taught music, written for the newspapers, made speeches, and carried on an extensive millinery and dressmaking business. We can prove by the public that this work has been done well. Now, having arrived at the age of 39, and having brought up a family of boys to set type, and a daughter to run the millinery store, we propose to edit and publish a newspaper, and we intend to establish it as one of the permanent institutions of the country."

American Officers in Egypt.

The statement has been made that the Khedive of Egypt had become weary of the American officers in his army, and meant to give them permanent leave of absence. A letter from one of them to a gentlemen in New York states that the story is "a blarsted British yarn, and the Khedive has given no intimation of any such purpose." The writer further says that his pay doesn't amount to much, but living is comparatively cheap, and it is as good a passport in modern Egypt to be an American citizen as it was in ancient days to be a citizen of Rome.

OCTOBER.

On the breath of fair October
Barest odors ever float;
All day long I hear the music
Of the robin's mellow note!

Singing soft his song of parting,
To the woods that smile "Return."
And the yellow maples glisten,
And the crimson sumachs burn.

All the air is filled with whispers,
Leaves are falling round my path;
And I feel, with all its sadness,
Sweeter charm the Autumn bath.

Than the freshness of the Spring-time,
Or the rosy bloom of June,
As I linger in the sunshine
Of the balmy afternoon!

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1864, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST,

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY INFORM those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in one of the most celebrated Hospitals in England, The London Lock Hospital.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Institute at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was so successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention or refer to here.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating what they cure; but to most persons my name will be sufficient to explain what DR. CHARLES TOZER attends to.

300 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Answers to Correspondents.

JENNY.—You were wrong in defining mosque as "a place where mosquitoes live."

ALICE.—We don't think that you can get a divorce from your husband on the ground that he misrepresented his position to you in calling himself a literary gentleman when he simply carried the Morning Call. Better comfort yourself with the reflection that he has to get up very early in the morning.

BOBBY.—We do think it was real mean of your school mistress to spank you because when she asked you what was the third part of two, you replied "a baby."

REPUBLICAN.—Yes, John Bright is as likely to be President of the Republic of England as any other man.

NOODLE.—Because condurango is good for cancer it does not follow that it is nice in crab salad.

CHRISTIAN.—We can hardly endorse your proposition that it should be compulsory on all the members of the police force to become also members of the Young Men's Christian Association. You see they have to mix with bad characters so much as it is.

Very Fine.

A contemporary says:

Elihu Burritt finely said, in a late address refering to the manifestations of sympathy in "the mother country" for the Chicago sufferers: "She asks to come into the fellowship of this great suffering; to bring her cruet of wine and oil to the aid and comfort of this fallen sister; to put an arm as tender as ours around her; to help us lift her up and put her on her feet again, enriched with the sympathy of both hemispheres."

Yes, that is very fine, particularly that part about the "cruet and oil;" but why leave out the pepper, vinegar and mustard? Let her bring the whole cruet-stand while she's about it.

Must Have Been There.

So full and accurate is the account in Tuesday's Chronicle of the proceedings in cell number nine in the Police Station, where the drunks are put, that we are forced to the conclusion that the reporter was there for some hours.

Incendiary Cows.

It was no doubt a cow that set fire to Butchertown the other night. Some one should sit up with those cows to watch them, or they will barbecue themselves some night.

The Perfect Woman.

Professor Fowler is going to lecture on "The Perfect Woman." A friend of ours was married the other day to this party, he says. Our friend is a perfect fool.

Madame Fleurier

Late of Madame Lafaix, having openened a Lace Establishment at 659 Market street, between New Montgomery and Third, solicits the patronage of her friends and the ladies of San Francisco. Lace Curtains washed and done up like new; also, all kinds of lace-work done at moderate prices. I

New Furnishing Goods,

Horrible Massacre in China!

Late news from China informs us of a horrible massacre of Americans in the small town of Lo Sang Eles, in the south of China. It appears that two Americans had some trouble and exchanged shots in the public streets, thus endangering the safety of the passers-by. The Chinese city authorities interfered and tried to arrest the disturbers of the peace, who took refuge in a part of the town where the Americans had their quarters and fired on the Chinese officers, killing one. The bloodthirsty fiends on this poured a volley into the houses, killing two American gentlemen and one American lady. Not satisfied with this, they entered the dwellings of the Americans and plundered them, and then hanged fifteen innocent Americans. It is hoped that the United States Government will demand prompt reparation for this outrage, and if it is refused and the perpetrators are allowed to escape unpunished, will declare war against China.

Fruit in England.

The Pall Mall Gazette thus complains of the scarcity of fruit in England:

"How small a percentage of the inhabitants of London have ever tasted a peach, for instance. Grapes are a luxury only within reach of the wealthy, and, except sour apples and oranges, the poorest classes have no fruit which they may call their own. For some reason or other, fruit appears to become more scarce each year in this country. Nectarines and apricots, once common, are now rarely seen, and in a few years will probably disappear altogether. The same may be said of hautboy strawberries, which a quarter of a century ago were as plentiful as gooseberries."

Too Kind.

E. C. Allen & Co., publishers of the People's Literary Companion and Our Young Folks' Illustrated paper, in Augusta, Me., kindly offer, if we will give them "a notice of about half a column in length," to send us both papers for a year. Well, now, really that is very kind. The desire of our life has been to have a Young Folks' Illustrated paper, and now Providence has sent it to us. We are going to write a column puff of these papers on the terms proposed some of these days; but not just at present—not just now. Try the Alta or the Call—they have more space to spare.

Ah Yes!

The editorial notist of the Alta says:

It is true that the faint-hearted wait long for their reward. If Joaquin Miller, the Oregon poet, who flashed his light on the world from the other continent, had waited for recognition in his own country he would still be obscure and struggling at the foot of the ladder of fame; but he boldly went to the older civilization, knocked at the doors of the established seats of learning, published his books in the very hot-bed of literary criticism, and—achieved success.

That's just it. Why doesn't the notist go to the "hot-bed of literary criticism," or some other warm place and get his talent recognized?

Complimentary.

This is the way in which the grateful Call talks of its advertisers:

Professor Occipital Surveyor Fowler will inflict himself on Oakland for a short period.

His advertisement in the Call has nearly run out. When there is nothing more to be got out of him he may expect something like this:

This old humbug, who has bled this city to the extent of some $20,000 by deluding silly women and feeling the soft heads of idiots with more money than brains, left for the East yesterday with his easily-gotten wealth, to inflict himself on some other equally credulous community.

In another column it will publish an editorial setting forth "The Advantages of Advertising in the Call."

Miss Carroll, Fashionable

Milliner, has removed from 24 Kearny street to 107 Third street, near Mission. Miss C. thanks her customers for past favors and hopes for a continuance of the same.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. The latest addition to Emerson's band of minstrels, S. Holdsworth, the Australian tenor, is nightly encored when he sings the charming ballad, "The good-bye at the door," and is already a great favorite. Billy Emerson in "If ever I cease to love," "The Drum Major," and other specialties, Charley Howard in the first part and two acts; and Postelle in dances delight large audiences nightly. A splendid matinee entertainment will be given to-morrow.

Bella Union.

M'lle Gwogsin, Aline Le Favre, Chris Mathews, Miss Lotta, and a host of other favorite performers will appear to-night in a programme of great attractiveness; new songs, dances, acts, character impersonations by J. H. Larkin and the very popular play of "Woman's Rights."

Theatre Comique.

The very amusing play of "Schnoozer, or the Oakland Grocery Store," with Lizzie Harmon as the seven-year-old Lowess, draws crowded houses. It will be repeated to-night in conjunction with a fine first part and amusing interlude. To-morrow evening the Lancashire Bell Ringers will make their first appearance.

The Oxford.

The season at this house closed in a lively manner last night. Charley Vincent, the manager, had a bumper benefit, and many of his friends assembled to wish him as good luck in the management of the Globe Theatre as he has met with at the Oxford.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

This theatre, which now presents a very handsome appearance, will be opened to-morrow night, with an immense company. The chief stars were mentioned in yesterday's issue. The full programme of the performance will appear to-morrow.

To Showmen.

The attention of showmen is directed to an advertisement in another column, where a very complete stereopticon, and dissolving view exhibitions is offered for sale.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Onsilila Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

A Sad Incident.

While the performance of "Don Juan" was progressing at the Academy of Music, New York, on the 16th inst., Mrs. Seguin received the tidings—wholly unanticipated—of the death of Mrs. Jennie Frodsham, a married daughter, who perished a victim to the consequences of the Chicago disaster, Mrs Seguin swooned on receipt of the sad news, and was removed to her dwelling amid a general expression of sympathy.

Heavy Infantry.

Saginaw county, Ill., according to the Chicago Times, rather prides itself on corpulent infants. The latest arrival kicks the beam at eighteen pounds, and when he inquires for the paregoric during the lone watches of the night, he can be heard with great distinctness at a distance of ten blocks.

It is Not

Because you wear cheap boots and shoes that you become crippled—it is because they do not fit properly; neither does a bad-fitting boot or shoe last so long by half the time as one made by a first-class cutter, such as is found at Kast's fashionable Shoe Store, Nos. 232 and 324 Bush street, opposite the Alhambra Theatre.

What Cheer Laundry

Is the best laundry in San Francisco;

A Timely Lesson.

It is said to be a difficult thing for a woman to get ready to go anywhere. And yet there is nothing she dislikes more than an intimation that she may possibly miss the train. Brayfogle gives an instance of this. Mr. Bray was to take the 10 o'clock train on the Bee-Line to visit some relatives in an interior town. Having suffered on previous occasions for injudicious suggestions, Bray thought that for once he would let things take their natural course. So he sipped his coffee and ate his eggs and toast, while Madame curled and powdered, and danced attendance on the looking-glass, and tied bark on the back of her head. Then Bray sat by the stove an hour and read the morning paper; madam still continued to get ready. At last, just as he reached the final paragraph of reading matter, and was beginning on the advertisements, Madame tied her bonnet strings under her chin, took one long, lingering, loving look at the image reflected in the glass, and sweetly announced:

"Well, my dear, I'm ready."

"Ready for what?" asked Bray, in well-affected astonishment.

"To go to the depot, to be sure," said Mrs. Brayfogle, tartly.

"Oh!" said Bray. "I'd forgotten; well, Madame, continued he, looking at his watch, that train has been gone thirteen minutes. Just keep on your things, and you'll be ready for the train to-morrow morning."

Remarkable Business Aptitude.

A young man who had become smitten with a Southwestern beauty, who was the daughter of a blooming widow, after a protracted courtship plucked up sufficient courage to propose, when the damsel replied: "I should be glad to accommodate you were I not already engaged; but mama wishes to marry, and I think she is just now without an engagement." The young man left for his childhood's home.

STEADFAST.

As one entranced will sometimes gaze afar
Into the deep blue night,
At the sweet radiance of some special star
That shines supremely bright;

His look concentered—all the rest unrecked,
Their glowing courses run;
Though by myriad gems the heavens are decked,
To him there is but one.

So I look up into a glorious face,
Into a calm, kind eye,
Radiant with queenly nobleness and grace,
Clear as a cloudless sky;

Not bright, as brooks that o'er the shallows roll,
But, oh! so pure and deep,
With fathom'less serenity of soul,
Like ocean in a sleep.

There might be faces fifty times as fair,
O, dear-loved lady mine!
But though there were, I'd neither know nor care—
I'm blind to all but thine.

A Parisian vagabond who was questioned by the authorities as to his means of support, lately, replied that he was a manufacturer of souvenirs. He passed his time in firing bullets against a brick wall, and selling them afterward for a franc a piece.

Every Man, Woman

And child in San Francisco is indebted today to JOHN C. BELL, for the low prices of Carpets. For the last twenty years he has kept them at such a price that anyone could afford to buy. Everybody remembers A. D. 1854, on Clay street, still exists nearly opposite the Grand Hotel, on Market street.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

Below Montgomery Block.

FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 27, 1871

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

An Intelligent Reader.

Our account of the massacre in the town of Lo Sang Eles in China, has brought forth the following:

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16, 1871.

EDITORS FIGARO:—I was greatly shocked in reading in your issue of this date an account of a horrible massacre in China, wherein 15 innocent Americans were hanged by the Chinese. I had just been reading an account of 15 innocent Chinese hung by Americans at Los Angeles. Now, as you advise the Government of the United States to demand prompt reparation, and, if it is not made to declare war against China, how would it do if the Chinese Government should take the same view. The two cases are as much alike as could possibly be, and would make a perfect set off, one against the other. IMPARTIAL.

Well, now we come to read the two accounts together there is a little resemblance. "Impartial" has a discriminating eye and his sentiments do honor to his manly soul.

Shocking Deception.

A few days ago an individual called on Professor Fowler at his rooms and requested him to make a phrenological examination of his head. The Professor went to work, felt his bumps, touching acquisitiveness lightly, and making the most of conscientiousness, toning down destructiveness and exalting benevolence, calling amativeness philoprogenitiveness, and secretiveness, cautiousness, and altogether making the best of a very bad case. When the examination was concluded, the Professor named his fee and the individual replied, "I'll give you a notice in the Morning Binnacle." The Professor was ready to faint. It was the worst head he had examined for many years but he did not think he had been wasting his time in feeling the bumps of a dead-head.

Sad Disappointment.

It is very disappointing after waiting for years for a man to die in order that you may marry his widow to find that he has made a will providing for his property to go to someone else in the event of her marrying again. It is mean. It would be much more generous to leave a rich widow to make same poor fellow happy.

Decency Forbid.

A Dutchman at Decatur, married a second wife in a week after the loss of No. 1. The Sabbath following the bride asked her lord to take her riding, and was duly "cut up" with the following response: "You dink I ride out mit anoder voman, in so soon after death of mine frau? No, no!"

They did have sacred Sunday evening concerts in Buffalo, until the chief of police heard them singing, "Rip-bang-Johnny."

It Hurts their Feelings.

A contemporay says:

Edgar M. Chipman, a member of the Philadelphia bar was fined $25 for contempt of court at the last quarter sessions there, for declaring that a witness on the stand was guilty of perjury. This is a prompt protection for a class whose rights and feelings have hitherto been very little respected by the limbs of the law.

Yes indeed. There are many persons in this city who are dependent on perjury for a living and they are constantly having their feelings hurt by remarks such as that above mentioned.

Come, Come!

Will the Alta make up its mind what particular fight the bar-room scene in Kit is intended to represent? First it told us that it was that in which Billy Mulligan was shot and in Wednesday's paper it says, "it is said to have been intended to represent that in which Reddy, the Blacksmith, figured as a principal in Philadelphia." To-morrow we suppose it will represnt some other scene.

Just So.

Some years ago in a lecture before a Press Club, Horace Greeley said:

It is strange how closely men read the newspapers. We never say a thing that anybody don't like but we soon hear of it, and everybody tells us about it. But if once in a while we say a good thing, we never hear of that—nobody seems to take notice of that. We may pay some man a hundred compliments and give him a hundred puffs, and he takes it as a tribute to his greatness, and never thinks of it—never thinks it does him any good. But if we happen to say anything that is very mean don't like, or something he imagines is a reflection on him or his character, see how quick he flares up and gets mad about it. All our evil is duly charged to us, but we never, apparently, get any credit for what good we do.

A Christian Community.

They are a nice lot down in Los Angeles. The Star incidentally remarks:

For several days an unknown man has been lying sick and disabled in an open lot, between Aliso and Sansevain streets. He was lying there at 9 o'clock last night, and should be taken care of.

These angelic people who hang innocent Chinamen and let sick men die in their streets, sent money for the relief of the Chicago sufferers!

Wants to Know.

One of our citizens, who is curious on statistics as given in the newspapers, wants to know if there has been a fire in Chicago lately. He says that he has read 943 accounts of a "conflagration" there, 1,421 dispatches about the "fire fiend" visiting the Garden City, and over a thousand items in relation to "unparalleled disasters," but not a word to show there has been a fire in that place.—Corinne Reporter.

A Quiet Hint.

A Clergyman having preached several times in a small town, in which he had not once been invited to dinner, said in seriously exhorting his hearers against being seduced by the prevalent vices of the age, "I have preached against every vice but luxurious living, having had no opportunity of observing to what extent it was carried on in this town."

The Devil Roused.

We raised the devil by publishing that protest of the fire fiend last week, and his Satanic majesty wrote last Tuesday to his especial organ, the Oakland News:

I don't get mad for people calling me the devil, and, to vex me the more they call me the printer's devil at that! You never hear of me cutting up monkey shines; you never see me setting people's houses on fire when they are all in bed; you never see me getting into the mullygrubs when I am abused, and brow-beaten, and tossed about the world from one end to the other by my inferiors. No, sirree! Nothing of the sort. You boast of warming people in Winter, etc. Confound your impudence! You can't help that! It is your nature to be a burning fire brand, and, if you were not watched, why, instead of affording comfort, you would soon set us all in a blaze, and you know it you rascal. There now, don't be glaring at me with those terrible eyes! You needn't try to "skeer" me. It is Fiend versus Devil this this time, and if the devil can do what he likes with his own, you must remember I have you in my power, for you are my creature. I survive the wreck you have made in Chicago—I checked your career in San Francisco last Saturday—I proclaim your secret thoughts—I cry aloud, Police! Police! And your petty agents are hung up from the lamp posts, or else shot down like dogs, or flung into the penitentiary to pine away their days in misery, cursing their luck in having anything to do with you. Whereas, I, on the contrary gave a comfortable living to thousands, and don't get my dorsal concern erected in cat-fashion when they nickname me "Devil," like you, you old blear-eyed back-sliding, hump-backed, broken-horned, cloven-footed Fire Fiend, you!

We are sorry that the Devil should lose his temper in this way. We always thought him a very pleasant gentleman. Of course it is useless to try to fight the Devil with fire, but we must say that he may be responsible for the mild, benificent agent, Fire, being so often called the Fire-fiend, by sending him on a bender.

Free.

A visitor from Hartford to Martha's Vineyard camp ground, who had been suffering from the exorbitant charges made for everything during "meetin' week," such as $4 a day for board, $2 for breakfast, etc., was strolling past the societies' tents (which encircled the tabernacle) where meetings were being held. Just as he was passing one the voice of an exhorter was heard: "Salvation's free! salvation's free!" He stopped and said: "I'll take some of that; it's the only thing I've heard of since I've been here that I have'nt had to pay a big price for."

Weak.

Said an ambitious youth to a young lady, "Don't you think I'd better dye my moustache?"—caressing the faintly visible progeny. "I think if you will let it alone it will die itself," said the lady.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

LETTER FROM SACRAMENTO.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 27, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Johnny Allen, the original "Schneider," made his first appearance in his great specialties of that name at the Metropolitan Theatre last Monday night, and has performed in the same play the entire week, a fact that speaks well for the piece and its merits. The audiences have been large and fashionable, and Allen's impersonation is highly praised by the press and public. His dialect is natural, while his songs and dances are inimitable. As for Alice Harelson, she is simply "immenze," and fully shares the honors with Mr. Allen. Her voice is remarkably sweet and powerful, while her terpsichorean feats (no pun) are marvels of grace and ease.

"Schneider" was well placed on the stage, and very creditably performed. It is a drama of interest, and will surely please every body, being equal if not superior, to all the sensational dialect plays that now exists.

Mr. Allen and Miss Herr son appear in Virginia City on the 31st inst. at Piper's Opera House, and from there they go to Salt Lake City, and then return to 'Frisco.

Vivian, Mrs. Bates, and a portion of Proctor's company, have been playing in Marysville and Stockton the past week, and have been doing good business. They return next Monday, 30th.

Callie Curtis, the champion skater, and Billy Burt have been engaged by Manager Proctor, and will also appear on Monday.

New Furnishing Goods,

LETTER FROM TOLEDO.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

TOLEDO, (OHIO), Oct 17th 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—Since the great fire in Chicago, theatrical business has been very lively here. A large audience greeted the Lingards at White's Hall on the 11th, when the versatile Lingard was the feature of the evening. His representations of living men, drew unqualified praise. In the play of "Naval Engagements" and "Marriage at Any Price" each member of the company gave great satisfaction.

The Lingards were followed by Miss Fanny B. Price and a dramatic company, playing an engagement at White's Hall of three nights, Oct. 12th, 13th and 14th, on the 13th she played in "Nobody's Daughter," taking the part of Jennie Wilson Lady Eversleigh and Madame Bonse: (?) in the play, Miss Price showed herself a star, and gave great satisfaction; on the 14th she had a very full house. The company left from here to play an engagement in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

On Monday the 16th White's Hall was full again to witness the Royal Satsuma Japanese Troupe. At the close of the entertainment, the audience went home with a pleasing smile, saying to each other: "Well they are the same J ps that were here a short time ago." White's Hall will be taken again to-night by Manning's Minstrels, playing here for two nights, 17th and 18th.

FIELDING'S OPERA HOUSE

Is doing a capital business, in consideration of the many entertainments to buck against. The company are all number one. The great attraction are Messrs. Torner and Lester, the great song and dance men. These gentlemen in their line of business are by far the best ever seen in this part of the country. Mr. John Keegan and Billy Warner the end men, are good, and give nightly a new lot of gags; Miss Dollie Sherman is good in dances; Mr. Joe Mabbott is nightly encored in his songs, and Miss Lottie Hamilton the charming vocalist, delights the audience with selections from her extensive repertoire of songs. Many compliments are due to Frank West for his good management of the stage. John and Maggie Fielding are taking a rest after their tiresome Western tour.

There are several good hotels in this city, but there is one which merits more than a passing notice, The American. It is located in the very heart of the business part of the city, and has attained a most popular reputation. In addition to the excellencies of the outfit and cuisine, the house is especially fortunate in having a gentlemanly and accomodating clerk, Mr. Robert Barr well known to the traveling community. We Toledoians are rather proud of the "American."

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. •

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—"Rip Van Winkle will be played this afternoon and evening, and to-morrow evening for the last time. The play differs so much from that which has before been presented, and Mr. McWade's conception of the character of Rip is so original that all should see it before it is withdrawn. On Monday the drama of "Rory O'Moore" will be presented, together with the afterpiece of "Dick mit Dree Eyes." Peep O'Day Boys is underlined for speedy production.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The first part performance, with the fine voices of Holdsworth, M. Ainsley Scott, Gustave Bidaux and Arthur Stanley in sentimental ballads, and Billy Emerson and Charley Howard in comic ditties, is very pleasing. Sheridan and Mack appear in their very neat and artistic songs and dances, Billy Emerson in his great act of "The Drum Major," Miss Fanny Gibson in song and dance, Fostelle in graceful pas seuls, and that most amusing of old darkeys, Charley Howard in two screaming acts. The same full programme as is performed in the evening will be given at the matinee to-day.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE. — The sensational drama of "Kit," which has made an immense hit will be performed at the matinee today and again this evening. Mr. Chanfrau's impersonation of Kit, the rough Western hunter, is an admirable bit of character acting. The play is full of sensation; the scenery is very fine, and the cast a very strong one. As "Kit" must shortly be withdrawn in order to make way for other of Mr. Chanfrau's specialties, those who have not yet seen it should do so at once.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—A great bill has been prepared for Saturday night at this most popular of variety theatres. M'lle Gaugain, the charming danseuse; Miss Lotts, the pleasing ballad-ist; J. B. Larkee, the Dutch character actor; Chris. Mathews, the very amusing Ethiopian comedian and clog dancer; Johnny Manning, comic vocalist; Miss Josephine, the song and dance artist, and a number of others appear in the first part, and interlude, and the performance concludes with the uproariously mirthful extravaganza of "Woman's Rights," with the sparkling [illegible] as Mrs. Brownjohn, the pattie little Miss [illegible], Hillmore as the Lord Dundreayish Hon. Aug. [illegible], comedy, ballet, and the other characters in good hands [illegible] business. The [illegible]

THE COMIQUE.—To-night in addition to [illegible] Callie Curtis and other attractions, including the very [illegible] burlesque of "Schneider," which is receiving [illegible] nightly with peals of merriment, the Lan[illegible] Bell Ringers of whose sweet music the [illegible] public had only a slight taste at the Metropolitan Theatre, will make their first appearance at the Theatre Comique this evening.

VINCENT'S GLOBE THEATRE. — To-night, after weeks of preparation, Vincent's Globe Theatre, at the corner of Pacific and Kearny streets, will be opened to the public. The theatre has been newly decorated and refitted with handsome private boxes and comfortable seats, and presents a bright and cheerful appearance. The programme for the opening night is a very attractive one. After a capital first part, in which many old favorites will appear, the Mexican wonders, Senors Orosco and Bernal, and Senorita Realles, will appear in a performance of the most extraordinary nature. Next, Charley Vincent will appear in his specialties; Harry Courtaine is announced to appear in his sketch of "Tommy and Sally," with Miss Amelia Dean; Geo. Lowden will sing new songs; Messrs. Moss and Price will perform a double clog dance; the famous acrobat, Leon Samwells, will appear in his globe act, and a number of songs, dances and acts will be presented. Then comes an overture, after which Señor Barreti will present new feats of legerdemain and other performances will be given. Señor Bernal and Señorita Realles will appear in a Ballet de Coco; the "old war horse" of the stage, Sally Thayer, will sing one of her original comic songs; Johnny Reilly and Price will appear in double song and dance; Hugby Morton in Irish and local songs; Señorita Realles in Spanish songs, and the entertainment will conclude with the attractive play of "The Dumb Boy of Manchester" the full cast of which will be found on our first page.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—It is too bad to go to bed on such lovely nights as we are enjoying now Better far take a fast team with a pretty girl and spin along the road to the Cliff House, where Captain Foster will get up a splendid supper at short notice. Those who cannot afford a team can visit this delightful sea-side resort by Lone Mountain cars and omnibus.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—There is not within miles of this city a more delightful spot than the groves of San Rafael. The steamer Contra Costa will leave the wharf on Davis street, near Vallejo, to-morrow at 10½ A. M., on an excursion.

KELLY & LEON.—These famous performers who for the past fifteen years, have delighted the citizens of New York, have been induced by the offer of a small fortune to visit San Francisco and institute here a season of those burnt cork operas bouffes for which they have become celebrated. They will commence the engagement at the Alhambra Theatre on Monday, November 6th. They left New York, last Wednesday, and will arrive here on Tuesday next.

"POVERTY FLAT."—McClosky's last play, "Poverty Flat," has been written expressly for Harry Cunningham, actor, politician, and member of the bar. We fancy that McClosky will have to re-name his play, as Fred Lyster sent on to Washington to copyright that title for a dramatization of the same poem, which he completed about a month ago.

"READY."—Fred Lyster has sold to Manager Ford, of Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, the right to produce his California play of Ready in those cities for $150 per week—not a bad price for a California production.

MME. JEAL'S CIRCUS.—Mr. Griffith, agent of Mme Jeal's Circus, is in town and states that the company will arrive here about the 10th of November, and will open for a short season.

THE OPERA SEASON to be given here by Kellogg, announced with such a flourish of trumpets, appears to have been a canard gotten up by some Eastern paper. We bit at it.

OLIVER DOUD BYRON and his "Across the Continent," will be the next attraction after Chanfrau, at the California Theatre.

OPENING OF THE VIRGINIA CITY SEASON.—Manager Piper, of Piper's Opera House, has been in town all the week making arrangements for the Fall and Winter season. His theatre will open on Tuesday evening with Johnny Allen and Miss Alice Harrison,—with 'Schneider" of course—as the first star attraction. John McCullough, assisted by James Carden will follow. They will be succeeded by Chanfrau, and he by Miss Anette Ince. The company, which will leave to-morrow morning, will consist of Wm. Barry, Harry Sinclair and wife, Pierpont Thayer, Frank Wilton and wife, Willie Simms, F. Cleaves, R. A. J. Wilson, Miss Nellie Cummings, Miss Eva West. Billy Robinson and others now in Virginia City will join the company there. This is a good stock company, capable of producing almost every variety of business, and with good star attractions and lively times at Virginia City, Manager Piper may look forward to a successful and profitable season.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

OLYMPIA, W. T.—Olympia, the Northermost town in United States Territory, does not boast a theatre, but it has a Glee Club, as we are informed by the Cyclop, a bright little two page paper lately started. The other day the Olympia Glee Club were arrested and fined for contempt of Court. The Court was in session, and in the story below was the Glee Club singing. The Judge sent a polite request that the noise should cease, and the request was not complied with. Hence the arrest and fine.

STOCKTON.—The Proctor dramatic troupe with Mrs. F. M. Bates as leading lady, commenced an engagement in conjunction with Vivian, in character songs on Thursday. They give a matinee to-day and close the season of three nights this evening. The tableaux of the Apocalypse were exhibited at Mozart Hall on Sunday and Monday.

ALBANY, OR.—It is very silly of wandering show men to neglect to pay their printing bills. This is what the last professional visitors to Albany got from the Register:

BILLS.—We refer now especially to the Gen. La Vega troupe and Prof. Valentine, the magician. They have printing bills still unsettled at this office. Brethren of the press, demand your pay in advance of these trifling vagabonds, or you will lose your time, paper and ink.

Professor Valentine tried the same little game in Salem, but was stopped when about to leave.

MARYSVILLE.—Proctor's dramatic troupe from Sacramento, with the Great Vivian, gave a season of three nights at the Marysville Theatre, commencing on Monday. Mrs. F. M. Bates was well spoken of by the papers, and Vivian delighted everyone.

SALT LAKE.—Miss A. Adams took a benefit on the 20th, when "Rocambole" was played.....The Royal Yeddo Troupe of Japs were engaged to give seven performances, including a matinee, commencing on the 22d.

PORTLAND, ORG.—A concert in aid of the Chicago Relief Fund was given at the Skating Rink on Friday the 20th, by "the combined musical elements of Portland," including the Tyrolean Warblers. The Cogill and Cooper Minstrels closed at Oro Fino Theatre on the 21st. The Academy of Music was running with a variety company.

MCMINVILLE, OR.—The cheerful inhabitants of McMinville have some amusement. Miss Susan B. Anthony lectured them the other day, and a local paper says: "Schultz, the highwayman and escaped convict, has been converted to her doctrines."

PETALUMA.—A prize tableaux exhibition and concert will be given at the Theatre this evening. Three oil paintings will be giving as prizes to the best tableau artistes.

COLUSA.—The Colusa Amateurs gave their first entertainment at Wood's Hall, and the Sun says it was quite a success.

VALLEJO.—A concert was given at Farragut Hall on Thursday evening, for the benefit of the St Augustine's College Band.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Johnny Allen will appear at Piper's Opera House in "Schneider" on Monday.

GOLD HILL, NEV.—Miss Carrie M. Field gave Shaksperian readings at Theatre Hall last night.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York the amusements for the week ending Oct. 23d were as follows: "Eileen Ogee" running to crowded houses at the Grand Opera House "Humpty Dumpty" drawing well at the Olympic; "Streets of New York" at Niblo's up to the 23d when Sothern made his appearance in "Our American Cousin;" at Wallack's, Charles Mathews made his first appearance on the 16th in the plays of "A Curious Case" and "A Game of Speculation;" at the Academy of Music "Don Giovanni" was presented on the 16th with the three prima donnas, Parepa-Rosa, Van Zandt and Torriani; at Booth's Charlotte Cushman in "Macbeth;" "Divorce" still running at the Fifth-avenue; Steinway Hall, debut of Mrs. Moulton on the 18th; St. James' Theatre opened by John E. McDonough on the 22d. The company comprises Miss Susan Galton, Soprano; Miss Clara Vernon, contralto; Miss Standley, vocalist and comedienne; A. Keller, Charles Mason, O. P. Sweet, and others. Mr. Edmund P. Davies, from the Royal Polytechnic Institute, London, has been engaged. Theatre Comique reopened on the 16th under the management of Josh Hart. Charles White, the Wheeler Troupe, Kitty O'Neil, the champion jig and clog dancer; James Clark, Irish comedian and others in the company; San Francisco Minstrels doing "splendid business as usual; Wachtel, the German tenor, an immense success at the Stadt Theatre; Dan Rice's Paris Pavilion well attended; Wood's Museum, "The Octoroon," with J. L. Hall, Mrs. J. L. Hall, Louise Arnot, Jenny Arnot, all well-known here, in the cast; Union Square Theatre, Leffingwell, Ashcroft and Morton, H. Daugherty, Rattler and DeAngelis and Geo. H. Coes, in a variety entertainment; Bowery, Joe Murphy in "Help;" Globe Theatre opened under the management of John Stetson, with the following company; Miss Adah Richmond, burlesque artist and vocalist; Robert Hart, Ethiopian comedian, his first appearance during four years; Harrigan and Hart, song and dance men; Gus Williams, comic, the Boston quartette, consisting of H. Frail, Byron George, H. Murdoch and C. H. Henry; El Nino Eddie, tight rope, Johnson and Powers, song and dance; the Misses Lillie Hall, burlesque artists; Elise Scott, Ada Boshell, and Julia Melville, burlesque artists and dancers; Geo Atkins and N. D. Jones, comedians. At Tony Pastor's, Peter Cannon, the Irish patter vocalist, has made a great success; Adele Farren is a favorite in semi-comic songs; at Bryant's Minstrels, business is so-so; Louis Braham is engaged there as tenor.

Of amusements in Brooklyn, the Sporting Times and Theatrical News, says: "The Trail of the Serpent," one of McCloskey's last and most successful efforts has held the boards at the Park Theatre during the past week to fair business. This play, which is less sensational than the most of Mr. C.'s other productions, was made the most of by C. W. Couldock as David Coulton, a part which was interpreted with great success.....At the Brooklyn Theatre Mrs. W. H. Leighton made her first appearance in "Married Life" and "Sketches in India," and was well received, particularly in the character of Sally Scrarge.

A new variety theatre under the title of Metropolitan Theatre was opened at Springfield, Ill., on the 5th inst., under the management of Messrs. Kraft & Co.

In Boston, Edwin Booth will make his first appearance in two years, in "Hamlet," at the Boston Theatre.....At the Museum, Hailiday's new play, "Great Expectations," was produced for the first time in this country on the 16th; it was followed by "Daisy Farm."....At the Globe, "Divorce" was produced on the 18th. ....The Howard Athenæum opened the week commencing on the 16th with twelve new stars: Olivia Rand, our California-taught artiste, the Raynor Brothers, three in number, Charles Gardner, an ethiopian minstrel, and others.....At the St. James, Yankee Locke, Sallie Mason, Jule Keen, Harry Brown and others in a variety entertainment. Adra Wray is a great favorite; she is pretty, and plays the banjo.

Miss Sallie Mason in her serio-comic songs and specialties is one of the leading attractions at the St. James Theatre, Boston.

Miss Emma Waller's new theatre, Troy, N. Y., will be opened about the first of November.

We don't often hear of any amusements in Yankton, Dakotah Territory, but an amateur dramatic entertainment was given on the 19th for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers.

Another Rip Van Winkle has turned up in New Haven, under the name of W. P. Sheldon.

An Eastern paper says:

Mr. Wheatleigh is about starring it in "Elfie," playing the role therein assigned to Mr. Stoddart, at Wallack's.

Isn't it about time for Mr. Wheatleigh to pay us a visit with some new play, or has he quite thrown off on California?

Miss Helen Tracy is back again in the company at Wallack's.

John Brougham has sold the sole proprietorship of his play of "The Red Light" to Edwin Adams.

The New Opera House now being constructed at Providence, R. I., will be opened on or about Dec. 1st. It is intended it shall be one of the handsome-t theatres in this country. William Henderson, formerly a manager in Pittsburg, has secured a long lease of it, and advertises for a company.

Billy Birch having learned that Old Dan Emmett the veteran minstrel, author of 'Dixie" and many popular minstrel airs had lost all in Chicago, immediately telegraphed him that he would receive money by first express, and in a few moments on Sunday collected among the minstrels he chanced to meet $52. Ten of which were contributed by J. K. Emmett, the famous "Fritz," who used to wear the cork.

At the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, Edwin Forrest concluded the second week of his very successful engagement on the 13th.

Miss Maggie Mitchell(Mrs. Paddock) presented her husband with a bouncing boy, on Oct. 4th, at Long Branch, N. J.

Lotta appeared in her new four-act play entitled "Rainbow," written for her by Mr. R. Rendell, of New York, on the 23d, at the Arch-street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Little Nell commenced an engagement at Toronto, Canada, on the 16th.

The Parepa-Rosa Opera Troupe were to commence on the 23d inst. a season of twelve nights and two matinees at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia,

Annie Hindle, a character vocalist of the Ella Wesner school, was at Len Chapin's Varieties, Scranton, Pa., on the 17th.

Christine Nilsson gave $1,000 to the Chicago sufferers.

The Atlas says of Mrs. Plessy Mordaunt, who made her first appearance in America at Wallack's in the "Jealous Wife:"

Miss Mordaunt has a face of impressive beauty; her form is one of luxuriant shapeliness, with a pleasing exuberance in the vicinity of the upper hem of the corsage. As Mrs. Oakly, she displayed the qualities which only artists of culture and experience possess. She was warmly applauded throughout the play on Monday, and was greeted with equal cordiality on the following evening.

Up to October 18th, E. T. Stetson was performing in the drama of "Neck and Neck" at the Fifth Avenue Opera House, Pittsburg. The Lydia Thompson Troupe are to appear at the Academy of Music, on Nov. 6th.

Lester Wallack gave $1,000 to the Chicago sufferers, Edwin Forrest $500, and other members of the profession large sums. All the theatres in New York devoted the receipts of one night to the same purpose.

Johnny Thompson, the Lively Fraud, was at Albany, N. Y., on the 14th. The Albany people think he can do a good song and dance, but outside that and being able to play many instruments, doesn't amount to much. He might do for the conductor of an orchestra; he ought to be able to beat time—he can "beat" anything or anybody.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England and France.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his management, which is unnecessary to mention in this paper.

I am aware that some of the sharks in San Francisco make a practice of stating that they cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Stage Names.

There is something rather funny in the Italianizing of the harsh Northern names of operatic artists, by which they try to disguise their nationality. They differ in opinion from Miss Julia Capulet as to the importance of a name. Thus Mrs. Vanzant masquerades as Signora Vanzini; and we remember once seeing in the list of bankrupts in the London Gazette this announcement: "Mr. John Whittle, vocalist, commonly called Signor Giovanni da Vitelli." When Miss Duckworth took to the stage her name was impracticable in any point of view, and so she took the name of Mademoiselle Montmorenci, to which she had as much right, we believe, as Piccolomiani, the little saucy prima donna, who did not know how to sing, had to take that illustrious name; she being the daughter, it was said, of a Roman butcher. But as Montmorenci was rather too long and mouth filling a word, it has been abbreviated into Morenci, by which style and title she is now known.

A New Gem.

A Bible class in Vermont was asked to name the precious stones named in the Bible. After several scholars had given answers one little fellow was called out. "Well, Thomas, what precious stones have you found?" "Brimstone," answered Tom. It is needless to say that a number of handkerchiefs were called into requisition to choke down the "depraved human nature" that seethed desirous of manifesting itself in laughter.

Rather Logical.

Cecil (who is in the habit of surreptitiously dissecting his sister's dolls.)—"O, aunty! I declare if here isn't a great big 'normous heap of sawdust! How very, very dreadful!" Aunt.—"Dreadful, darling! Why?" Cecil.—"Why, the lots of men and women that must have been killed here, you know!"

Debut of Nilsson in Opera.

Believing to a certain extent the criticisms of the press—always excepting those of the New York Herald—as even the most experienced writers do, we thought that the appearance of M'lle Nilsson in opera was of sufficient importance, from an art point of view, to warrant our visiting Boston in person, to be present on the occasion. The European papers were nearly unanimous in their praise of Nilsson as an operatic singer; they recorded with enthusiasm her interpretation of several characters, placing her upon the highest pinnacle of art, in the roles of "Ophelia" and "Mignon," which she created. The public endorsed the glowing eulogies of the press, and Nilsson became a shining light in the same hemisphere where the stars, Patti, Tietjens, and Lucca already shone for the world's admiration, if not its adoration.

There seemed to be no opposition to her claim to this position, for all who heard her abroad brought home the strongest endorsement of her right to be classed among the greatest artists of the operatic world.

Our estimation of her as a concert singer, is pretty generally known. We expressed it earnestly and without reserve, and assuredly without prejudice or animosity. Whether our judgment was correct or not, it was entirely honest; it has had its defenders and its opponents, and still it is simply a record. The great public steps in, ignores all individual opinion, and makes or unmakes an artist according to its pleasure. The gratification of the taste is the measure of success, and taste is so uncertain a standard in a young country, that great success by no means implies great excellence.

Having faith, to a certain extent, as we have before said, in the European criticisms, we believed that we should find Nilsson great as a dramatic vocalist. We witnessed her impersonation of Margarita, in "Faust," and admit that we were very greatly disappointed; but there were such unquestionable evidences of power in her conception of the character, that we determined to reserve our judgment until we had seen her in other roles, and once more in "Faust."

We shall review the week's performance in our next issue, but in the meantime we will state that Nilsson has fully maintained her claim to be called a great lyric artist, and we very heartily accord our highest admiration. —Watson's Art Journal.

Obeying Orders.

A painter was employed in painting a New York clipper ship in the river, suspended on a stage under the stern. The captain, who was going ashore in a boat, ordered a green boy to let go the painter. The boy instantly went aft and let go the rope by which the painter's stage was held. The captain, surprised at the delay, cried out: "Ho, you lazy lubber! why don't you let go the painter?" The boy replied, "He's gone, sir, pet and all."

The Willow.

The first willow tree ever planted in America was set out on the line of the present Third Avenue, New York city, one hundred and eighty years ago. It was a willow twig which came in a package of figs from Palestine; was stuck into the ground, and in a few years became a large tree.

Madame Vanzini.

Watson's Art Journal says of Madame Vanzini, of the Parepa-Rosa English Opera Troupe:

Mad. Vanzini has a soprano voice of charming quality,—rich, clear, and pellucid as a bell. In the upper register its timbre is perfect: the lower register, from re below the line to si on the third line, is not so resonant, still, it will answer all the requirements made upon it by a soprano, but in quality or quantity it cannot compare with the upper part. Her execution is facile, brilliant, and effective,—perhaps a little exaggerated at times, but that was owing, no doubt, to the excitement caused by the re-appearance in her native land after so many years absence. Her acting and by-play seemed to be marred by the same cause. Her gestures are graceful and emphatic, and there cannot be a doupt that after two or three performances all those minor faults will disappear.

In appearance she is very charming. She has an oval face; large, dark, expressive eyes, coils of dark hair, lovely mouth, and a fascinating smile, and dresses in excellent taste. So that, beyond all question, Madame Vanzini's debut can be pronounced a perfect success.

Humping Stuff.

A gentleman traveling in Tennessee, just after the close of the war, overheard the following conversation between two women of that country, who had been to town and were returning home on the cars: No. 1—"What has you in that paper?" No. 5—"Soda." No. 1—"Soda! what's soda?" No. 2—"Why don't you know what soda is? that ere stuff what you puts in biskits that makes 'em git up and hump themselves."

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

This evening Robert McWade, whose impersonation of "Rip Van Winkle" during last week, proved him to be a finished character actor, will give evidence of his versatility by playing the character of Rory O'Moore in the drama of that name. The piece will be presented with a strong cast, which may be found in full on our first page. After this, Mr. McWade will appear in his original burlesque of "Richard III," entitled "Dick mit Dree Eyes," and will, if what we have heard be true amply satisfy those who delight in "funny" Dutch Impersonations. This very attractive entertainment should draw a large audience, and doubtless will do so. Seats may be reserved today at the box office without extra charge.

California Theatre.

The very exciting play of "Kit," which drew large houses every night of last week, will be played for two nights more and possibly longer. Those who have not yet seen Chanfrau in his great character of the Arkansas backwoodsman should do so at once. Every character in the play is well filled: Miss May Howard Miss Minnie Walton, J. C. Williamson, Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer, and others acting their parts to perfection.

Alhambra Theatre.

This week will be the last of the Emerson Minstrels, as next week Kelly and Leon will commence a season at this house, while the Emersonians go to delight the inhabitants of the cities in the interior. A very attractive programme containing many new features, has been arranged. Among them may be mentioned the descriptive song, "Wrecked and Saved," by S. Holdsworth, the popular tenor; the ever-popular act of "Old Times Rocks," by Billy Emerson and M. Ainsly Scott; "Before the Dawn," a new and original act written by Hugby Robinsen for Sheridan and Mack, and the capital sketch of "Nitro Glycerine," by the inimitable Charley Howard. The full programme appears on our first page.

Bella Union.

A great bill has been prepared for the amusement of the patrons of this very popular place of amusement this week. The management announce the first appearance of M'lle Eugenie Garretta in her graceful act of revolving spheres and of Edward Montague, the unrivalled gymnast, in his act entitled "The Aerial Sprite;" M'lle Gangain will appear in beautiful dances; Johnny Manning in character songs; J. H. Larkin in his popular Teutonic sketches, and all the old favorites in a varied programme of songs, dances and amusing acts. The performance will conclude with the spectacular extravaganza of "The Amazons," with the fascinating Aline Le Favre as Prince Vinna, Minnie Corbyn as Dodo, queen of the Amazons; Mat Kelly as King Doughead, Minnie Fillmore as Primrosia, his daughter; Harry Thompson as Nizzle Noddle, Johnny Manning as as Queen Fuss-and-feathers, Chris Mathews as Pauncho, J. H. Larkin as Blunderbuss, May Leroy as Aquilla, and Fanny Garretson as Old Fisha. The piece will be produced with gorgeous costumes, beautiful tableaux and fine scenery.

Theatre Comique.

The rush to see the amusing burlesque of "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store," continues unabated. The Lancashire Bell Ringers who made their first appearance on Saturday night are great favorites, and the audience never weary of the sweet music of the bells. The act of the Four Jinkers, by George and Charles Reynolds, Johnny Tuers and Harry Howard, causes screams of laughter; Little Maggie Knight has made a hit in her character song of "The Unprotected Female;" and Johnny Roberts, the Arab boy, astonishes and delights all by his extraordinary performance; New attractions are in active preparation and will shortly be produced at this live place of amusement for the million.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The New Globe Theatre, Charles Vincent proprietor, was opened to the public on Saturday night. An immense audience was present, the house being thronged in every part, and hundreds were unable to obtain admission. The performance gave general satisfaction; in the first part Lizzie Worrell sang a ballad in capital style, and Eva Silva's ever silvery voice was heard to advantage in "Her Bright Smile haunts me Still;" Charley Vincent and Geo. Lowden, made the audience laugh at their funny stories, and a lively walk-around closed this portion of the entertainment. In the interlude, Senor Orosco, the Mexican wonder, performed on the trapeze, and was much applauded; and Leon Samwells presented his very popular act of "Globe Roulent" to general approbation. Signor Barretti presented an entertainment consisting of feats of legerdemain, selected from his extensive repertoire, all of which he performed in a very neat style, proving himself a worthy practitioner of the black art. Sally Thayer made a great hit in a comic song; Messrs. Moss and Price performed a double clog dance so well that besides an encore, they received the old-time mark of appreciation of silver thrown on the stage, and a number of other acts were presented. This long and varied entertainment, concluded with the sensational drama of "The Dumb Boy of Manchester," in which Samwells as the Dumb Boy, did some extremely good pantomime acting. R. H. Cox filled the role of Edward Wilton well R. G. Marsh and Clara Starr were amusing in the comic scenes, and Amelia Dean as Mrs. Wilton, and Miss Clara Hall as Jane Wilton, read and acted their respective parts in a creditable manner, neither having had much experience on the dramatic stage. The bill for to-night appears on our first page. Those who wish to obtain even standing room at the Globe, must go early.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance at these delightful pleasure grounds yesterday was very large and thousands listened to the delightful music of the Lancashire Bell-ringers and enjoyed the many attractions offered.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism: the De Chailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Why Pay Rent

To a landlord, when by joining the San Francisco Co-operative Land and Building Association you will be enabled to purchase a home and pay for it with the money you will otherwise expend for rent? Office, 306 Montgomery street.

"Bonnie Annie Laurie."

Almost every one is familiar with the sweet song of "Annie Laurie," though it may not be generally known that the fair-faced maiden was not a creature of imagination but an actual verity, of whose ancestry honorable mention is made in Scottish history.

Stephen Laurie was a flourishing Dumfries merchant before James VI. became King. Prior to 1611, he married Marion, daughter of Prevost Coran—getting with her a handsome marriage portion. His wealth enabled him to purchase of Sir Robert Gordon of Lochinvar, Bithbought Shail Castle and Maxwelton, whose "braes are bonnie." Stephen Laurie, then a man of many acres, took the designation of Maxwelton, leaving at his death his lands and his titles to his eldest son, John.

The next head of the house, Robert, a baronet. He was twice married, and had, by his second wife, three sons and four daughters. The birth of one of the latter is thus entered in the family register by her father: "At the pleasure of Almighty God, my daughter, Annie Laurie, was born upon the 16th day of December, 1282 years, about six o'clock in the morning, and was baptized by Mr. Geo. Aauter" (minister of Glenclairn).

'This minute is worth quoting. As the little stranger, whose entry into life it announces, grew to be the most beautiful Dumfriesian lady of the day, and the heroine of a song which has rendered her charms immortal:

Her brow is like the snaw-drift,
Her throat is like the swan,
Her face it is the fairest
That ere the sun shone on,
That ere the sun shone on:
And dark blue is her eye,
And for bonnie Annie Laurie
I'd lay me down and die.

The well-known lyric, of which these lines form a part, was composed by Mr. Douglas Finland, an ardent admirer of "bonnie Annie," who did not, however, return his affection, but married his rival, Alexander Fergusson.'

True Hero.

Not once in a century do we find a perfect hero; but human nature is made up of strength and weakness, of vaccillation and decision, of good qualities and bad ones, anomalies united in one heart, the general nature being directed by culture—perhaps by chance. Washingtons are not born every century.

Asking Too Much.

A little four-year old boy in Palmer, Mass., who had been told by his mother what a pretty thing it would be to have brothers and sisters, asked in his next evening prayer that the good Lord would give him sixty brothers and a hundred sisters. The mother thought that was too much, and did not say Amen.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

Horton's Tobacco Antidote

Will destroy the appetite for tobacco. Its great success has originated many spurious imitations under the name of Orton's, Burton's, and other similar sounding titles. Be not deceived. Take only Horton's. See that the name of Hug & Schmidt, 535 Commercial st., is on the wrapper. Hug & Schmidt, Successors to P. J. Reilly, Agents.

YOU KISSED ME.

You kissed me! My head had drooped low on thy breast
With a feeling of shelter and infinite rest,
Whilst the lively emotion my lips dared not speak,
Flushed up like a flame from my heart to my cheek;
Your glances seemed drawing my soul through my eyes,
As the sun draws the mist from the sea to the skies;
And thy lips clung to mine, till I prayed in my bliss
They might never unclasp from that rapturous kiss.

You kissed me! My heart and my breath and my will,
In delicious joy for the moment stood still—
Life had for me then no temptations, no charms,
No vista of pleasure outside of thy arms—
And were I this instant an angel, possessed
Of the glory and peace that are given the blessed,
I would cast my white robes unrepiningly down,
And tear from my forehead its beautiful crown,
To nestle once more in that haven of rest—
Thy lips touching mine and my head on thy breast.

You kissed me! My soul in a bliss so divine,
Acted as those who are drunken with wine;
And I thought 'twere delicious to die then, if death
Would come while my mouth was still moist with thy breath—
'Twere sweetest to die if my heart might grow cold
Whilst thine arms pressed me round in that passionate fold—
And these are the questions I ask day and night:
"Must my life taste no more such exquisite delight?
"Would you care if your breast were my shelter as then?
"And if you were here would you kiss me again?"

Sir Walter Scott and his Dog.

Sir Walter Scott found the companionship of his dogs in his study pleasant and helpful to his work. A faithful drawing of the Edinburgh "den" where the great genius conjured his most potent spells, would show Scott seated at his plain desk thoughtfully bending over his papers, while the immense form of Maida, his shaggy favorite, is stretched at length before the fire. Perched on the highest round of the book-ladder crouches Hense, the beautiful cat, waiting to take her place by the footstool whenever it shall please her rival to saunter forth for a walk To one or the other of these pets, Scott was ever tossing a friendly or comic ejaculation by way of keeping up their sprits till he could take time to frolic. He believed they understood every word he said, and there did seem to be a sort of clairvoyance between them. Who can tell how much his elastic freshness, power of work and sweetness of nature were kept in tune by his unbending himself, and "leaning from his human" toward these dumb favorites?

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

Y. M. C. A. Singing School.

The fourth season of the Young Men's Christian Association singing school will commence on Thursday. Our friend Muffington says he attended last season but doesn't intend to do so again, as the effect of forty Christian Young Men singing, "His bowels melt with Love," a la Philip Phillips—"His bow wow wow wow wow-els melt with love" is too excruciatingly unpleasant. The fact is, Muffington can't join if he wants to. They won't let him after his disgraceful conduct last season, when he tried to introduce "Shoo-fly" under the pretense that it was religious because there is something about "angels" in it.

Los Angeles Amusements.

The Los Angeles News complains of sacrilegious wretches who practice target-shooting in the cemetery and deface tombstones by their shots. The News also, noticing the presence of Vincent Colyer in that city, compliments him in this way: Those whom curiosity may inspire with a wish to behold a monster will find him at the Pico House.

Satannella.

An Eastern exchange says: "John De Solle, the Fallstaffian editor of the Sunday Times, denies that he is the Satannella of the San Francisco Call and Knickerbocker of the Philadelphia Dispatch; but he is the man beyond a doubt. He is a piquant writer, and need not be ashamed of his letters."

A gentleman of experience has discovered one good thing in sea-voyaging. He says: "You can get as tight as you please every day, and everbody will think you are only seasick."

"Don't trouble yourself to stretch your mouth any wider," said a dentist to a man who was extending his jaw frightfully, "as I intend to stand outside during the operation."

New Furnishing Goods.

Mrs. Lander's Donation.

The Washington Critic says:—

Mrs. General Lander was not so unfortunate at the Chicago fire as the newspaper paragraphs have been representing. Through the kindness of an entire stranger, she was taken from the Tremont House, beyond the limits of the fire, losing none of her theatrical wardrobe or other luggage. In the private note in which this is mentioned, she throws out an excellent suggestion: "Some of the proceeds of the benefits for Chicago should be appropriated especially to relieve professional sufferers, actors, and others, thrown out of a Winter's employment by the burning of the theatres. Twelve hundred dollars was thoughtfully sent from St. Louis to the managers for distribution; but there are over 250 actors homeless and friendless, and you can judge how slight is this relief for such a case."

We have not heard whether Mrs. Lander gave anything else besides this "excellent suggestion."

A Little Mixed.

They have a rich joke on Dr. Egan, a great land operator as well as a most successful physician. The Doctor prescribed some pills for a lady. He was asked how they were to be taken. "A quarter down," said the Doctor, "and the balance in one, two, and three years."

A Good Suggestion.

"I say, Pompey," said one freedman to another, "dis chile has tried lots ob gift fares and tings fer a prize, but nebber could draw anyting at all." "Well, Cæsar, I'd 'dvise you to try a hand-cart: de chances are a thousand to one dat you could draw dat."

Not Satisfied.

A mother, in a toy shop with her little son, had a clerk wind up a toy mouse and set it running on the floor to see if her pet liked it. He looked at it and exclaimed: "Oh! mama, I don't want that; we've got lots of them at home, and don't have to wind 'em up either!"

New Jersey boat builders merely lay the planks on the timbers and get inside. The mosquitoes run their sharp bills through and the men inside rivet them. No bolts are needed.

The Cardiff giant, after a long series of thrilling adventures, now lies boxed up in a commission merchant's store in Indianapolis, awaiting the liquidation of $16 charges against him.

The latest ballad is, "Bury your dog in the garden; it will make your grape-vine grow."

DR. B. J. SMITH WILL LECTURE AT DASHAWAY HALL,

WEDNESDAY EVENING ...NOV. 1st

Commencing at 8 o'clock,

In refutation of some of the popular fallacies enumerated by Prof. O. S. Fowler, in his recent lectures at Pacific Hall, respecting Phrenology, Physiology and Physiognomy, and his reasons propounded to Gentlemen for denying to Woman her claimed rights.

Believing, with many of our citizens, that his claims are not supported by science or logic, and are calculated to mislead the public mind and retard true reform, it is deemed due to the progressive people of this Coast to have an opportunity to discuss these various topics of public interest.

A part of the Evening will be devoted to Examinations through Phrenology and Physiognomy of young Gentlemen and Ladies, also, of Photographs by Physiognomy. The claims in Physiognomy will be illustrated by Paintings and drawings.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Those who go to see "hit" have the pleasure of seeing a most vividly worked-up barroom fight, gaining an insight into the mysteries of poker, becoming witnesses of a steamboat explosion, and looking on at a most blood-curdling bowie knife duel. In addition to all this sensation, there is fun in the piece, and the plot is interesting.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Robert McWade made his appearance as an Irish comedian last night and played the character of Rory O'More in a very quiet, easy and natural manner. He was ably supported by James M. Hardie, Miss Sallie Hinckley, J. H. Vinson, John Woodard and the other members of the company. The burlesque of "Richard III.," which followed, caused great amusement; the "shadows" which struck such terror to the soul of Richard, were exceedingly funny. The same bill will be presented to-night, and in addition the management announce the farewell engagement of the popular character vocalist, Charles Vivian, for one week previous to his departure for Australia. Vivian is such a favorite with the public that this announcement should be sufficient to crowd the house.

Alhambra Theatre.

The very popular company now playing at this theatre will soon be disbanded. The talented artists, Sheridan and Mack, whose engagement closes with the present week, will appear to-night in some of their most popular specialties, including their inimitable "Merry Old Couple;" Billy Emerson will present his Drum Major; Charley Howard will appear in the screaming farce of "Nitro Glycerine," and the performance will conclude with the operatic burlesque of "Ill Treated True Bad Deer."

Bella Union.

M'lle Eugenie Gerretta, who made her first appearance at this house last night, pleased the audience very much by her graceful performance on the running globes, and Edwin Montague gained great applause for his gymnastic feats. In the afterpiece of "The Marriage of the Amazons," Aline Le Favre played the part of Prince Vinum with immense spirit, the tableaux and marches were pretty, the sharp sayings of Queen Fuss-and-feathers, played by Johnny Manning, caused much amusement and the curtain and the shower of gold descended at the same time.

Theatre Comique.

The large audiences nightly present at this very popular place of amusement fully appreciate the delightful music of the Lancashire Bell Ringers, the comic character songs of little Maggie Knight, the inimitable dances and negro impersonations of the talented Reynolds Brothers, the very comic acting of Johnny Taers and the rich feast of mirth and music presented nightly. "Sobnoozer" is the town talk, and everyone goes to see it.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The Globe has made a good start, and the spirited manager is determined to leave nothing undone to retain the patronage of our amusement-loving public. First part, magical entertainment, gymnastics, dances, acts, comic songs, and the thrilling drama of "The Dumb Boy of Manchester" constitute the entertainment. The spacious green-room and comfortable private boxes, form an agreeable lounging place in which to pass an hour or two.

Lecture.

Dr. Barlow J. Smith will lecture to-morrow evening, November 1st, in review of the doctrine proclaimed by Prof. O. S. Fowler in his recent lectures in this city. The Doctor claims that the Professor has promulgated erroneous doctrines in relation to the mind, physiology and physiognomy, and the object of this lecture is to show to the public wherein Prof. Fowler has erred.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance at these delightful pleasure grounds yesterday was very large and thousands listened to the delightful music of the Lancashire Bell-ringers and enjoyed the many attractions offered.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Onaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Oh, Granny!

The Alta republishes an article from the Petaluma Journal and Argus urging the necessity of a railroad from that place to Saucelito and presents one of the statements in it in the following shape:

Petaluma is not more than 40 miles from San Francisco, yet the average time made on the quickest of the two routes is three years and a half, and so long as nearly the whole trip is made by water it cannot reasonably be expected that it can be done in much less time.

Now, Granny, you don't mean to say that you believe that it takes three years and a half to get from San Francisco to Petaluma. Why, you with your poor rheumatic old legs could walk there in less time than that.

Speak Out

The Sacramento Bee says: "It is asserted that no Democrat has ever been murdered for his political opinions in this country, North or South." This gives the Examiner a fine chance to say that over a million Democrats were "murdered" not long ago for their "political opinions."

Very Likely.

The Hartford Post commenting on Mr. Tilton's remark, thanking God that the cloud began to show its silver lining, says that "If that's the cloud the Tammany gang are under, ten to one they steal the lining."

Why Pay Rent.

To a landlord, when by joining the San Francisco Co-operative Land and Building Association you will be enabled to purchase a home and pay for it with the money you will otherwise expend for rent? Office, 303 Montgomery street. r

God Bless the Theatres.

The New York Sun gives the following extract from a sermon preached by Henry Ward Beecher, in which he invokes a blessing upon theatres. "O, for a diamond-pointed pen to catch up all the sweet truths, the noble self-sacrifices, which this fire has brought to light. What heroic achievements! More than we know—not more than angels chronicle. Let us waste no tears over Chicago. She is not dead but sleepeth. Hope is characteristic of that community. Manhood is struggling up in Chicago to-day. Men are digging through ashes to lay hot foundations. Is not manhood better than gold? This spectacle is making the country rich, and oh, the noble examples of love! The Queen of England, from her imperial throne, flashes an order to Canada to empty the storehouses of blankets and send them to Chicago. That touches my heart; there is more in those blankets to bind Canada and Great Britain to our hearts, than all England's muskets, and all her ships of war. In our late war there was some feeling aroused between England and this country. She has touched the other side of the chord now. The city of London gives one thousand guineas from its own treasury. Thank God there is one city in the world that's got a thousand guineas to give—whose treasury is not completely empty. Churches and theatres combine in the noble work. God bless the theatres! The whole world is marching to one tune; the drum stops and the heart of love beats, and that's the music we are marching to to-day."

Ever Since the Flood.

The inundation of 1701, which swept away a great part of the old Tyne Bridge, Newcastle, was long remembered and alluded to with emphasis as "the flood." On one occasion Mr. Adam Thompson was put into the witness box at the assizes. The counsel asking his name, received for answer: "Adam, sir—Adam Thompson." "Where do you live?" "At Paradice, sir."—Paradice is a village about a mile and a half west of Newcastle. And how long have you dwelt in Paradice?" continued the barrister. "Ever since the flood." was the reply made in all simplicity, and with no intention to raise a laugh. It is needless to say the judge asked for an explanation.

Horribly Provoking.

"What makes you so glum, Tom?" Oh! I have had to endure a sad trial to my feelings." "What on earth was it?" "Why, I had to tie on a pretty girl's bonnet while her ma was looking on."

Funny.

A minister once prayed: "O, Lord, we thank Thee for the goodly number here to-night, and that Thou also art here, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather."

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 837 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

Horton's Tobacco Antidote

Will destroy the appetite for tobacco. Its great success has originated many spurious imitations under the name of Orton's, Burton's, and other similar sounding titles. Be not deceived. HOW IT HAPPENED.

BY JOHN HAY.

I pray you, pardon me, Elsie,
And smile that frown away
That dims the light of your lovely face
As a thundercloud the day.
I really could not help it,—
Before I thought 'twas done,—
And those great gray eyes flashed bright and cold.
Like an icicle in the sun.

I was thinking of the Summers
When we were boys and girls,
And wandering in the blossoming woods,
And the gay winds romped with your curls;
And you seemed to me the same little girl
I kissed in the alder-path,—
I kissed the little girl's lips, and alas!
I have roused a woman's wrath.

There's not so much to pardon,—
For why were your lips so red?
The bloade hair fell in a shower of gold
From the proud, provoking head;
And the beauty that flashed from the splendid eyes,
And played round the tender mouth,
Rushed over my soul like a warm, sweet wind
That blows from the fragrant South.

And where, after all, is the harm done?
I believe we were made to be gay,
And all of youth not given to love
Is vainly squandered away;
And strewn through life's low labors,
Like gold in the desert sands,
Are love's sweet kisses, and sighs and vows,
And the clasp of clinging hands.

And when you are old and lonely,
In Memory's magic shrine
You will see on your thin and wasting hands,
Like gems, these kisses of mine.
And when you muse at evening
At the sound of some vanished name,
The ghost of my kisses shall touch your lips
And kindle your heart to flame.

" e Day."

We have received the first number of a paper published in Boston under the above title. It claims to supply a want long felt in Boston—that of a very cheap paper. It says:

Every dog has its day is an oft repeated, and generally accepted saying. People don't know why it isn't so, and consequently allow the assertion to go by default. It is equally true, and a great deal easier, to show that Boston has never had its Day until to-day. New York has its News, Philadelphia its Bee, Star, etc., San Francisco its FIGARO but only at this late period can our city lay claim to a first-class penny paper.

The Day is quite a bright little paper and pays considerable attention to theatricals. We wish it success.

Truth Suppressed.

"Small thanks to you," said a plaintiff to one of his witnesses, "for what you said in that cause." "Ah! sir," replied the conscientious witness, "but just think what I didn't say."

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress can smooth that "wrinkled frock," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that
Newell's Patent Paragon Shirt
Factory's only place of business is at 410 Kearny street, between Pine and California, Room No. 8.

"FIGARO."

Below Montgomery Block.

WEDNESDAY.....NOVEMBER 1, 1871

FIGARO ON THE C. P. RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

"O, Horror, Horror!"

A beautiful blonde went into a Troy cigar store to make some purchases. When shaking her head to announce that the goods did not please her, her auriferous tresses touched the patent cigar-lighter, and instantly took fire. The tobacconist, an old man, seized her hair with his hands to smother the fire, when she tore all the hair from her head and fled from the place. The old man's consternation was so great at his being the innocent cause of scalping a young lady, that he fainted on the spot.

Quaker Comfort.

A staid old Quaker aunt was riding in a carriage with a fashionable niece, decked with a profusion of jewelry, heard her complain of the cold. Shivering in her lace bonnet and shawl—as light as a cobweb, she exclaimed: "What shall I do to get warm?' "I really don't know," replied the Quaker, solemnly, "unless thee should put on another breast-pin."

No One to Play It.

The Winnsboro, S. C., News, says: "We heard recently that one of our prominent citizens was approached by a committee of ladies of the Baptist congregation, and solicited to subscribe for a chandelier for their church. He innocently replied that there was no use to buy it as no one in the congregation could play it."

A Difference of Opinion.

A maiden lady of a certain age accounts for the augmenting of her red nose by asserting that it is caused by the reflection from the red brick house opposite, which glares savagely in at the window where she embroiders. She has a spiteful nephew who thinks it may be traced to "something in her tea."

"How To Keep Cider."

Cut it in slices about nine inches long; lay them out on the grass to bleach; then soak in a weak solution of lime and carbonate of soda, and hang up in a dry place near the chimney. This is safer than to drink it while sweet.—Horace Greeley.

Base Bawlers.

There is a report that two of the old Red Stockings have joined a choir. One of them officiates as short stop on the organ, and the other sings third base.

New Furnishing Goods,

A Graceful Way of Putting It.

Grace Greenwood, in one of her recent letters, said: "I drove a spike on the Denver and Rio Grand Railway. It was a cruel tax." she says, "On my muscular Christianity." The newspaper report said that "I drove the spike home triumphantly;" but I really thought "it wouldn't go home till morning." Now, out in that region when one wishes a man or woman to drink with him, he asks, "will you drive a spike?" and whether Grace Greenwood did it metaphorically or otherwise, is one of the great moral questions of the day. The observation about going home in the morning would strengthen the suspicion of those who like to put a wrong construction on phrases.

A Suggestion.

The Washington Critic says: "Now that the base ball season is over, we would suggest, in order that the muscle-developing process may not lie dormant during the long Winter months, that the base ball athletics turn their attention to sawing up the wood piles of widows and sick people during the Winter. The exercise is fully as healthful, is not so violent, dangerous or tiresome as base ball, and we are sure the results will gratify a curious public fully as much, and we would prefer to give the "score" of a wood-sawing class to that of a base ball club in our columns. What say you, gents? This is a matter in which steps should be taken.

Sharp Boy.

A reverend gentleman was addressing a school concert recently, and was trying to enforce the idea that the hearts of the little ones were sinful, and needed regulating. Taking his watch and holding it up he said: "Now here is my watch, suppose it don't keep good time; now goes too fast, now goes too slow; what shall I do with it?" "Sell it!" shouted a flaxen-headed youngster.

"The Critic."

This is the title of a weekly paper lately started in Louisville, Ky. It is full of interesting theatrical news and original articles, and has a special correspondent in San Francisco. We are glad to add it to our exchange list.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

DR. B. J. SMITH WILL LECTURE AT DASHAWAY HALL,

WEDNESDAY EVENING...NOV. 1st

Commencing at 8 o'clock,

In refutation of some of the popular fallacies enumerated by Prof. O. S. Fowler, in his recent lectures at Pacific Hall, respecting Phrenology, Physiology and Physiognomy, and his reasons propounded to Gentlemen for denying to Woman her claimed rights.

Believing, with many of our citizens, that his claims are not supported by science or logic, and are calculated to mislead the public mind and retard true reform, it is deemed due to the progressive people of this Coast to have an opportunity to discuss these various topics of public interest.

A part of the Evening will be devoted to Examinations through Phrenology and Physiognomy of young Gentlemen and Ladies, also, of Photographs by Physiognomy. The claims to Physiognomy will be illustrated by Paintings and drawings.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

This is the last week of the Emerson Minstrels and the house is nightly crowded with the beauty and fashion of the city to see Emerson in his unequalled comic acts; Sheridan and Mack in their specialties, and Charley Howard in his old Plantation acts. Next week, Emerson and company will depart for a season in the interior. Kelly & Leon who will arrive to-night, the great stars of the New York minstrelsy, will make their appearance at the Alhambra on Monday evening.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night a most attractive entertainment will be given at this theatre. Robert McWade will appear in the character of Ragged Pat in the drama of "Ireland as it Is." Miss Maggie Moore will make her first appearance and play Judy O'Trot, and Vivian will make his first appearance and sing some of his inimitable character songs. The evening's amusement will terminate with the very comical burlesque of "Richard III.," with Mr. McWade as Richard most three eyes. On Friday an extraordinary bill will be presented and Robert McWade will take his benefit.

California Theatre.

The drama of "Kit" with Mr. Chanfrau in the leading role, holds the attention of the audience enchained from the time it commences until the fall of the curtain on the last act. The barroom fight, the game of poker, the fire on the steamer and the bowie knife duel, are wonderfully exciting, and the house rings again with the applause they evoke. "Kit" will be repeated to-night.

Bella Union.

Eugene Gerretta on the running globes; Edwin Montague in gymnastic feats; M'lle Gangeim in fancy dances; Miss Lotta in popular ballads; Chris Mathews in his silver star clog dance, and a variety of other amusements will be offered to-night. The entertainment will conclude with the extravaganza of "The Marriage of the Amazons," in which Aline Le Favre looks splendid as Prince Vimm and acts in a lively and spirited manner.

Theatre Comique.

The Lancashire Bell Ringers, the Reynolds Brothers, Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers, and the great burlesque of "Schneider" combine to draw crowded houses nightly. In the interlude, Lizzie Harmon sings comic songs; Johnny Kelly appears in a clog dance; Ida Fisk sings On the Streets; Blanche and Maggie Murphy perform a double polka and other acts are given. Startling novelties are in active preparation.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

There is so much variety in the entertainment given at this attractive little theatre, that all are pleased. Senor Orosco, the Mexican Wonder, is an extraordinarily graceful performer; Signor Barretti is a master of the Black Art, and his distributing cigars, punch and candy among the audience doesn't detract from his popularity. "The Dumb Boy of Manchester," with Samwells in the title role, winds up the evening's amusement.

James M. Ward.

The next star at the Metropolitan Theatre will be James M. Ward, who will produce McCloskey's sensational drama of "Through by Daylight" in which he has caused quite a sensation in many cities in the Eastern States.

Oliver Doud Byron.

This actor, who arrived on Tuesday from the East, will commence an engagement at the California Theatre on the 15th, appearing in his sensational play entitled "Across the Continent."

To Arrive.

The famous Kelly & Leon, accompanied by S. S. Purdy, who was here before, will arrive here to-night to commence a season on Monday next at the Alhambra Theatre.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

California Homes.

Californians are becoming more settled. Those who come here now, come to stay; and their first effort should be to make home attractive. This can be done at so small an expense now-a-days, that there is no excuse for neglecting it. How much a well-appointed breakfast-table adds to the comforts of a home! Pretty French China tea-cups, plated silver sugar-bowl, ivory handled knives, etc. And all these things can be had at a very small cost of R. A. Swain & Co., wholesale dealers in their retail salesroom up stairs at the N. E. corner of Sansome and Pine streets.

Can anybody tell us how old Olive Logan is?—Albany Argus. Certainly; she is as well as usual, thank you.—Chicago Post.

Chicago Spirits.

Cheerfulness under difficulties seems to be the motto of the good people of Chicago. A signboard appears among the ruins which reads as follows: "Moore & Gore, House and Sign Painters, Removed to No. 111 Desplaines street. Capital $000,000,30c." Another sign reads: "Owing to circumstances over which we have no control." An editor of a daily paper has received several poetical effusions suggested by the late fire but he declines them all on the ground that it is wasteful to print anything which commences with a capital, when capital is scarce as it is now in Chicago. One merchant who found his safe and contents destroyed, quietly remarked that there was no blame attached to the safe; that it was of chilled iron, and would have stood, but that the fire had taken the chill all out.

A Smart Dog.

This comes from the Nevada City Transcript of the 28th inst.:

Yesterday morning Col. Potter feasted on quail for which he is indebted to the sagacity of a setter. One of the boarders at the hotel procured a pair of quails, and was anticipating a fine breakfast, as he had put them away. They were nosed out by a young setter belonging to J. E. Brown, who brought one to Potter. That gentleman thankfully accepted the gift, and told the dog to get another, which he did. Potter, who prides himself on his appetite for quail, sent for a third, but the dog had found all, and the Colonel had to content himself with two birds. Potter thinks that kind of a dog is better than a shotgun, and that sort of hunting far ahead of coon hunting.

Smart Man.

Intellect is a good thing to have, but sometimes it does not go far enough. An Indiana cooper, finding considerable difficulty in keeping one of the heads of a cask he was finishing in its place, put his son inside to hold the head up. After completing the work to his own satisfaction, he was astonished to find his boy inside the cask, and with no possibility of getting out, except through the bunghole.

Bad Meat.

It has been ascertained that there are but 2,000,000 cannibals in the world and the number is rapidly decreasing, not on account of a deficiency in the supply of their peculiar food, but owing to the yearly increasing badness of its quality. It is said that some tribes have lately abandoned it in disgust, and have taken to rattlesnake.

Muscle vs. Wealth.

At a juvenile party in Lowell, one little fellow rejoicing in the splendor of his clothes, sidled up to another with the triumphant remark. "You ain't dressed as well as I am." "Well," retorted the other, "I can lick you anyhow."

Content is the gift of Heaven, and not the certain effect of anything upon earth.

The man that speaks plain truth is a cleverer fellow than he is generally taken for.

To Bons Vivants.

There are a good many epicures in San Francisco, and a man of sufficient taste and ability to cater to their appetite is pretty sure to succeed. This fact accounts for the large business done by Winant & Co., the famous oyster men, at the Pacific Oyster Saloon, 337 Bush street, two doors below Kearny, between the California and Alhambra Theatres. There the oysters seem fatter than anywhere else—we think Winant fattens them somehow or other—and are more artistically served up. Everyone goes there to eat new laid eggs from Winant's ranch; ladies go there to lunch in the beautifully fitted up little parlors, and Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster saloons, attends to the comfort of everyone.

Horton's Tobacco Antidote

Will destroy the appetite for tobacco. Its great success has originated many spurious imitations under the name of Orton's, Burton's, and other similar sounding titles. Be not deceived. Take only Horton's. See that the name of Hug & Schmidt, 535 Commercial st., is on the wrapper. Hug & Schmidt, Successors to P. J. Reilly, Agents.

I KISSED YOU.

ANSWER TO "YOU KISSED ME."

I kissed you! your lashes swept over my face
In your womanly sweetness and exquisite grace;
And, as your head dropped on my breast, your blue eyes
Looked up into mine like the fairest of skies,
And, as the lids closed in the faintest endeavor,
I thought they had shut out my sunlight forever.

It was but a moment, and yet in that age
I wrote my heart's history on my life's page;
You opened them nestling there in my bold
love,
And quieted all of love's fiercest alarms.

I kissed you; Oh, the delirium of bliss!
Are the rapturous joys of heaven like this?
Have angels such dainty, ethereal food?
Are these the rewards of the pure and the good?
It is joy in heaven, it is peace and good will
On earth, when such kisses my being can thrill.
I could sip from your lips the sweet nectar forever;
Nor time nor eternity ask to dissever
The clasp of our lips from the seal of our love,
In life upon earth, or existence above.

I kissed you! Oh! was it real and true?
Or was I but dreaming that I kissed you?
And could it be that I was holding you there
In my arms, you darling so lovely and fair?
Or was I dying, and tasting the bliss
That comes as a foretaste of heaven in this?
Then let me be dying forever if death
Brings sweets half so rich as the taste of your breath.
But now I am lonely and sigh all in vain;
Were you here, oh, now I would kiss you again!

Poor Singers.

Carl Wolfsohn, of Philadelphia, writes from Berlin:

Altogether our German singers sing abominably; plenty of fine voices, but nobody learns to sing, and there is, of course, no use of praising big screaming even, from the throat. It is singular that people here, who are most exacting in all instrumental performances, put up with such bad singing. I can assure you that more than three-fourths of the popular singers here would not be tolerated in America."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The intensely sensational drama of "Kit" with Mr. Chanfrau in the leading character, will be played this evening for the last time. To-morrow, "The Hidden Hand" will be produced, and Mr Chanfrau will appear in the character of old Wool the negro.

Alhambra Theatre.

But a few nights more and Emerson's Minstrels will leave for a tour through the interior. But a few nights more will the public be amused with the Drum Major of the great Billy Emerson and his other original comicalities. To-night Charley Howard, Sheridan and Mack, S. Holdsworth, the tenor, and the whole troupe will appear in a splendid programme. Kelly and Leon arrived last night, as did also S. S. Purdy, and will commence a season on Monday. Purdy has been rusticating on his farm and looks fat and healthy.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The Irish drama of "Ireland as it Is," was presented in capital style last night with beautiful new scenery, and Robert McWade in his great character of Ragged Pat, which he played with much spirit and feeling. He was ably supported by the favorite actress Miss Maggie Moore, who was excellent as Judy O'Trot, and the rest of the company. After this, Vivian made his appearance and sang "Strolling Through the Fair" and other popular selections from his repertoire, including "Ten Thousand Miles Away" in response to a persistent demand. The performance concluded with the burlesque of "Richard III." This evening the performance will consist of "Ireland as it Is," Vivian in character songs and J. H. Vinson in his fine impersonation of Havresack in the one-act drama of "The Old Guard." To-morrow night Robert McWade will take a benefit, when by general desire, "Rip Van Winkle" will be revived.

Bella Union.

The graceful performance of M'lle Eugenie Gerretta on the runningglobes is a pleasing feature in the entertainment presented at this theatre, which also comprises dances by M'lle Gaugian; gymnastic feats by Edwin Montague; the act "Glycerine Experiments," by Mat Kelly, Harry Thompson and Tommy Bree; Dutch comicalities by J. H. Larkin; ballads by Miss Lotta, and a variety of other attractions. The spectacular extravaganza of "The Marriage of the Amazons," with Aline Le Favre as Prince Vim, concludes the entertainment.

Theatre Comique.

There is a great crowd every night at this popular establishment. Little Maggie Knight is as great a favorite as ever; the Lancashire Bell Ringers' music delights all who hear it; Johnny Tuers is great in song and dance, and the Reynolds Bros. in their inimitable double act of song and dance never fail to bring down the house. The immensely popular burlesque of "Schnoozer," which has drawn thousands to witness it, must soon be withdrawn to make way for other novelties in preparation.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

Among other new attractions to-night will be the first appearance of Louis Ferrera, the clarionette soloist and leader of the Presidio Infantry Band. After a fine first part, Senor Orosco, will perform on the aerial trapeze; the funny act of "Mutton vs. Sheep" will be performed by Charley Vincent, Morton, Nelson and Campbell, and Sally Thayer, Eva Silva, Lizzie Worrel, Hughy Morton and Estelle, will perform a variety of songs and dances; After an overture, Augustine Bernal will appear in his great tight rope and throw somersaults over swords and muskets with fixed bayonets. A number of other attractive performances will be given by Senorita Realles, Leon Samwells, Moss and Price and others and the performance will conclude with the thrilling drama of "The Dumb Boy of Manchester." To-morrow evening the management announce the first appearance of the accomplished vocalists Edgar and Ethel Stanley and also of Miss Gipsy Gilbert. A new local drama entitled "The Naked Truth" is underlined for production on Saturday evening.

James Eddington.

James Eddington died on Tuesday evening. Mr. Eddington was formerly proprietor of the Black Crook concert hall in Virginia City, and married to the talented jig dancer, performing at the Bella Union Theatre, under the stage name of Miss Josephine. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock to-day, and will be largely attended by the profession.

"If Ever I Cease to Love."

This song which as sung by Billy Emerson at the Alhambra Theatre, has become so popular, has been published by M. Gray; from whom we have received a copy.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Theatricals in Spain.

At the new Almeda Theatre, Valencia, Spain, there are five performances, operatic, dramatic, and balletic, daily. Each performance lasts two hours. The first takes place from six to eight. Every spectator receives a ticket entitling him to a breakfast at a restaurant in the Almeda. The other four performances commence at four P. M., and conclude at midnight. We have not heard that everyone attending the last performance has a right to demand a ticket for a bed. He ought, if he has attended all five performances. Fancy performances begining at 6 A. M. The only place where such matutinal representations as those at the Almeda Theatre might answer is in this city. They might attract the choice spirits who had not been to bed all night, and whose proud boast it is that they "will not go home till morning." Still we should not select such an enterprise as a good investment for our capital.

A Pow-Wow.

The Winnemucca Register of the 21st says: "The braves, warriors and dusky maidens of the forest are having a grand international dance and pow-wow on the bank of the Humboldt a few miles below town. Delegations from the Shoshones, Bannocks and every part of the Piute territory are present. Every band and faction of the Piute tribe is represented, numbering in the aggregate of two hundred bucks and squaws, all lavishly painted with bright vermillion red, and pompously decked with stained feathers, red and blue being the favorite colors. The pale face, "white trash," upon payment of two bits and the application of a liberal quantity of vermillion to their faces are permitted to join in the festivities upon the terms of social equality.

YE GAMBOLIER.

With Kings and Queens, as well as Knaves,
Ye Gambolier doth Deal;
He lives on Stakes, but doth not
Aught for ye public weal.

Full oft ye merrie Gambolier
In ye gay attire is seen;
Ye sportive cuss doth love to play
And gambol on ye Green.

He fain doth Cut, he loves ye Chips,
When he to balle doth go,
Ye Double-shuffle is for him
Ye Break-down for his foe.

Ye winds appal ye Gambolier,
For winds he doth not reck;
For he is ever on ye Sieze,
And traveleth on ye Deck.

Ye Gambolier doth ever speak
Like Hamlet, by ye Card;
A soldier he who serveth not
Save on ye Piquet-guard.

Ever ye swifter passeth he,
Yet more he lags behind;
And eke more sharply doth he See
When he is going Blind.

When Death doth Call, and rakes his Pile,
No panic doth he feel;
He shuffles off his mortal coil,
And cutteth for ye De'il.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

"Pound Notes."

Is it possible for the Alta editorial notist to write on any subject, without writing himself down an ass? Speaking of Bismarck, he says:

It appears that he has refused to take anything but gold for that part of the French loan for which the people of England have subscribed; wants the shining metal and will have nothing to do with pound notes. This determination is regarded by some of the journals as a Prussian invasion, which seeks to reduce England to a state of dependency by means of her finances. There is not enough bullion in the civilized world, roars out John Bull, to meet this demand. Give him pound notes, adds the old gentleman, until he can't rest. Probably he has an idea that when he gets deeply into the debt of Prussia, that nation will not be so anxious to cripple him; will have a direct interest rather in keeping his head above water. It is the general belief in England, ever since the days of Pitt, that her pound notes have done more to prevent revolutions and rebellions, than all the armies and navies that she could maintain.

The whole text of this peculiar article is "pound notes," which do not exist in England; have not been heard of for many years, the lowest issue of the Bank of England being a five-pound note.

More Los Angeles Amusements.

Those Los Angeles people are perfectly delightful. They call their town the City of the Angels. We suggest that Devilville would be euphonious and also appropriate. One of the latest items of news from this little heaven on earth is that an Indian named Cholo was found on Sunday near the city with his head chopped to pieces.

A Syracuse heiress, stopping in Chicago, concluded that the only chance of forming a stable union in the latter city was by eloping with her father's coachman, which she accordingly did.

"A Cincinnati horse-doctor advertises to teach a horse to sing."

Pray Heaven it may never be our fate to hear him. We have enough one-horse singers already.

The "Benzine Polka," wilder than the "Can-can," and more exhaustive than the "Virginia Reel," is the musical rage at Americus, Georgia.

Highly Important.

The Atlantic cable is sometimes burthened with dispatches of tremendous importance. Here is one of them:

Geo. Odger, late candidate for Parliament from Southwark, in the workingman's interest, has written a letter reviewing the list of subscriptions, and charging the aristocratic classes with want of charity.

George Odger stuck himself up as the workingmen's candidate for Parliament from Southwark, and was ignominiously defeated, as the workingmen would none of him. Since then he has distinguished himself by making windy speeches full of sound and fury, signifying nothing. The fact that this pot house politician has written a letter criticising a subscription list for a charitable purpose is thought by some one to be of sufficient importance to be transmitted to this country by cable. It is sad to learn that Mr. Geo. Odger thinks that the aristocratic classes have not given enough to relieve Chicago's wants. Had they given more, Mr. Odger would have discoursed in some such manner as this: "These bloated aristocrats can loosen their purse strings for the purpose of currying favor with people thousands of miles away and can give money to foreigners which would be better bestowed on the paupers who starve on the outskirts of their noble domains." Odger is an ass, and, luckily, the workingmen of England know it.

A Cold-Blooded Announcement.

The editor of the San Jose Mercury says:

"The season is near at hand when many hundreds of subscribers to this paper are about to expire."

That will be rough on the Mercury, and rougher yet on the subscribers, but then it will be a good thing for the undertakers, the sextons and the cemetery associations.

Sharp Response.

"Indeed you are very handsome," said a gentleman to his lady-love. "Pooh! pooh!" said she, "so you would say if you did not think so." "And so you'd think if I did not say so," he answered.

Old Dumas used to advocate seven hours sleep.

The Better Plan.

A. M. Powell in a speech to the colored people, at the Hall of the Young Men's Benevolent Association, on Pacific street, said that "political equality having been obtained the colored people should demand social recognition and the destruction of all class or social distinctions of caste." Perhaps it would be better for the colored people, instead of demanding social recognition, to compel it by proving themselves worthy of it. Alexandre Damas would have had no need to demand social recognition in this country had he come here. "Demanding" will do but little good.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress—art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

"FIGARO."

Published every day, except Sunday, by

J. P. BOGARDUS

—AT—

532 Merchant St. and 536 Washington St

Below Montgomery Block.

FRIDAY.....NOVEMBER 3, 1871

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

"The Milky Way."

The Philadelphia Dispatch says:

A young friend of ours, named Gumbo, undertook to start a paper out in Cambria county a short time ago. He called it the Cambria Milky Way. He said in his prospectus that he intended to make the Milky Way lively, spicy, vigorous, fearless, and entertaining. And he did. In the first number he called the editor of the rival paper 'a diabolical liar, an unmitigated scoundrel, and a remorseless assassin." He alluded to the Mayor in a cheerful paragraph as "a corrupt magistrate, whose torments from the remorse which festered in his soul were only surpassed by the physical agony which is always the punishment of the debauchee." He soothed the feelings of the Postmaster with the remark that "the peculations of this official Dick Turpin can be compared to nothing but the terrific robberies committed in the past by those remorseless buccaneers, whom he so closely resembles in general character."

Strange to say, the paper died. The "Milky Way" was too strong for the Cambrians. The milk-and-watery way of conducting a newspaper succeeds pretty well in San Francisco.

An Awful Snob.

A Paris paper says that a rich American has offered to rebuild the Tuileries solely at his own expense, on condition that one of the wings of the new building shall receive his name, and that as long as he lives he shall be allowed an apartment in it looking out on the gardens, and an invitation to all the ceremonies which shall ever be given in the palace by any government which may be in power there.—Exchange.

It is hardly possible that the United States, though it has produced many great men and things, could have given birth to such a superlative snob as the one who probably exists only in the imagination of the Paris editor.

The Best Man.

Is it not strange that the "best man" at a wedding is not the bridegroom? This must be the reason of so many unhappy marriages, too many women taking the first that offers, instead of waiting to pick out the best man they can get.

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him. E

No Respect for Science.

[Scene, the parlor of a Club Room. Sports discovered. Faro going on in adjoining room.]

SARDINE JIMMY—See here boys, I don't suppose Crowley means us when he orders the arrest of "gamblers," but then he may.

HANDSOME CHARLEY—He may mean you, but I'm sure he doesn't intend to interfere with me.

SARDINE JIMMY—He says "cappers."

HANDSOME CHARLEY—Who are you calling a "capper?"

SARDINE JIMMY—Any one that likes to take it to himself. You if you like. You couldn't draw a piece from the old man as often as you do if you didn't bring in an "injin" now and then. What's the use of talking?

HANDSOME CHARLEY—I'm in stocks. That's my regular business, and if I bring in a stranger to see the sights—

SARDINE JIMMY—Yes, and he drops a hundred dollars or two and you get twenty—

HANDSOME CHARLEY—You dry up. I say it's no one's business, Crowley's nor no one else's.

TOM BULGER—Crowley's going it altogether too brash. He has run with the boys himself and ought to have some sympathy for them. He knows a man can't graduate as a card player without study. It's taken me years to learn what I know, and cost me a heap of money; I'm only trying to get even. He's got no respect for science.

BILL JECKLES—It would be a pity if all you know about putting up a deck were lost to the world.

SARDINE JIMMY—I tell you, boys, it's serious. Why, I'm d——d if he won't be going after the dealers next.

BILL JECKLES—Or the game keepers. Just fancy Bill Briggs and Rob, and Whipple and Gamble being sent up as "vags."

HANDSOME CHARLEY—They couldn't do it. A vag is a man "without any visible means of support," and they've got money enough invested in business.

BILL JECKLES—Well, suppose Bill Briggs' bank should get busted, like John Sime's did, what would he do then, ha?

HANDSOME CHARLEY—Go long! couldn't he go up on Woodward's ranch and live, smarty?

SARDINE JIMMY—That wouldn't keep him. Never was such a fool as Woodward, he's as bad as Horace Greeley. All he makes at fare he loses at ranching. Why doesn't he stick to his legitimate business? That "chew-tobacco" horse will be the ruin of him yet.

BILL JECKLES—Crowley says it aint legitimate.

SARDINE JIMMY—It is though. It's just as legitimate as stock dealing or fire insurance. Aint it all gambling? A man who keeps a game only takes his percentage, while they gamble out and out.

TOM BULGER—And just see the education a man has to go through to learn the biz besides having to possess a natural gift for it. I'd like to see Crowley try to turn a jack or put up a deck. I tell you he's never been posted or he'd knew whether there was science in it or not. Why boys, a man has to be an artist to make his living at cards, and he earns all he makes. Vagrancy, indeed! The idea is absurd.

BEN—Now let me chip in. I say—

VOICE FROM THE BACK ROOM, [authoritively.] Come, dry up in there. You are making too much noise. Spin around a while.

[The meeting retires to the sidewalk where a resolution expressing a loss of confidence in Chief Crowley and a determination to work against him at the next election is passed, and the boys disperse and "spin around."]

"A Great Discovery."

The local of the Grass Valley Union, a paper which generally has something in it, gave to the world the following great discovery last Wednesday: "If you wan a good cocktail of a morning, after having been in hilarious company the evening before the morning, we tell you how to make it: Take a teaspoonful of salt in the place of sugar, and moisten the salt with very little water, then squirt into the tumbler your bitters according to taste and add whisky with liberality. Mix and drink. This cocktail is the result of an accident, or of a trick upon an innocent traveler we are not certain which, but it is a great discovery no matter what its origin. A drink of this kind will set the patient on his pins so that he can bear bad company all day. We know whereof we speak.

Bucking a Locomotive.

"The cow," said an engineer, "was standing square on the track. The locomotive struck her and threw her ten feet high over a fence. She landed plump on her feet, and strange to say, she wasn't hurt a bit." "But didn't she look scared?" inquired a listener. "Well, I don't know whether she was scared or not, but she looked a good deal discouraged."

That Bridge.

The Bulletin and Call continue to hammer away at that bridge across the bay, but have not got it built yet. We give in our adhesion to the idea. It might be useful as a means to get over to Oakland in case of a big fire in San Francisco.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The entertainment last night gave general satisfaction. "Ireland as it Is," with Robert McWade as Ragged Pat, and sprightly Miss Maggie Moore as Judy O'Trot, acted splendidly, and the double Irish Jig brought down the house. Vivian's songs were received with much applause, and the admirable acting of J. H. Vinson in the character of Haversack in "The Old Guard," was the subject of general commendation. To-night, Robert McWade who in addition to the favor he has gained with the public, has made a large number of friends by his genial social qualities, will take a benefit, and appear in his artistic impersonation of "Rip Van Winkle."

California Theatre.

The public have seen Frank S. Chanfrau in "Sam" and in "Kit" and have thoroughly enjoyed his acting in both characters. To-night he will give his natural impersonat on of the old darkey Wool in the very sensational drama of "The Hidden Hand," in which he achieved so much success on the occasion of his first engagement at the California Theatre.

Alhambra Theatre.

That the entertainment offered at this theatre suits the popular taste is sufficiently proved by the fact that it is crowded by the fashion of the city. Billy Emerson sings "If Ever I Cease to Love" in the first part, appears in the screaming act of "Old Times Rocks" and the song of "the Drum Major" in the interlude, and in the afterpiece of "Ill Treated Trou bad Doer." Charley Howard, the inimitable impersonator of old darkeys, appears in first part and interlude and Sheridan and Mack present some of their most attractive specialties.

Bella Union.

Eugenie Gerretta on the revolving globe; M'lle Gangain in beautiful fancy dances; Edwin Montague in gymnastic feats; Miss Lotta in pleasing ballads; Mat Kelly, Harry Thompson and Tommy Bree in funny negro acts; Marie Zoel in song and dance; Chris Matthews in his silver clog dance; J. H. Larkin in Dutch comicalities, and the irrepressible Aline Le Favre, the pretty and piquante Minnie Fillmore, exuberant Minnie Corbyn and the whole company in "The Marriage of the Amazons," will constitute the entertainment to-night.

Theatre Comique.

The Lancashire Bell Ringers, the Reynolds Brothers, Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers, and a large and talented company will all appear to-night in a very attractive programme, terminating with the burlesque on "Schneider," entitled "Schnoozer; or, the Oakland Grocery Store," which is recived nightly with roars of laughter, Lizzie Harmon as the sweet little Lowessa gaining great applause for her burlesque acting. On Saturday evening, Henri Stewart and Miss Claude will make their first appearance, and the charming balladist, Miss Eva Silva, and Tommy McLaughlin the clog dancer will also appear.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The very attractive programme presented at this popular theatre drew a large audience last night. The vaulting act by Señor Augustin Bernal is thrillingly sensational. The acts went well, the songs were well sung, and the drama of "The Dumb Boy of Manchester" was well played. This evening Edgar Stanley and Ethel Stanley, the pleasing balladiste, will make their first appearance at this house.

Benefit to Billy Emerson.

On Saturday night the Emerson Minstrels will give their last performance but one at the Alhambra Theatre, and Billy Emerson, to whom our public is indebted for so many pleasant evenings, will take his benefit. R. W. Konler, who has just returned from a professional tour around the world, will play one of his fine cornet solos for the occasion, and the Reynolds Brothers volunteer some of their popular songs and dances. Get your seats early.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Wou'dn't Work.

A local contemporary tells how a man bought twenty-six cows on credit, went to making butter and cheese, and in two years increased his herd to eighty-five Since then, any number of despondent men have taken heart and determined to make a start, and grow rich by dairy farming. They have all tried their best, but some how up to the present time they have found the plan suggested wouldn't work. The difficulty lay in getting those twenty-six.

A Cat as Trophy of the Fire.

Chicago correspondents continue to furnish copious details and incidents of the great fire, with abundant comment on the present aspect of the situation.

One correspondent writes: "A cat has actually been recovered, alive and squalling, from the desolate ruins of the Post-office and Custom House building. I have with these orbs beheld that feline salamander. She still wears her royal vestment of fur, and retains her lung-power and appetite, both marvellously improved. Jas. M. Hubbard, Esq., Uncle Sam's mail despatch officer at this point—to whom, by the way, considerable credit is due for the rapid reconstruction of our postal facilities—was hunting in the rain to-day for something he thought might still be preserved. "Meow!" He distinctly heard the familiar melodious voice. He is a judge of music, and could not be deceived. He listened. Again rose the muffled falsetto. "It must be a ghost!" He stepped lightly over the crumbling brickbats and helped some workmen to excavate the ruins in the corner whence the sound proceeded. Lo! there, eight feet under ground, at the mouth of a sewer pipe, upright in a pail of water, sat grimalkin, with a cold in her head and cinders in her eyes. Sister of Shadrack, Meshack & Co., she had survived the fiery furnace, and came forth unscathed. It seemed, on examination, that she had exhibited the presence of mind to stick her legs in the water and her head in the sewer, whence she drew air, and probably smelt mice; and when the building collasped a column fell so as to shelter her. A million dollars in gold had melted into bullion within twenty feet of her. Pussy is an immense favorite in the Post Office, and has resumed her place as a regular member of the staff. How is that for cat?

CARA MIA.

A flir and feather of shining hair,
Eyes that laugh like the sky in June;
A voice whose music is free and rare
As the wimpling rill
Which flows at will,
Under the light of the summer moon!

Blushing cheeks like the rose in bloom,
Hands that flutter like snowy doves;
Feet which twinkle adown the room
To the lilting rune
Of pipes in tune,
And horns that wind thro' the deep alcoves!

Oh, that is the face I love the best;
Those are the eyes which met my look;
Those wee white hands are the ones I pressed
When we sat alone
On the mossy stone
Which lies by the singing meadow-brook.

She is a lady, but I'm no lord,
Through the furrow I guide the plow;
Laying up banks of emerald sward,
As I turn the loam
Which at "harvest home"
Will store my barn from floor to mow.

Though she is a lady, I've no care;
I know my darling's love is true;
The flowers I bring she is proud to wear,
And she twines their stems
Amid gleaming gems—
White campanules and harebells blue.

When her velvet cheek lies close to mine,
Her bright hair staying on my breast,
The Immortals never drank such wine
As that which I sip
From the luscious lip
That to my own is fondly pressed!

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention further on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating they can cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. CHAS. H. TOZER attends to.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

New Furnishing Goods,

Letter from the Mississippi River.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ON BOARD STEAMER OCEANUS,
Mississippi River, October 26th, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—It is some time since I wrote to you, but as I now have a little leisure, I will give you a few items. I left St. Louis yesterday morning for New Orleans, to join C. W. Noyes' Circus, for Texas this Winter. The Atlantic and Pacific Circus has come to a standstill at Junction City, Kansas. The Lee Family are still there, and some of the band; also W. H. Vincent. Miss Polly Lee ran off and married A. Lehman, and that hurt the Lee Family very much, as she was their main stay. Circuses have not done very well this summer; most of them have gone into winter quarters.

I saw a good many 'Frisco boys in St. Louis—among the number may be mentioned young Ben Cotton, Tommy Farron, Sergeant Burk, the drill man, and the San Francisco Great Unknown, with his blonde hair; he has got his bills out to open there. George Thompson is also in St. Louis; all are doing well. Sam Rickey, an old Californian, is with the Barney Troupe, and is a big card. The Hernandez and Sylvester Troupe was at Kansas City last week. Duverney, the contortionist, and Harry Spriggs are at St. Jae. W. B. Blaisdell was in St. Louis, trying to get up a painting of the Chicago fire. His prospects were bad. His company of minstrels, with Billy Courtright at the head, collapsed at St. Joe.

You will hear from me again soon. Yours,
GEO. CONSTABLE.

The Immortal Squarza.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—This evening is set aside for the complimentary benefit tendered to Mr. Emerson, who for the past twelve months has justly ranked as the chief attraction of the minstrel troupe known by his name during their performances at Maguire's Opera House and the New Alhambra Theatre. The long and successful season of the Emerson Minstrels is unequaled in the annals of San Francisco minstrelsy. Since Manager Maguire first brought them here from the East they have revived the standard of the legitimate minstrel business here, and have presented to the public a great variety of first-class talent from the New York theatres. But to William Emerson more than to any other man is the great success of the troupe due. His natural gifts of person and voice, his quick humor and versatility, have carried him most successfully through every line of business on the minstrel stage. There really seems to be no limit to his quickness of perception, versatility and humor, which have been constantly exercised for the past year in personating, not alone every variety of Ethiopian stage characteristics, but, in addition, in presenting many wonderfully clever burlesques of the salient points of the performer of his own troupe—and no part of the minstrel entertainments have been more heartily enjoyed by the public than these impromptu burlesques of Emerson's. The theatre-going public are indebted to him for so many hours' enjoyment that we know that his benefit will be an ovation worthy of his talents. In addition to the regular bill, Messrs Kohler and Muller will give the "Nightingale Polka." On Monday Emerson and troupe will depart for a four weeks' season in the interior cities, at the expiration of which time they will return to the Alhambra. Sunday evening, last night of the Emerson's. Kelly and Leon will commence their season on Monday.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—In spite of the rain, there was a good assembly in the dress circle last night, when Robert McWade took his benefit. "Rip Van Winkle" went splendidly, and Vivan sang his songs in admirable style. The same excellent bill will be presented to-day and again this evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—F. S. Chanfrau delighted a large audience last night by his capital delineation of the character of Wool, the eccentric darkey, in the sensation drama of "The Hidden Hand;" Miss May Howard, Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer, E. J. Buckley, and all engaged in the representation of the piece acted their parts well, and the applause was loud and frequent. The same play will be repeated this evening. A very attractive bill has been prepared for Monday, consisting of the two-act local sketch entitled "Mose; or, a Glance at New York in '48," "The Debutante" and "The Rough Diamond." In the first piece the San Francisco public will at length see Mr. Chanfrau in the character of Mose, in which he first achieved fame; in the second he will play the part of Achille Falma Dufarge. Miss Minnie Walton will have ample opportunity to display her versatility by playing Lize in "Mose," Rose in "The Debutante," and Margery in "The Rough Diamond."

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The graceful and suprising performance of Eugenie Gerretta on the revolving globe draws immense applause; Edwin Montague's gymnastic feats are popular features in the entertainment; the beautiful Gangain s as great a favorite as ever, and first part and interlude are both very fine. To-night, the great extravaganza, the "Marriage of the Amazone," with Aline Le Favre as Prince Vimmi, will be presented after a brilliant melange, consisting of comic songs by Johnny Manning, Dutch comicalities by J. H. Larkin, clog dance by Marie Zoel, duet by Minnie Corbyn and Lottie Leder, ballads by Miss Lotta and Fanny Garretson, and other entertaining features particularized on our first page.

THEATRE COMIQUE.—This house has been crowded every night during the week, and the performance has been of so diversified a character that all tastes have been pleased. A great bill has been prepared for to-night, and among many other attractions we may mention the first appearance of Henri Stuart and Miss Claude, and re-appearance of Eva Silva, the charming balladist, and Tommy McLaughlin, the jig dancer. The fun will be unceasing at the Theatre Comique from 8 o'clock until midnight.

THE GLOBE THEATRE.—Surely there is variety enough and sensation enough in the bill prepared for to-night, which may be found in full on our first page. The management announce among other features, the engagement of eight Apache Indians to assist in a great war spectacle, in which Senor Bernal and Senorita Realles will also appear. A number of amusing negro acts will be performed; the pantomime of "The Living Statue" will be presented; Miss Ethel and Edgar Stanley will sing duets; numerous songs, dances and gymnastic performances will be given, and his attractive evening's entertainment will conclude with the production of the new local sensation, written expressly for this house, entitled "The Naked Truth," in which R. H. Cox, Mr. Lowden, R. G. Marsh, Charles Vincent and company will appear.

KELLY AND LEON'S MINSTRELS.—On Monday evening these famous artistes will make their first appearance in San Francisco, at the Alhambra Theatre. Edwin Kelly is one of the most experienced caterers to the public amusement in the profession, a sweet ballad singer, and a most amusing actor. Leon is the "only one;" there is nothing like him, so all the New York papers say. On Monday the public will see these celebrated performers in popular selections from their extensive repertoire, comprising ballads by Kelly, operatic selections and songs by Leon, the "Perichole Hoop La," duet by Kelly and Leon in character; the old favorite, Charley Howard, in his great sketch of "Uncle Jeff at Home;" S. S. Purdy, who was very popular here, and will be welcomed back in first part and afterpiece, and other pleasing divertisements too numerous to mention.

OLIVER DOUD BYRON.—The scene painters and carpenters of the California Theatre are hard at work on the play of "Across the Continent," in which this actor has achieved so much success and which he will present to the public a week from Monday.

JAMES M. WARD.—This actor, who has appeared to crowded houses in all parts of the Eastern States and won general commendation, will appear on Monday, the 14th, in his great play of "Through by Daylight" at the Metropolitan Theatre.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—The rain has laid the dust and a drive to the Cliff house to-morrow will be enjoyed by many. Captain Foster's dinners are famous and his wines and cigars first-

OFF FOR SOUTH AMERICA.—Painter and Durand, the famous acrobats and gymnasts, whose performances have delighted the citizens of San Francisco, left yesterday on the Panama steamer for Central America, with a company constituted as follows: Wm. Painter, A. P. Durand, Zadie Zelmar, F. Keibenstein (clown), Wm. Bruno, Dan Taylor, Augustine Bernal, Wm. Potter. They will give their first show at San Jose de Guatemala. It is not generally known that A. P. Durand was one of the original Christy's minstrel troupe, having joined it when a boy to do the fancy dance business. He afterwards played end business with George Christy, doing a tour of the troupe through the Western and Southern cities, and for a winter's season in New Orleans. Subsequently he adopted his present line of business—acrobat and gymnast.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—There is not within miles of this city a more delightful spot than the groves of San Rafael. The steamer Contra Costa will leave the wharf on Davis street, near Vallejo, to-morrow at 10½ A. M., on an excursion.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In Boston, at the Globe "Divorce" is the next novelty. Miss Charlotte Cushman begins an engagement here, Nov. 13th.

The Boston Theatre is occupied by the Nilsson Opera Company. Mr. Edwin Booth follows and will be succeeded by the "diamond edition of of dramatic delights," Lotta, who will produce her play entitled, "Rainbow."

The Museum is doing fairly, and has already produced five new plays for the first time in America: "My Uncle's Will," "Wait and Hope," Palace of Truth," Behind a Mask," and "Birthplace of Podgers." The Folio says: "With the exception of "My Uncle's Will" there is not a good piece among them.

Emma Grattan, enamel and all, is playing at the at the New Varieties, Phil.

Mr. Charles Matthews has been sued by a Philadelphia manager for breach of contract.

Miss Cushman's appearance as Lady Macbeth at Booth's has brought out a succession of audiences larger even than those which were attracted by her Queen Katherine.

Floyd has hit the mark properly this time. "Divorce" is drawing splendid houses, is charmingly placed upon the stage, well acted, while the ladies' dresses are simply exquisite.

Madame Anna Bishop will appear at Tremont Temple, in conjunction with Gilmore's Band, Nov. 3d.

The Boston Sun says: "The Howard Athenæum during the past week has had a succession of tremendous houses. Olivia Rand has made a decided hit and will continue for a short time longer.

It is said that Charlotte Cushman will act no more upon the mimic stage that her farewell of Booth's will be farewell to her many triumphs.

The Alleghanians, vocalists and Swiss bell ringers, have been meeting with great success in New York State.

The New York Mercury says: "The Opera House still finds good profit in "Eileen Oge," the Irish piece lately written by Edmund Falconer in England, and imported by Florence. It's success proves that the brogue has by no means lost its attractiveness to a large portion of the community. George Clarke and Rose Evans do up the misery of the piece; E. Thorne and C. W. Barry the villainy; and Mr. and Mrs. Florence throw in the humorous touches. The scenery is beautiful. Levy, the cornetist, nightly blows melodious blasts between acts, and gives much pleasure.

The Eastern papers say: Hattie Fabor, wife of E. M. Hall, now banjoing in Australia, obtained a divorce at Bangor, on the 5th, from her husband on the ground of desertion and non-support for five years." The last we heard of E. M. Hall he was in Denver. He has not got as far as Australia yet.

We find the following in the New York Mercury: "We noticed in a recent exchange paper that the pretty Ella Chapman had been married to W. O. Crosbie, and echoed the statement in our columns. The beauteous Ella and her rosy mamma were considerably cut up at the news, and the latter hastened to deny it. She says that the imagined bridegroom is now in California, and is simply an acquaintance, whom her daughter has not seen since May. Adding that Miss Ella is neither engaged nor contemplates the predicament, she asks for a denial.

John Collins appeared on the 16th and 17th ult, at Providence, R. I., in the "Colleen Bawn."

McKean Buchanan was at Quincy Ill., where he had played a successful engagement up to the 20th ult.

Neil Warner was at Buffalo up to the 21st. ult.

Frank Lawlor is to appear shortly at the Capitol Theatre, Albany, N. Y.

Mrs. Chanfrau played in "Christie Johnstone," at the New National Theatre, Washington, D. C, on the 25th.

Alf. Burnett, West Chester, Pa., 17th and 18th assisted by Helen Naab, and James W. Sharpley,

James Wallack appeared in Byron's "Daisy Farm," presented for the first time in America, at Ford's Grand Opera House, Baltimore, on the 23d ult.

The Boston Folio says:

Miss Kellogg has received a splendid offer to go to California for twenty nights. Fifty thousand dollars and all expenses paid is the price, it is rumored, the season to commence in Nov. but other engagements may prevent. She has never been in California, and she would take the place by storm.

Dominick Murray was the Memphis Theatre up to the 22d. Broom's Opera House was running a variety company.

The Worrell Sisters, Sophie, Jennie and Irene, with Harry Jackson and Jennie Willmore Franck, Wheeling, Va., the 9th, for three nights.

The elephant, Mogul, belonging to O'Brien's Circus, now travelling in New Jersey, escaped recently at Meridan, and did about $700 worth of damage. He ran his tusks through a mule and killed him, tore up a large quantity of picketfence, and tore up an apple-tree to which he was temporarily fastened after being caught. He was finally chained by the legs to another tree and upset. In this condition he was tied to the ground and belabored with clubs, iron bars and pitchforks, and was also kept without food. Being still refractory, he was shot. Mogul was considered the biggest elephant in the country, and, three years ago, cost $19,000. $25,000 was lately offered for him by Barnum, and refused.

When George Wood was about to open his Museum, Barnum's last M[illegible] fearing that Barnum would erect a new museum up town, contracted [illegible] $12,000 a year for ten years. [illegible] at he should not open any place in New York during that time, Barnum retired, and for several years has received his thousand dollars per month from Wood. But, lying idle having made Barnum restive, he started an immense travelling show, and has swept all before it throughout the country, frequently taking $9,000 to $10,000 in a single day. Now Barnum wants to bring his traveling show to New York for a month, and offers Wood $12,000 for the privilege. Wood replies, "No Sir! But tear up the the agreement but which I am to pay you $84,000 during the next seven years, and you may show in New York whatever and whenever you like. Barnum is in a brown study.

At Wallack's, the bill on the 23d consisted of "Aggravating Sam" and "The Nervous Man," by Charles Mathews, supported by Brougham, Gilbert and Stoddardt.

Miss Nilsson made her appearance at the Academy of Music, New York, on the 23d, to an immense audience. "Lucia di Lammermoor" was the opera. Miss Nilsson made a success, but yet did not quite come up to the high expectations formed of her. Her acting is spoken of as superb. The Tribune, speaking of the second act, says:

The alternations of anguish and melancholy in the first part of the act are admirably indicated; the terrible scene of the close is superb. Here when she tore of the wedding veil, threw herself at Arturo's feet, grasped his hands, clung to him as her last hope, and almost fought with him as he tried to tear himself away, one felt that the fierce consuming love which spoke in every look and gesture must turn to madness if it was defeated of its object. The effect upon the audience was electrical. It was impossible to mistake the demonstrations which followed; they were the marks of real enthusiasm. In the mad scene the action was perhaps still finer. An actress raving in white muslin is generally one of the most ridiculous of objects; but the madness of Nilsson's Lucia is something awful, and at the same time pathetic. There is no violence, no rant, no grotesque fancy; it is simply the mad melancholy of a bewildered brain and broken heart, bearing through all distractions the memory of a great sorrow.

On Wednesday, "Il Barbiere" was in consequence of the illness of Miss Nilsson, substituted for "Faust" which was announced, and Ronconi delighted the audience by his rendition of Figaro "Faust" was given on Friday evening and "Lucia" was repeated at the matinee on Saturday.

Murphy and "Help" are a success at the Bowery Theatre, and will continue during the week "Searching the Depths, or the New York Detective," is in preperation for early production.

The principal feature at the Union Square Theatre during the week will be "Po-ca-hon-tas," Mr. W. Leffingwell as Powhattan, Belle Howitt as Poca-hon-tas, Lizzie Willmore as Capt. John Smith, and Lizzie Kelsey as Poo-tee-pet. The Matthews Family remain, introducing new acts. M'lle Venturolli has succeeded Bonfanti in the ballet.

An Eastern contemporary says:

Pedro Sterling, of the London Christy's Minstrels, appears at the San Francisco shortly

This is our old friend Pete Sterling, known so many years in San Francisco as a wench dancer.

O. W. Children, the veteran actor is recuperating in New York. His engagements with impecunious fly-by-night managers, and wanderings in the Far West, would well fill a book.

The Boston Theatrical Times says:

Mr. John R. Wilkins, who was formerly so well known in New York as a scenic artist, has since been for several years at the California Theatre, San Francisco, where he has done considerable excellent work and won the reputation of being the most talented gentleman in his profession ever on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Wilkins is now, and has been for some time as scenic artist of the Metropolitan Theatre, for which he has painted some very fine scenes. He is at present at work on "Through by Daylight" shortly be produced by James M. Ward.

Edwin Booth made his first appearance in two years at the Boston Theatre on the 23d, in "Hamlet." Louis Aldrich was the King, Miss Rashel Noah, Ophelia, and Mrs. Charles Poole the Queen.

DR. CHAS. H. TOZER

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

WOULD MOST RESPECTFULLY inform those who may need his services that he has returned to San Francisco after an absence of three years, one of which he spent in the most celebrated Hospitals in England, France and Germany.

He has now re-opened his old Medical Office at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics in San Francisco make a practice of stating they can cure; but to most persons my name is sufficient to explain what DR. TOZER attends to.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night the famous Kelly & Leon's Minstrel will commence a season at this house, and present a very attractive programme. In the first part, Edwin Kelly will sing the ballad entitled "Whisper Yes or No Love;" Sam Purdy will make his re-appearance and sing a comic ditty; Charley Howard will sing his original song, "Carry the News to Mary," and a new finale in which Mr. Kelly will take part will be given. Next comes Leon "the only Leon," who will sing "When Sammy Comes Home," a "Scena from Somnambula, a la Parepa Rosa" and "Kitty from Cork." A great feature in the performance, will be the duet "Hoop-la" from "Perichole," by Leon and Kelly which was the sensation of New York for a long time. The evening's amusement will conclude with the operetta of "Twice Married," in which Kelly and Leon will both appear. This is only a hint of the feast of mirth and melody, prepared for those who manage to get into the Alhambra to-night. For further particulars, our readers are referred to the programme on our first page.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night "Rip Van Winkle," with Robert McWade, whose impersonation of the title role has steadily grown in public favor, will be presented for the last time. To-morrow night Brougham's exciting drama of "The Lottery of Life," will be produced with new scenery and a strong cast. Charles Vivian will appear as Coal Oil Tommy in the concert hall scene in which other popular performers will also appear. On the same evening G. B. Waldron and Miss Isabel Smythe, will commence an engagement.

California Theatre.

This is the last week of the engagement of F. S. Chanfrau, and he seems determined to make the public regret it by presenting a bill of extraordinary attractiveness. The performance will commence with the play of The Debutante, Mr. Chanfrau as Achille Talma Dufard, and after this comes the two-act drama entitled "Mose; or, a Glance at New York in '48." The public will at length see Mr. Chanfrau in the character of Mose, in which he first achieved fame; "Chanfrau in Mose" is an announcement of sufficient promise to crowd the California Theatre from pit to dome—particularly "dome." This capital evening's entertainment will conclude with "The Rough Diamond;" J. C. Williamson appearing as Cousin Joe and Miss May Howard as Margery.

Bella Union.

After a capital first part and brilliant interlude, in which M'lle Gaugain the charming danseuse; the graceful and accomplished M'lle Garretta the globe performer; Edwin Montague the daring aerial gymnast; Master Franklin in his Lingard specialties; J. H. Larkin the Dutch character actor; Miss Lotta the sweet voiced balladist, and many more will appear, the very attractive extravaganza of "The Marriage of the Amazons,' with the very popular Aline Le Favre as Prince Vimmi, will be presented.

Theatre Comique.

This place of amusement was, as usual, thronged last night and the performance gave general satisfaction. The new artistes, Claude and Henri Stuart, received much applause, and Tommy McLaughlin gained a hearty welcome. These performers, together with the old favorites: Miss Maggie Knight, Johnny Tuers, the Arab boy, Lizzie Harmon, and a host of others will appear to-night in a richly diversified entertainment of songs and dances, acts and gymnastic performances. The enterprising management announce as in active preparation a new play written expressly for the Theatre Comique, entitled "The Trial of Brigham Young."

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

This theatre, of which such a laudatory description appeared in yesterday's Chronicle, draws immense audiences, proving that the public appreciate the energy and enterprise displayed by the management. The last great sensation at this house is an original drama entitled, "The Naked Truth," which serves to introduce a dozen or so of pretty and well-formed young ladies in picturesque groupings. The comic portions of the drama are well rendered by R. H. Cox, as General Gumtux, a worn out veteran; Charley Vincent as Mungo Muffins, a colored body servant; R. G. Marsh as Jerry Jingo, "the gory galoot," a member of the P. R. Hugby Morton as Harry Rackett, a gallant young lovier, (very well acted); George Lowden as Judge Lecher, by no means an ornament to the bench; Miss Amelia Dean as Fanny Dulce, a very modest young lady; the vivacious Sally Thayer as old Mother Baisover, and Clara Starr as the fair Goosina Doddle.

Benefit of Billy Emerson.

The Alhambra Theatre was literally thronged on Saturday night, when Billy Emerson the most popular of negro minstrels, took his benefit previous to starting with his talented band of burnt cork artists, to delight the denizens of the interior.

Australian Theatrical News.

The Zavistowski Sisters made as great a success in Melbourne as they did in Sidney, and were at latest dates drawing large houses at the Theatre Royal. Mrs. Gladstane was at the Princess's. The Haymarket was burned down on the 23d, and Apollo Hall, adjoining, was destroyed. Neither place had been open for some time. The Pompei and Cisgli Italian Opera Troupe were in Sidney doing well.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Gents' Furnishing Goods.

All persons in want of Furnishing Good should make a note that at SEGUIN & CHARLEBOIS'S, 706 and 708 Montgomery street, can be found the largest and cheapest assortment of goods in that line in the city. Star shirts of the best quality for $1 50; woolen overshirts, drawers, undershirts, half-hose, handkerchiefs, at prices below the lowest in the city. 706 and 708 Montgomery street, one door from Washington, east side. FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Of amusements in London up to Sept. 30th we learn the following: Andrew Halliday's drama of "Rebecca" was produced at Drury Lane on Sept. 23d.....The Holborn Theatre was re-opened for the season on Sept. 25th, under the management of R. Mansell, with a drama entitled "Edmund Kean, by the late Alexandre Dumas, and which had been intimately associated with the fame of Frederick Lemaitre. It had remained unknown to the London boards some thirty-five years, but at last one manager was found bold enough to brave the penalties and produce it. The Daily Telegraph of Sept. 26th says: "Once upon a time, in one of his wildest moments, Alexandre Dumas chose to describe upon the stage the improbable life of an impossible actor; and being hard pressed for a title, he turned his hero into a great man of whom the great novelist knew absolutely nothing—Edmund Kean. He painted in sensuous colors the life of a drunkard and a debauchee, the Frenchman's notion of a lady-killer, a fellow despised for his weakness by his dresser, the fancy of ladies of high degree, a trickster with sliding pants in his dressing-room, which was a place of assignation for silly women; and a man so utterly devoid of taste, discipline, and good breeding as to burst out in the middle of the Balcony Scene in 'Romeo and Juliet' before a gigantic audience, and fling his vulgar Billingsgate at the head of the Prince of Wales, afterwards George the Fourth, because his royal highness happened to be chatting to the lady Kean chose to admire." A shoal of absurdities, to which we have not referred, is found in the piece, but what we have indicated is enough to show how wholly unsuited is the whole to English tastes. To some the liberty taken with the actor will be an offense. But apart from questions of this kind, the piece, in spite of its being from the pen of Dumas, is poor, and could only be hoisted into popularity on the strength of the kind of acting it did not receive."....The Surrey was re-opened Sept. 23d, under the management of R. Shepphord, who controlled it in the same position some years since. "Watch and Wait," a new romantic drama, was the opening attraction.....

At the Alfred "True as Steel," a new and original drama, in which Edwin Romaine, the author, made his first appearance in London, was produced Sept. 25th. The principal situation is the narrow escape of the hero from being crushed under a steam trip hammer—which has been used here in "Schneider." —Another situation is a descent of one of the chief characters upon the sails of windmill.

Miss Robertson was to have made her first appearance at the Haymaket on the 9th, as Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal," On Oct. 16th, Mr. Buckstone and Amy Sedgwick were to have appeared.

At the Paris theatres the following plays were running at the latest dates: At the Français, "Adrienne Lecouvreur;" at the Opera Comique, "L'Ombre;" at the Lyrique, "Martha;" Gymnase, "Saint-Lucie," "Le Reflets," "Le Porte-Cigares;" Vaudeville, "Le Roman d'un jeune homme pauvre;" Varieties, "Les Brigands," "Le Bouquet;" Bouffes-Parisiens, "La Princesse de Trebizonde;" Palais-Royal, "Les Diable roses;" Chatelet, "Vingt Ans apres;" Gaite, "Le Bosso" ("Duke's Motto"); Ambigu, "Jeanne la Rousse;" Chateau-D'eau, "La Queue du Chat;" Menus-Plaisirs, "Le Puits qui chante;" Folies-Dramatiques, "Le Petit Faust."

The final farewell of Signor Mario at Covent Garden is to be followed by his appearance in Madrid in the spring, to sing in opera.

Mr. A. S. Rok has published Shakspeare's "Richard the Third" in Dutch, with notes.

Verdi's new opera, "Aida," will be produced at La Scala at the beginning of the year, as well as at Cairo. The house of Ricord has purchased the copyright.

Madame Patti had intended to go to America towards the end of next August, but in consequence of recent arrangements the tour is postponed till the winter of '73-74.

The Malta journals mention that a company of Oniness jugglers were playing at Valetta. They were about to leave, and for the benefit performance of the director, one of the troupe, a Persian, had announced in the bills that he would swallow a red-hot sword.

An English paper has the following: The National English Opera Company opened duly at St. James Theatre on the 21st, to a full and appreciative house. The opera selected was Balfe's "Rose of Castile"—a work whose popularity among the masses, as well as its representative position among the few stage compositions of the English school, recommend it for the initial piece. A good deal of interest was attached to the return to England of Miss Rose Hersee, a young lady who has matriculated in America as prima donna, and comes back for the full honors. These she is well qualified to gain. Her Queen of Castile was a remarkably sprightly and varied performance, showing strong dramatic instincts, confidence and savoir faire. Her voice has gained in fulness and strength, particularly in the middle register; and her capacity for fioriture is excellent. Altogether Miss Hersee, like good wine, has gained much by her ocean voyage, and her efforts as well as her reception on Saturday were all that could be desired. On Monday Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" was the opera, and gave general satisfaction. Miss Hersee was the Arline, and substantiated the favorable impression of debut. She was encored in "Marble Halls," and throughout charmed by the spirit and life of her acting as well as by the purity of her singing. Miss Palmer was tasteful and soignee; she makes an acquisition to the operatic stage. The Swedish tenor, Mr. Nordblom, suffered, we understand, from a neuralgic affection, but with praiseworthy courage went through the part amid martyrdom. He has distinct power as a singer, and possesses stage knowledge; but it is obviously unfair to analyze his capacities under the painful circumstances. No apology was made for him, so that the audience was left in ignorance of his real claims as a dramatic tenor.

CHICAGO.

BY JOHN READE.

In the depth of the prairie wild,
The home of the buffalo herd,
One day the voice of a little child
The soul of the desert stirred.

And the buffalo fled for fear,
By that tiny voice subdued,
And people gathered from far and near
To conquer the solitude.

Thus it was that she rose to view,
The beautiful Queen of the West,
Where brooded the awful Manitou
Over the still lake's breast.

She sits like a queen on her throne,
And bright is the crown she wears,
In the whole wide world there is not one
More happy than she and hers.

Let her enjoy while she may—
Has not somebody said:
"Let us eat and drink and be merry to-day,
To-morrow we may be dead!"

O Queen, in thy wealth and pride
If thou sawest the danger near,
If thou knewest the woe that thee betide,
Thy heart would freeze with fear!

She sits no more like a queen.
Happy and rich and gay,
Her wealth is now with the things that have been
And her glory has passed away.

Crushed and bleeding and torn,
In ashes and dust she lies,
And the cry of her thousands left forlorn
Pierces the cruel skies.

Fallen is her crown of pride,
Fallen are her palace-domes,
And her streets are ghastley far and wide
With the wrecks of ruined homes.

Father and mother and child,
Hungry and cold and wan,
Where the demon-fire held carnival wild,
Find their happy homestead gone.

And some there are who seek
For the living among the dead,
With anguished faces that more than speak
How their inmost hearts have bled.

O God! 'tis a pitiful sight!
Look down and in mercy spare
The children whose wail through the livelong night
Pierces the smoky air.

Thank God for the blessed rain!
Thank God for the hearts that feel
With a brother's love for a brother's pain!
For the words and acts that heal!

She is weary and desolate
And her beautiful head bows low,
And the nations mourn o'er her awful fate
And pity her in her woe.

But her heart still throbs with life
And her strength will come again,
And her marts with the wealth of the world be rife,
And the voices of busy men.

But oh! may her people learn
From that awful scourge of flame
To fear the God who can say, "Return
To the dust from which you came."

So she may be a queen,
Not in outer splendor alone,
But, in fire re-born and made pure within
Sit on a stainless throne.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Department,

We used to laugh at Mr. Turveydrop in Dickens' "Bleak House"—that eminent Professor of Deportment. But there is such a science, after all, for we find in a Montreal newspaper Miss Mary S. Burroughs advertising that she will receive "select private classes in Deportment on moderate terms;" while one Signor Hazazar will also take in hand "classes of Etiquette and Deportment.' Moreover, the Signor has written a "Book of Etiquette," which he offers at the temptingly moderate price of twenty-five cents. He must be a most irreclaimable Orson who refuses to become a polished chevalier at the low cost of two bits, and we know some men who would find a prolonged tuition under the Signor a pleasant thing, at least to their friends.

Walter Talk.

Charles Mathews, the younger, puts on record a laughable specimen of abbreviation. Going into an eating house for lunch, he heard, as he entered and sat down, seven orders given in quick succession by a throng of as many customers; one calling for a basin of ox-tail soup, two for mock-turtle soup, three for pea-soup, and one for bouilli. And the waiter, dashing to the speaking-tube that communicated with the cook, bawled out with immense rapidity: "Oneox, two mocks, three peas and a bully."

A Genuine Meerschaum Pipe for $1.

Go to Hasey's Palace Variety Store, 521 Kearny street, between California and Sacramento streets, and inspect his immense stock of genuine Vienna meerschaum pipes bought during the late war for less than manufacturer's prices, and sold for less than freight and duty.

New York Dry Goods Store,

What Cheer Laundry

Employs no Chinamen, and should be patronized by everybody.

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Hascke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him.

Chicago and New York Dailies

Received every day at WHITE & BAUER'S, 413 Washington street, opposite Post Office.

Not So.

The San Jose Mercury has the following:

That spicy little journalistic tid-bit, FIGARO, we regret to be compelled to believe, has ceased to exist. As we have'nt seen a copy of it for some two weeks, we conclude it was about that length of time ago that it "defuncted." If not too late we desire to shed a tear over its mortal remains. Will somebody pass us an "ing'un?"

We assure our respected contemporary that FIGARO is not dead, but still "here, there and everywhere." The funeral of one of our mail clerks, who inadvertently blotted out the name of the San Jose Mercury will take place to-morrow at two o'clock; friends and acquaintances are requested to accept this notice. It was a rash and bloody deed but he provoked his fate.

Broke.

Ovid finely compares a man of broken fortune to a falling column; the lower it sinks the greater weight it is obliged to sustain. Thus, when a man has no occasion to borrow, he finds numbers willing to lend him. Should he ask his friends to lend him a hundred dollars, it is possible, from the largeness of his demand, he may find credit for twenty; and should he humbly sue for a trifle, it is doubtful whether he might be trusted for ten cents.

Pretty Sharp.

A good instance of sharp practice is that of a man in Ohio, who was acquitted of murder on a plea of insanity. He had secured his lawyers by giving them a mortgage on his farm, but now repudiates the mortgage on the ground that he was insane when he made it, according to the showing of these same lawyers.

Pretty Figure.

We have heard of eyes in peacock's tails but when a Missouri paper speaks pathetically of "poverty's finger staring a woman in the face," we are compelled to acknowledge a new anatomical novelty.

A Mr. Lopez, of London and St. Petersburg, has just died and left $75,000,000 to be cut up—the third largest property ever in an English probate court.

A little terrier in Iowa ate a yeast cake. Next morning his master didn't know him; he was as big as a bull-dog.

Sims Reeves.

Mr. Sims Reeves is unquestionably the finest English tenor singer now before the public; and he is not only the best we have, comparatively, but he is intrinsically good; take him as he is, voice, style, expression, execution—he is a wonderful artist, and deserving of all the favor he receives, and entitled to the indulgence he occasionally requires. We do not think him the best model for imitation; and hope our next primo tenore may be equally as good in another direction. While we have Mr. Reeves—and may his days be long—the mass of the public will applaud other singers in proportion as they resemble him; and this has created more than one mimic, whose mimicry sometimes gains as much applause as the singing of the prototype. This fact must be depressing to conscientious vocalists who seek public favor by legitimate means.—London Orchestra.

A cynical lady, rather inclined to flirt, says most men are like a cold, very easily caught, but very difficult to get rid of.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The entertainment given at this theatre last night was of the most popular description and should attract crowded houses during the rest of the week. 'The Lottery of Life" is full of sensation, neat bits of character acting, and comic scenes, all of which were well presented last night by Robert McWade, C. Vivian, James M. Hardie, G. B. Waldron, J. H. Vinson, John Woodard, and others engaged in the representation of the play. Robert McWade in the character of Bob Mawley was particularly funny in the scene where he communicates with his master by pantomime; C. Vivian played the inebriated Coal Oil Tommy in the most vividly natural manner and gained double encores for his song in the Concert Room Scene. In the same scene, Miss Maggie Moore was rewarded with immense applause and repeated encores for the charming manner in which she performed a song and dance; pretty little Lulu Wilson was similarly honored on singing "The Yellow Girl that Winked at Me;" "The Screech Owl Serenaders," caused immense merriment and altogether this part of the entertainment was a success of the most decided character. James M. Hardie played the part of Terry the swell, in a quietly effective manner; G. B. Waldron showed much power in the scene where the villiany of Mordie Solomon Allcraft's is unmasked; J. H. Vinson gave a well-sustained and characteristic rendition of the part of Sir Wilton Downe; Harry Colton was good as Rupert Downe; Mrs. Waldron, ladylike and pleasing as Emily Summers; Miss Fanny Young, very amusing as Miss Tartar; Mrs. Frank Rea, excellent as the old apple-woman; and Miss Susie Soule, pert and pretty as Mary. This attractive piece will be played every evening during the week, and at the matinee on Saturday.

Alhambra Theatre.

Again last night this theatre was thronged to excess and the dress circle presented a brilliant spectacle, crowded as it was with the beauty and fashion of San Francisco. In response to the enthusiastic recall which followed the duet of Hoop la from "Perichole," Leon and Kelly gave a bit of cat opera, representing two romantic felines as making love in operatic notes. This convulsed the audience with laughter. The operetta of "Twice Married," which concludes the rich entertainment presented by this splendid band of minstrels is very amusing; Kelly's make-up for Uncle Jack causing great laughter, and the performances of Leon as Carlotta and Victoria Lapage were much applauded. In order to obtain a seat at the Alhambra Theatre, it is necessary to secure it in advance or put in an appearance some time before the curtain rises.

California Theatre.

"Mose," with the comedietta of "the Debutante and the farce of the "Rough Diamond," drew another large house last night, and will be witnessed by thousands during the present week. Whatever may be said against "Mose" as a literary production, it cannot be denied that with the characters in such hands as Chanfrau, J. C. Williamson, W. A. Mestayer, Henry Edwards and others of the California Theatre company, it makes the audience laugh heartily and quite forget to criticise.

Bella Union.

Among the many attractions offered nightly for the delectation of the patrons of this very popular variety theatre, may be mentioned the delightfully artistic dances of M'lle Gaugain; the graceful performances of M'lle Eugenie Gerretta on the running globe; the gymnastic performances of Edwin Montague; Miss Lotta's specialties; James Franklin's Lingard sketches; Chris Matthews in song and dance; funny negro acts and comic songs by other members of the company, and finally to wind up this feast of mirth, music and mimicry, the ever-popular Aline Le Favre in her capital impersonation of Pete in the play of "The Statue Blanche."

Theatre Comique.

The performances of the world-renowned Lancashire Bell Ringers are applauded again and again, the audience never wearying of their music, of their sweet-toned bells. Miss Maggie Knight appears in numerous character songs; Johnny Tuers in his immensely funny act of the Goat Island Ghost, which as played by him is one of the most mirth-provoking pieces ever seen on any stage and a large company in a varied programme amuse the large audiences which nightly assemble. The next novelty will be the production of a new and original comic drama written expressly for this house by the author of "Schnoozer," entitled "The Trial of Brigham Young."

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The ballet of "The Dancing Scotchman" is a great success, and the whole interlude comprising ballads by Miss Eva Silva; duets by the Stanleys; gymnastics by Samwells; comic songs by Sally Thayer; and many other features which are fully enumerated on our first page, is very attractive The play of "The Naked Truth" with its funny scenes, and pretty groupings of pretty girls is a great attraction. Novelty is the motto of the management, and they announce for to-morrow, the first appearance of Miss Jennie Engles, the clog dancer from New York, and Miss Minnie Wells, soubrette actress from Tony Pastor's Opera House. Another new local play is in active preparation.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Emerson's Minstrels in Sacramento.

An immense audience was present at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday, and the public and press are loud in their praise of the performance.

Funny.

The Bulletin in its notice of the performance of "Mose" at the California Theatre, naively says:

Unfortunately, the rendition of the play was a partial failure, and at its close, most of the respectable people in the audience left the theatre. The corridors were literally jammed with people retiring from the building.

Just so. Everyone present having come to see "Mose," few cared to see the afterpiece of "The Rough Diamond." These "respectable people" took precious good care not to move before the close of the play.

Prudes are coquettes, gone to seed.

LETTER FROM AUSTRALIA.

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

MELBOURNE, August 23d, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—In common justice I may claim a space in your lively paper to reply to the animadversions made by a correspondent on my letter dated from here in April last. "Shaun the Post," for so he delights to sign himself, has in your issue of the 14th of June, in a lame attempt to deprecate the truthfulness of my statements, given utterance to a series of wilful untruths, silly fallacies and malignant misstatements. He acknowledges himself a member of the dramatic profession, and unmistakably shows his personal dislike to the gentleman most respected of all managers in this city—Mr. George Coppin. I do not belong to the noble army of Thespians, but having held connection with the press of this city for the past twelve years, and having made theatricals my hobby, I am pretty well able to form an opinion on theatrical matters. The statements I made in April last I still assert in every particular, and regret that in justice to myself I am compelled to travel over much the same ground I again unhesitatingly affirm that Messrs. Harwood & Co. did, while the management of the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, was under their control, do more to debase the members of the theatrical profession, paid less salaries, and by their cheese-paring course of action brought their company down to the lowest pitch of incapacity and weakness conceivable. Having established a monopoly—having all places of amusement in Melbourne under their thumb—they either starved out the members of the profession or those having families, and not being in a position to seek "fresh fields," were compelled to accept a week's employment now and then. That is, a play was produced requiring say only nine people; by good luck it would run twelve nights; during that run all and sundry who were not required in the piece were quietly discharged until another play was put on necessitating a greater number of performers. Now, what could the artists do? Some left the colony in disgust, among them Mr. J. J. Bartlett, Mr. Appleton and many others. "Shaun" fancies he has made a stroke at me, and charges me with a wish to deprecate the talents of Messrs. Harwood, Ireland, Rogers, Greville and Stewart. I deny the imputation. I acknowledge the talent of these gentlemen, but as one swallow does not make a summer, neither do five good actors make up a competent company. I carefully abstained from mentioning names, and I took especial pains to italicize "as a company." Again, Mr. J. B. Howe was never expected to take the position of leading man at any time, and furthermore he was an importation of George Coppin quite irrespective of Harwood & Co. I entirely endorse the remarks of "Shaun" as to the abilities of the five gentlemen he alludes to; they are all very excellent stock actors; but when he states, "each of whom in their own particular lines of business could star with success throughout England and America," he shows his intense ignorance, and should on the advice of the reverend Dogberry write himself down an ass. His estimate of Mr. Harwood is pitiable in the extreme. Mr. Harwood is versatile, an excellent character actor, and equally talented in burlesque; but in tragedy—heaven help us! Mr. Harwood himself knows his power, and but for the mean policy of starving out good actors, would never have appeared in tragedy. Your very truthful correspondent shows the cloven hoof in his diatribe against George Coppin. "I must remember," he says, "that through his parsimony some of his stars were failures, as his policy is to have a company composed of as cheap people as he can get together, or as he may venture to safely foist upon the public." Now, sir, I affirm and challenge contradiction, that during the very many years that Mr. Coppin has been connected with the Melbourne theatres he has never had at any time such a thoroughly weak and incompetent company as has been at the Theatre Royal during the last two years of Harwood & Co's management. With regard to McCoppin's failures in regard to stars—if there have been any (of which my memory does not serve), they must have been few and far between. Mr. Harwood as sen or lessee went home some time since to engage talent for the Theatre Royal and succeeded in getting out more failures in the course of two years than Mr. Coppin has done in the whole course of of his career. His first venture, Frank Drew, a perfect collapse; Bandmann by a fluke made a hit for a short time, but was ultimately a most egregious failure, Miss Rose Evans, Mrs. Bentley and the Sisters Duvalli all minor people in comparison to Mr. Coppin's consignments, never left any mark of importance behind them. There was this difference in the two managers—Mr. Coppin engages the very best talent and takes the risk. Mr. Harwood with a soul not above buttons and no "speculation in his eyes"—goes into the London theatrical market with the liberal offer to divide after £300 per week. Can the force of stupidity farther go? As if first-class stars would leave the home country to ensure managers 15,000 miles off their weekly expenses before they received any remuneration themselves. No wonder Mr. Harwood was laughed at and received the cold shoulder at the Senior Garrick Club when he was in London. Thank God Melbourne has done, and let us hope for all time with Mr. Harwood. I can assure you, sir, that now Coppin is sole manager, a great change is coming over our theatrical world, and in congratulating ourselves on the change in management it is pleasing to review the past career of that gentleman as a test of what may be expected in the future. Mr. Coppin among many others introduced to Australia, not on sharing terms mind you, but at his own risk, Madame Anna Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, James Anderson, Mr. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Gourlay, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews. Now for the great and spirited speculation of Harwood & Co. Mr. Coppin having engaged the Zavistowski Sisters for a tour through these colonies naturally wished them to play at the Royal in this city—he opened communication with Harwood & Co., as to terms, they, thinking they had Coppin on the hip, declined to engage except on terms lower than Coppin was actually paying the artists themselves. Negociations went on for some time and ultimately Coppin was compelled to look for another establishment in which to introduce these talented ladies. He opened up communication with the company supporting them in Sydney with a view to all hands coming down to the Princess Theatre, Melbourne. This was no sooner discovered by Harwood & Co., than they closed with Coppin to retire from the Theatre on less advantageous terms than they might have had previously. You will no doubt estimate at its proper value the offer of Mr. Harwood's agent to furnish you with a montly digest of reliable news In conclusion I am sure that during the whole period that I have been honored as your correspondent, I have never misled the profession. I say as I have said before, unless a star of the first magnitude and with specialties, I would not recommend any member of the dramatic circle to venture to Australia on any account. In writing, I call a spade a spade—things by their right names—therefore I stigmatize "Shaun the Post's" communication—so far as the facts are concerned—a wilful perversion of the truth. CALL BOY.

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

"FIGARO."

Published every day, except Sunday, by

J. P. BOGARDUS

—AT—

532 Merchant St. and 535 Washington St

Below Montgomery Block.

WEDNESDAY.....NOVEMBER 8, 1871

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

300 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Religious Blasphemy.

Religious papers claim to themselves the right to be as blasphemous as they choose, and place themselves on a footing of confidential intimacy with the Deity which is slightly shocking. The Chicago Advance actually compliments the Almighty for having had sufficient "moral courage" to destroy Chicago; thus:

God's wisdom and love, saw the blow to be necessary in the interest of righteousness and of His holy and moral government, and He had the firmness to inflict it. There is something sublimely solemn, in such an act of God, which, to the thoughtless and wicked, seems heartless, but which in reality, is the supreme grandeur of moral courage, which dares to do a right thing at immense cost.

Useful Dog.

The champion dog resides in Lowell, Mass., and belongs to a prominent grocer; when this intelligent brute (the dog) sees halt a barrel of flour weighed out on the scales he goes and puts one foot on the platform, carelessly looking out of the door to avoid exciting suspicion.

"Fair," Play.

Mrs. Laura D. Fair, has during her confinement in jail completed a play founded on Owen Meredith's poem of Lucille. If things turn out as she expects, she will go on a starring tour in the principal role.

"Ma, dear, Ada won't take her physic; I've mixed her a dose of vinegar and sand, and she says I must take some first. Doctors never do—do they ma?"

There are two reasons why some people don't mind their business: One is that they haven't any business, and the second that they have no mind.

The height of impudence—Taking shelter from the rain in an umbrella shop.

Convulsions, Fainting and Epileptic Fits,

And falling sickness, cured by Mme. Knaresborough, 753 Howard street. No charge until a cure is effected. Patients suffering from old sores or humors which medical treatment may have entirely failed to heal, may rely on finding a complete cure. Rheumatic afflictions relieved in in 24 hours. References given. No charge in advance. s

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him. E

Chicago and New York Dailies

Newspaper Quarrels.

The New York Nation has a sharp, but good-natured paragraph in regard to the chronic warfare between two morning papers, and very sensibly observes:

We have always wondered, and shall never cease to wonder, how it is the editors of newspapers have not found out how utterly nauseating to the great bulk of their readers these quarrels with each other are, and how very few people read them, and how completely all interest in them is confined to other newspaper men. The wonder, too, is made all the greater by the fact that no newspaper was probably ever yet injured in circulation or influence by what another newspaper said of it. The success of a paper, and the estimation in which it is held, depend, as in the case of individuals, on its general character, that is, on prolonged experience of the way in which it does its work, and the value of its judgments of men and affairs. Any paper which has gained a respectable footing in these respects, cannot be in the least injured by another paper's saying every now and then, that it is a fool, a liar, or a knave.

The Russians in Alaska.

The Alaska Herald is trying to get up a revolution in Alaska. It says:

It is not improbable that the people of Alaska will rise in rebellion against their enslavers. Since that country came into our possession the universal testimony has been that the natives are quiet, peaceable and industrious. Their plunderers, however, are driving them to despair and the people can not be blamed if they strike boldly for their rights and liberties.

It will be pleasant news for Duke Alexis to learn that the United States government has reduced some thousands of his countrymen to a condition of serfdom, by selling them body and soul to a corporation of capitalists for whom they must work or starve to death.

Barkey Economy,

A Georgian negro thought he would economize by sending his son to school and then make the boy teach him. The plan worked well until the young teacher, following the custom of the seminary where he was taught, gave the old man a thrashing for spelling dog, d-o-r-g.

Cheerful.

It is cheerful to be sitting in a railroad car, going at the rate of forty miles an hour, and have a man pass through the train and leave a tract in your lap entitled "Prepare to meet your God."

A Sensation in Hats.

The new Fall and Winter styles are fast arriving at "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. One in particular has already been adopted as the fashion; it is a fine low-crowned felt hat, with a curved brim, and is called "The Grand Duke." Those who wish to be in the fashion must go to "THE" Hat Store, long famed for having the latest styles and for its moderate prices. X

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The public of San Francisco were unwilling that Mr. Chanfrau should leave before first giving his wonderfully life-like representation of old Pete in "The Octoroon," and consequently in spite of the crowded houses which "Mose" has drawn, it has to give way to night to the wonderfully sensational and attractive drama of "The Octoroon," the cast of which will be found on our first page.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"The Lottery of Life" as presented at the Metropolitan Theatre with Robert McWade, C. Vivian, J. H. Hardie, G. B. Waldron, J. H. Vinson, Maggie Moore, Miss Fanny Young, and other popular artistes in the cast, is a prodigious hit. The concert room scene is an entertainment in itself and the numerous encores make it one of considerable length. "The Lottery of Life" will be repeated until further notice; it will be presented at the matinee on Saturday. To-morrow evening Mr. McWade will take his farewell benefit, and make his last appearance but three.

Alhambra Theatre.

Leon is the talk of the town and all the ladies are going to see how admirably he "takes them off." There is no caricature about Leon's representation of a young lady—it is a real living person whom one may meet any day if one has not already the pleasure of be acquaintance. Charley Howard is as popular as ever, and "The Days When I was Young" is the popular ballad of the day; Kelly is excellent in his acts, and the cat opera by him and Leon is one of the most delicious bits of absurdity ever seen on any stage. The first Kelly and Leon matinee on Saturday.

Bella Union.

In the first part Miss Lotta, Miss May Leroy, Mat Kelly, Tommy Bree and Chris Mathews perform a pleasing programme of ballads and comic songs, and wind up with "The Goose and Gander Walk-Around M'lle Gangain, the pretty and graceful danseuse, appears in the interlude; Eugenie Gerretta gives her performance on the running globe; Edwin Montague appears as the "aerial sprite," and many others in specialties. "The Statue Blanche," with the statuesque Le Favre as Pete, concludes the entertainment.

Theatre Comique.

One of the great attractions at the Theatre Comique at present is the very pleasing performance of the Lancashire Bell Ringers, whose music is of a description that never fails to delight all who hear it. Little Maggie Knight, the new Lotta, is great in character songs; Johnny Tuers sends the audience into fits of laughter by his act of "The Goat Island Ghost" and a fine programme of songs, dances and acts is performed.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The management of this theatre are untiring in their efforts to please the public taste. To-night an entirely new programme will be presented and the management announce the first appearance of Jenny Engels, the great champion jig dancer and song and dance artiste, and also of Miss Minnie Wells, a soubrette of extraordinary personal attractions. The great local drama entitled "The Naked Truth," has proved a wonderful hit, and among other entertaining features, the popular sketch of "Before the War," illustrating darkey life on the plantation will be played, with Charley Vincent as old Jeff, R. G. Marsh as Master Henry and Leon Samwells as Aunt Sally.

Hayes Park.

This very pleasant resort will be opened on Sunday next, and a series of extraordinary performances will be given by the Oscar Brothers, Prof. Griffiths and Miss Carrie Williams. The old rates of admission, 25 cents, will be retained.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Onaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

His Choice.

A clergyman, who had been staying for some time at the house of a friend, on going away, called to him little Tommy, the four-year-old son of his host, and asked what he should give him for a present. Tommy, who had a great respect for the "cloth," thought it is his duty to suggest something of a religous nature, so he announced hesitatingly, "I—I think I should like a Testament, and I know I should like a pop-gun."

A Disgusted Nigger.

Albert, an old Fifteenth Amendment, was discoursing in Lawrenceville, Georgia, upon the subject of negroes. The Atlas thus reports him: "He 'rose to 'splain himself as follows: "I jes tell you, niggers is a gitten too big enyhow—da tinks demselbes good as white folks; dars my wife, she's don had four pair high-up gaiter-shoes dis year, and now wants another pair. It's quare dat bein' sot free will make niggers such fools, da used to think they was a-doin' mighty well if they get a pair ob shoes by Christmas. I wish de last one ob dem was put back in slabery for about five years to learn 'em sum sense. I'd be willing to go back myself, jes to see sum ob dese bigoted niggers took down."

Rough on the Flies.

At last the pestiferous house-flies are to meet the fate they so richly deserve. Titusville, Pa., has invented a reliable sort of fly paper. This fly paper is covered with nitro glycerine, glue and molasses. The flies, attracted by the molasses, alight, and are stuck fast by the glue. Should any get away, they proceed to rub their legs together in ecstasy, when friction of their own shins causes the nitro glycerine adhering to their feet and limbs to explode, blowing them to atoms.

Little Lulu was most philosophical. Two or three hours after eating a hearty dinner of succotash she complained of a stomach-ache. "Perhaps" suggested her mother, "the succotash you ate is troubling you." "Oh! no mamma," she replied, "it isn't that, it's ever so far below the succotash."

A Russian peasant, nearly nine feet high, and claiming to be the tallest man in the world, is exhibiting himself in Poland.

The last remark made by a man while separating under the influence of nitro-glycerine was, "Let me collect myself."

The melancholy days have come—the saddest of the year, when it is too warm for whisky skins and too cool for lager beer.

A Georgia laundress of color wept because some paper collars which she tried to renovate "done wash all to flinders, for true."

Louis Napoleon was like a very wet day; because he rained as long as he could and then, mizzled.

The latest kink of fashion is morning card parties.

SLANDER.

'Twas but a breath—
And yet a woman's fair fame wilted,
And friends once warm were cold and stilted;
And life was worse than death.

One venomed word,
That struck its coward, poison blow,
In craven whispers, hushed and low,
And yet the wide world heard.

'Twas but one whispered—one—
That muttered low, for very shame,
That thing the slanderer dare not name,
And yet its work was done.

A hint so slight,
And yet so mighty in its power,
A human soul, in one short hour,
Lies crushed beneath its blight.

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. Orders may be left either at the Occidental Hotel or at the stables, No. 1016 Stockton street, near Washington. G

He has now re-opened his old Medical Institute at the corner of Kearny and Jackson streets, San Francisco, where for nine years he was so successful in curing all cases that came under his treatment, which is unnecessary to mention or explain on paper.

I am aware that some of the empirics of San Francisco make a practice of stating what they cure; but to most persons my name will be sufficient to explain what DR. CHAS. H. TOZEE attends to.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

Legal Puzzle.

One of the oddest questions ever submitted to lawyers is now puzzling those of Hartford, Conn. It seems that a man who recently died there left a widow childless, but expecting to become a mother. By his will he provided that if the expected child should turn out to be a boy, two-thirds of the property should go to him, and one-third to the widowed mother. If, however, the child proved to be a girl, only one-third was to go to her, and two-thirds to the mother. The result, of course was awaited, with an interest even greater than that usually bestowed upon such events. The result is,—the widow has become the mother of twins—a boy and a girl.

Fanny Elsler.

The once celebrated danseuse, Fanny Elsler, is now living very quietly at the Hague, occupying most of her time in raising flowers, of which she is passionately fond. Roses are her favorites, and she raises one particular kind which has for some time borne her name, and which is much prized in Holland. Though she danced before our grandmothers, she has entered only recently on her 61st year. She is much esteemed in the Dutch capital for her numerous deeds of charity.

Real country butter—An angry goat. A contemtible set—Wiggle's teeth. Schools of design—young widows. The labor question—How much? A matter-of-course—A race track. Tried and found wanting—An escaped convict. Suspended animation—A fish struggling on the end of a line.

An honest country parson, who, in the time of a great drought, was desired to pray for rain, answered: "I'll willingly do it to oblige you, but it is to no purpose while the wind is in this quarter."

Convulsions, Fainting and Epileptic Fits.

References given. No charge in advance. s

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Hascke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him. E

Just the Thing for California.

A genius in Cayuga county has been experimenting this season with the view of utilizing that hardy vegetable, the Canada thistle, and has succeeded in distilling from the stalks and leaves an article of spirits which he styles thistle whisky. Its effect upon the system is very penetrating and exhilarating, the sensation being the same as if a jewsharp in full tune was attached to every nerve. The discovery of this new beverage anticipates its introduction into extensive use, and expects to produce a variety of light wines from the same herb; meanwhile the farmers of that locality are talking of giving their attention especially to the cultivation of Canada thistles.—N. Y. Sunday Atlas.

There are any number of fortunes to be made by the industrious farmers of Cayuga if they will only pull up stakes and emigrate hitherward. The great arid plains of Washoe are particularly adapted to the raising of the Canada thistle, and we believe that flowery plant would thrive even more gloriously in the rich, dry bottom lands of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, all through the dry season. As for the consumers of the "thistle whisky," we assert, without fear of contradiction, that we have the best whisky-drinking population in the world, and their voractity and carrying power will more than make up for the paucity of our population. They will drink anything under the name of whisky, whether it be "thistle," or "rattlesnake," it makes no difference to the great bulk of them. To catch the patronage of the few who lay claims to æsthetic taste in that line, you would but have to put into the market at high rates, of course, a brand or two entitled "The Dew of the Thistle," or the "Thistle Down," or some such poetic title, and it would go down immensely. Come to California with your pockets full of the seeds of the beautiful thistle, old Scotia's glory, ye hardy sons of toil! Come to the Promised Land!

Good Time Coming—For Sleepers.

An English savant makes the alarming announcement that revolutions of our globe on its axis are not as rapid as formerly, and that in the course of a few millions of years it will be about one month turning over; that is, a night will be about a fortnight long, and so will a day. This will give lazy people one good nap at least.

A Dreadful Thought.

The Straits of Dover are to be tunneled shortly and England turned into an isthmus. It will be easy enough to bore a hole in the chalk stratum which underlies the Straits, but after the submarine railroad is completed Bismarck may get possession of it and subjugate England as well as France.

Why was it, as an old woman in a scarlet cloak was crossing a field in which a goat was browsing, that a most wonderful metamorphosis took place? Because the goat turned to butter, and the antique party to a scarlet runner.

A philosophical individual, who suddenly sat down on a slippery sidewalk in Milwaukee, disarmed the usual ridicule incident to accidents of that character by coolly taking a cigar out of his pocket and lighting it before getting up.

It is believed that the first one who supplied the navy with salt provisions was Noah when he took Ham into the ark.

At the recent Georgia baby-show the judges were three old bachelors.

"A Real Sufferer's Soliloque"

"Sufferers by the Chicago fire, sufferers by the Wisconsin fires, sufferers! I'm sick of hearin' of sufferers. They've drained San Francisco of every spare four bits that was in it. Here have I been here ever since '49, and never refused a man a dollar, nor a twenty if I had it, and I can't raise the price of a square meal. Sufferers! Aint I a sufferer I should like to know. There's a fellow says that he's a goin to get up a subscription for the sufferers who has become such since the flush times of '49, men that has seen better day, but it'll never be done. There's them sufferin whalers has got to be relieved first, and then there's the esquimaux as warned em they'd get stove in by the ice, they're goin' to have a hard winter of it, because they fooled round the ships instead of layin' in winter stores. They'll be gettin' up a subscription for them. Then there's the poor, sufferin' Insurance Companies as has been hit so hard by the fires and has got another slap by the big fire in Vallejo, they must be relieved. Then there'll be more fires and shipwrecks, and those sufferers will have to be relieved. And here am I sufferin for a drink as anyone can see, and not a bit of relief will I get. California's played out, the down-East yanks has got the town sure, and the next thing will be subscriptions for sendin missionaries to Greenlands Icy mountains and India.s coral strand. Charity begins at home I say. Hulloh there's Jack Rullocks looks as if he was fixed. Goin into Martin & Horton's. Hulloh Jack! Follows into saloon.

A thief was found on the prairie, ten miles out from Chicago, flushed with gin, and driving furiously a stolen horse, attached to which was a string of six stolen hacks.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night the popular drama of "Lottery of Life," which has proved a great success will be repeated, and Robert McWade will take his farewell benefit and make his last appearance but two. 'The Lottery of Life" will be played at the matinee to-morrow.

California Theatre.

"The Octoroon" was played to a good audience last night, F. S. Chanfrau delighting everyone by his admirable acting as Pete. "The Octoroon" will be played again to-night and at the matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

Kelly and Leon will appear to-night in the selections from their repertoire which have delighted thousands during the week. Charley Howard will appear in his inimitable darkey impersonations, and Sam Purdy will amuse the audience both in first part and interlude. The full programme will be played at the matinee to-morrow and all should take the children to hear the cat duet.

Bella Union.

Eugene Gerretta on the running globe; Edwin Montague in graceful and daring aerial feats; M'lle Gaugain in fancy dances; Johnny Manning in the very amusing comic song of "Old Aunt Sally," and the charming Aline Le Favre as Pete the Statue, will all appear to-night.

Theatre Comique.

Miss Claude and Henri Stewart, will re-appear at this popular theatre to-night. The former will appear in "Kitty from Cork" and "Dandy Pat" with Miss Maggie, and the latter in a medley clog dance with Johnny Kelly. A great bill which appears on our first page will be presented. To-morrow night the performance will conclude with scenes from "Tom and Jerry," in which Billy Dwyer and another well-known member of the P. R. will have a set-to.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

Miss Jennie Engles, who made her appearance last night has a positive genius for dancing, and made a great hit. She will appear again to-night, together with Horatio Nelson, Charley Vincent, Minnie Wells, and a host of others. The very popular sensation of "The Naked Truth" winds up the evening's amusement.

Hayes Park.

This very pleasant resort will be opened on Sunday next, and a series of extraordinary performances will be given by the Oscar Brothers, Prof. Griffiths and Miss Carrie Williams. The old rates of admission, 25 cents, will be retained.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Cnailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Arrivals.

Signor Bianchi, the best tenor robusto we ever had here, arrived overland last evening. He comes here as the avant courier of the Kellogg Opera Troupe, whose names we published some weeks ago. Signor Bianchi looks as though the world had prospered with him since he left California and is as hale and hearty as ever, not having lost a single line of his graceful fulness of outline. The same train brought James M. Ward, the popular actor, who is announced to appear on Monday at the Metropolitan Theatre in the play of "Through by Daylight."

An Itzecuinte Polzoth.

This is the latest Americanism out. It means in English a man who can't take a joke, and "gets his back up" at the merest trifle. Its Mexican definition is a hunchback dog.

A San Francisco dentist pulled teeth for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers last week. —Boston Courier. You can't prove it by us!

Preserve the Hair.

It is well known that curling the hair by means of heated irons destroys it. It is now unnecessary, as Madame Tibbal's Magic Curl Pins curl the hair effectually without injuring it in the least. They are for sale at 320 Kearny street, room 5.

WHY ARE BROWN'S Baths, 202 Fourth street, like Garland's Vegetable Cough Drops? Because they are Nature's great restorers. I Ingenuity of The Cockroach.

"I found," said a landlord, "I found a cockroach struggling in a bowl of water. I took half a peanut-shell for a boat. I put him into it and gave him two wooden toothpicks for oars, and left him. The next morning I visited him, and he had put a piece of white cotton thread on one of the toothpicks, and set the toothpick on end as a signal of distress. He had a hair on the other toothpick, and there that cockroach sat a-fishing. The cockroach, exhausted, had fallen asleep. This incited me to tears. I never had to chew leather to get a soul; I was born with one. I took that cockroach out, gave him a spoonful of gruel, and left. That animal never forgot that act of kindness and now my house is chock full of cockroaches. You can't keep them away."

A Family Blessing.

There are enough to reflect the sad side of life, and its irritable side, and its sober side, but it is a real blessing to have one in a family who is sensitive to the ludicrous, and can add to the enjoyment of others. Such a one is better than a preacher, or a man's-rights woman, in the family.

Nothing The Matter with Him.

LOVE'S QUANDARY.

I move in an orbit of maidens,
A fair little circle of wiles,
And each is distinct from the others,
Yet all are alike in their smiles.

They are beautiful, too, and endearing,
And one is a model of grace,
And one is a statue of Patience,
And one is a dancer of praise.

And one is a fairy of fashion,
And one is a bonny wee pet,
And one is a siren of singing,
And one is a laughing brunette.

And I've puzzled me long to determine
Which of all is most fit for a wife;
But the labor is out of my station,
I cannot divine for my life.

Alas! for the fortune that's human;
Each one seems to hold me at call!
Oh, I wish that I were a Mormon,
For then I might marry them all!

Mary had a little lamb,
Who drank cold water freely,
And was so gentle, mild and calm,
That she called it Horace Greeley.

Few persons have sufficient wisdom to prefer censure, which is useful to them, to praise, which deceives them.

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. NEWELL'S PATENT PARAGON

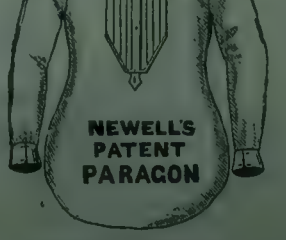
SHIRTS,

410 Kearny street, Room No. 8



A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress—art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

200 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

200 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Remember Her!

An Eastern contemporay of late date, says:

Mrs. Biglowe-Taylor-Montgomery, the 48 hours wife of Walter Montgomery, the actor, who committed suicide in England recently, returned to Boston last week, and is now living with her old husband, Arnold W. Taylor.

If that woman ever shows herself inside the walls of a theatre and is recognized by the audience, we hope she will receive such a storm of hisses that she will be glad to retreat. She by her damnable selfishness robbed the stage of one of its brightest ornaments. Had she possessed a spark of real love for Walter Montgomery she never would have allowed him to marry her. Let Mrs. Bigelow-Taylor-Montgomery go to church but let her keep out of the theatre.

Jone's Idea of it.

"Mr. Jones" said Mrs. Jones, with an air of triumph, "don't you think marriage is a means of grace?" "Well yes," growled Jones, "I suppose anything is a means of grace that breaks down pride and leads to repentance.

The World.

The world is a looking-glass, and gives back to every man the reflection of his own, face. Frown at it, and it will in turn look sourly upon you; laugh at it, and with it, and it is a jolly, kind companion.

How many persons have the quickness to discover their faults who have not the energy to eradicate them!

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Carville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a feme which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere. Q

References given. No charge in advance. S

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Haacke, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him. E

Academy of Sciences.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Academy of Sciences was held on Monday evening, Dr. Bulger in the chair.

Professor Doddle presented a specimen of plate polish, which he said was a darned sight better than sapolio, or any other polish discovered. It would polish anything, boots and picture frames, and mahogany tables, and spoons—it would even polish a School Director's manners, or an Academy-of-Scientist's understanding. A mine of it had been found by a friend of his, who intended to put it up in packages, price twenty-five cents, sold by all respectable druggists and at the grocery stores, and he thought it would be the duty of all the members of the Academy to use it in their households.

Dr. Bulger said he intended to buy a dollar's worth.

Dr. Frump wanted to know if the Academy of Science was formed for the purpose of advertising anything that friends of the members might get up to sell the public.

W. H. L. J. K. Hoggles presented a curiously deformed unguis halticis, and also some shells which he said he had found growing on an ivy bush helix.

Mr. Hunks, on behalf of Captain Cuttle, of the wood barge Mary Jane, presented a pickled fox, which he thought was the product of a cross between a flying fish and a kitten. He also presented a large snail on behalf of Mr. Ruggles, who suggested that it be adopted as the symbol of the Academy.

Mr. Hoggles presented a curious bird with wings, and said it was good to eat.

Dr. Coggles said it was a goose, and was good with applesauce.

Mr. Hoggles, encouraged by this, presented a fossil oyster which "his scientific friend Winant, of the Pacific Oyster Saloon, a few doors above the Alhambra, had—"

Dr. Frump wanted this sort of thing stopped right here. They had had enough advertising of oyster saloons. He didn't dead-head his oysters, fossil or fried, and he wasn't going to stand it.

Mr. Hoggles said he wasn't going to be put down, and he next exhibited several curiosities which he had stolen from an Indian's grave, and suggested that it was very important that all the Indian graves should be dug into.

Professor Doddles said he had his eye on a grave in Lone Mountain that he intended to explore some dark night, as he had learned that articles valuable not only in a scientific point of view, but intrinsically so, were buried there.

Mr. Hunks presented a clod of earth from South Africa, from a place where it is probable that there was a possibility that diamonds would perhaps be discovered,

Dr. Coggles at this point took an apple out of his pocket and took a bite out of it.

He was called to order by the President for contempt.

Dr. Coggles said that the apple was a scientific curiosity, as it had worms.

Dr. Trump said he had worms when he was an infant, but he never was a scientific curiosity and stigmatized Dr. Coggle's yarn about worms as an unworthy subterfuge.

Dr. Coggles drew a tooth on a black-board which he said had been drawn from the head of an extinct animal, a cross between a bullfrog and a mountain trout.

Dr. Coggles wished to draw the attention of the Academy to the fact that there were insects that flourish in a dry season and then again there were insects which flourish in a wet season, and that the insects which flourished in the wet season seemed to like the rain and that those which flourished in a dry season didn't like rain.

Judge Hunkins read a paper which conclusively proved that Darwin was wrong in saying that monkeys in course of time became men, and that the fact was, monkeys were men slightly degenerated but not so much as people were apt to believe.

After a general discussion on the reason why a donkey prefers thistles to grass, the Academy adjourned.

A Feathered Example.

While the barnyard rooster is the most inconstant and careless of all the feathered husbands, and is as bad as Brigham Young, the male pigeon is the most exemplary of Benedicts. The women's rights agitators should adopt as their symbol a pigeon. The male pigeon, as soon as the female has hatched her eggs, takes charge of the young ones and provides them with food while the female lays and hatches more eggs. This exemplary husband, while his children are young, has but little time to himself, and we are not sure that he doesn't sometimes help hatch the eggs by taking his place on them while his spouse goes out for a fly-round. There's a model for San Francisco husbands who object to staying at home and taking care of the children while their poor wives go out for a little air and exercise, or enjoy an evening at the theatre. We are sure, now our lady readers are aware of this fact in bird history, they will be able to think of no higher compliment to pay a husband who takes care of the children for them than to say, "He's a regular pigeon!" It won't do to call him "a duck," for in that bird the bump of philoprogenitiveness is very deficient, he being very much in the habit of biting the heads off the ducklings if he meets them.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Thousands have visited the Alhambra Theatre during the present week and there has been but one opinion expressed of the entertainment given by the Kelly & Leon's Minstrels; it is first-class and unlike anything ever seen before. The singing in the first part has been improved by the engagement of Mr. Ashton; Leon's character songs surpass all others; Kelly's fine voice and artistic style have secured his popularity; Charles Howard's "Old Jeff at Home," in which little Mamie Foster, only six years old, plays very prettily, is received with great applause, and Sam Pardy is great in comic acts. The full programme will be played at the matinee to-day.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—This evening F. S. Chanfrau will make his last appearance in the characters of Teodles and Moss, in the very amusing plays of those names. Mr. Chanfrau has every reason to feel gratified with the success he has met with during his second engagement, such a short interval having elapsed between it and its first, and will feel assured of a hearty welcome, when at some future period he comes once more to amuse us.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—The very popular play of "The Lottery of Life" will be performed this afternoon, this evening and again to-morrow evening, when Robert McWade will make his last appearance. Mr. McWade in making his first appearance at the time he did labored under the disadvantage of following a "funny" Dutch character actor, after whose extravagant comicalities Mr. McWade's quiet and artistically drawn Rip Van Winkle seemed tame and uninteresting. Now his engagement has nearly come to a close, all are ready to acknowledge how good an actor we are about to lose in Robert McWade.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—A very amusing and diversified programme has been prepared for Saturday and Sunday nights. The graceful and attractive M'lle Eugenia Gerretta never fails to gain an encore for her dance in the walk-around, and her performance on the globe is much applauded. M'lle Gaugain is as popular as ever, and the aerial feats of Edwin Montague are generally admired. Among the new features to-night, will be the song of "If Ever I Cease to Love" by Mat Kelly, with new local verses; ballads of Erin, by the charming Miss Lotta; and the amusing negro act of "A Perplexing Predicament" by Mat Kelly and Harry Thompson. The ever-pleasing and universally-admired Aline Le Favre, will appear in the concluding play of "The Statue Blanche," as Pete.

THEATRE COMIQUE.—Claude and Maggie are very pleasing in their double dances; Stewart is an accomplished dancer; Miss Maggie Knight is as popular as ever in character songs, and the public never weary of the sweet music of the Lancashire Bell Ringers. To-night Miss Lizzie Harmon will make her reappearance and a number of new features will be introduced in the programme.

The lively "Scenes from Tom and Jerry" will be put on, and Johnny Dwyer and another member of the P. R. will have a set to on the stage. The new and original play of "The Trial of Brigham Young" will be presented during the latter part of the week. The fun at the Theatre Comique continues till midnight.

THE GLOBE THEATRE.—The attractiveness of the entertainment given at this theatre is proved by the large attendance nightly. It is of the most diversified character. In the first part popular ballads and comic songs are sung and Charley Vincent as bones on one end is ably supported by J. Campbell on the other, who sings a good song, can play in an act and is a capital clog dance. Then follow dances, songs and acts, gymnastic performances, ballet, pantomime, and local sensation drama—four distinct styles of entertainment on the same evening. Miss Jennie Engels, the jig dancer from New York, has made a hit of the most decided character; the act of "Before the War," in which Charley Vincent plays old Jeff is capitally put on the stage and is very popular and "The Naked Truth" is the sensation of the day. To-night Bobby Scott, the great clog dancer will make his appearance. The management announce for Monday the first appearance of another star, Miss Jennie La Forrest and also of Miss Minnie Wells, who has recovered from the indisposition which prevented her appearance before. A new local drama entitled "Moss in San Francisco" written expressly for this house is in rehearsal.

JAMES M. WARD.—This actor, of whom we have heard great things from the critics of the East, will make his first appearance in California at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday in McCloskey's drama of "Through by Daylight." The Brooklyn Eagle says this play "surpasses in sensation anything that has heretofore been produced." In the course of the piece there is a railroad collision, an execution, a terrific sensation leap and other popular features too numerous to mention. The real horse cars with live horses are spoken of admiringly by all our Eastern contemporaries. Mr. Ward assumes three disguises in the course of the piece, and is said to sustain each with much skill. "Through by Daylight" has never failed to achieve a long and profitable run in any city where it has been produced, and it is not likely San Francisco will prove an exception to the rule.

OLIVER DOUD BYRON.—This bright and talented young actor, whose progress across the continent has been a course of uninterrupted triumphs, city after city capitulating—allowing themselves to be caried captive by his talent—will appear on Monday at the California Theatre in the great sensation drama of "Across the Continent."

SHERIDAN AND MACK.—These talented young character actors went away so suddenly on Sunday last that we omitted to wish them the success they deserve wherever they may go. During their stay in San Francisco, they established an enviable reputation both on and off the stage, and should they return next year, as we hear they intend, they will receive a hearty welcome.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—It is as well to make the most of the fine weather we are enjoying at present, by taking a pleasant drive to that most delightful of sea-side resorts, the Cliff House, where the ne plus ultra of hosts, Captain Foster does everything that can be done to make his guests comfortable.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.—There is not within miles of this city a more delightful spot than the groves of San Rafael. The steamer Contra Costa will leave the wharf on Davis street, near Vallejo, to-morrow at 10½ A.M., on an excursion.

THE KELLOGG ITALIAN OPERA SEASON.—The grand season of Italian opera by Miss Kellogg's troupe will open in this city about January first. It is the intention to give a two-months' season of three subscription opera nights and one extra night each week. The price of tickets for the season of twenty nights will be $60. The season will probably be given at the Metropolitan Theatre, as negotiations are in progress for securing that old-established, favorite home of the opera for that purpose. The following is a correct list of the company, which will be the strongest organized one that ever visited this city: Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, prima donna soprano; Miss Kate Morenzi, contralto; Miss Anna V. Darling, soprano; Mme. Claudina Casroli, soprano; Mme. Giovanna Bianchi, mezzo soprano; Sig. Pietro Baccei, primo tenore robusto; Sig. G. Mancusi, baritone; Sig. Ongelo Baccelli, basso profundo; Sig. E. Bianchi, tenore; Sig. Nicolai, leader and director, late of the Academy of Music, New York. The operas to be produced are "Fra Diavolo," "La Traviata," "Faust," "Marta," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Il Trovatore," "Sonnambula," "Roberto il Diavolo," "Don Giovanni," "Norma," "Ballo in Maschera," "Crispino," "Figlia del Reggimento," "L'Elisire d'Amore," "Flauto Magico," "Nozze di Figaro," "Lucrezia Borgia," "Il Pelinto," "Don Pasquale," "Ernani." Now, here is a troupe worth hearing. San Francisco has had many skeleton troupes, but never one so ably organized, with so many notable artists as the Kellogg troupe. In addition to the attractions of such a prima donna as Miss Kellogg, it embraces Miss Morenzi, a contralto of great power and of fine personal attractions, who has sung most successfully several seasons in the European capitals. Signor Baccei, the tenor, is also young and handsome, with a splendid voice, and is a good actor. Sig. Baccelli, the basso, is one of the best on the American stage. Sig. and Mme. Bianchi and Sig. Mancusi are well known to our public, and will prove towers of strength to the company. Californians have never been niggardly in patronizing genuine talent, and there can be no such word as fail with a troupe possessing so many notable artists of recognized ability as this one does.

HAYES PARK.—This very pleasant resort will be opened to the public to-morrow, when the Oscar Brothers will make their appearance in the Davenport Brothers' wonderful rope-tying feat, and present Professor Fay's dark seance. Prof. Griffith will appear in his manifestations; Miss Carrie Williams will be raised to the balcony of the Pavilion by invisible agency, and many other wonders will be shown. The admission to-morrow will be 25 cents, and during the week the gardens will be thrown open free.

SAN FRANCISCO MUSICAL INSTITUTE.—The first concert of the third subscription series given by the S. F. Musical Institute, will take place on Tuesday evening at Pacific Hall. A grand orchestra will take part, and Signora Tojetti—Tarenghi, and Mrs. W. C. Little will assist. The concert will be under the direction of those accomplished musicians, Louis Schmidt and Oscar Weil. The programme appears on another page.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SAN JOSE.—Proctor's Troupe performed "Leah" at the Opera House on Monday. The Guide says "a tolerably fair house" greeted the first performance. We suppose there was a tea party somewhere in town. However, on the second night, when "East Lynne" was played "a large audience" was present.

DENVER, COL.—The capital stock in the Denver Opera House is $100,000, shares $100 each. The Cricket is running with a variety troupe we believe. The School children gave a concert at the theatre on the 3d to raise funds to build a new school house. John Deery, the billiard player gave an exhibition at Mozart Hall on the 4th.

EUGENE CITY, O.—Professor Plummer gave an entertainment at the Court House on the 3d, and made a hit in his German imitations.

SMARTSVILLE.—Madame Jeal & Co's Circus performed here on Thursday. The vocalists of Smartsville, Sucker Flat and Timbuctoo, are holding a musical convention, preparatory to giving a grand vocal and instrumental concert for the benefit of Missouri Hereford, a young and interesting lady, who has had the misfortune to lose her sight.

PORTLAND, O.—Carl Bosco, the Magician, gave his entertainment at Oro Fino Theatre, on the 3d and 4th. Cogill and Cooper opened Cogill and Coopers Theatre during the Fair. Afterwards they joined the company at the Theatre Comique. The Portland Gaieties, James Morrow & Co., proprietors; C. Morrell, business manager, and Prof. Sedlak, director of orchestra. "A Tour Across the Continent," at Oro Fino Theatre on 7th, 8th and 9th. A vocal concert was given at Odd Fellows' Hall on the 8th, for the purpose of raising money to purchase an organ for the Methodist Episcpal church. The Oregonian says:

We understand that F. M. Bates has written to the proprietors of Oro Fino Theatre within the last few days to the effect that he expected to be able to arrive here about the first of November with a dramatic troupe. Such an arrival will be hailed with unfeigned pleasure by very many in this city.

All right! We can spare Bates.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—"Schneider" was performed for the last time at Piper's Opera House on Monday. On Tuesday, John McCullough commenced a season of the legitimate, opening in "Hamlet" to a crowded house. He was supported by James Carden, Owen Marlowe, Mrs. Chapman, Miss Ellie Wilton, Harry Sinclair, Miss Eva West, and others. The old favorite, William Barry appeared in the character of the Grave Digger, and was heartily welcomed back to the stage. On the following night "Richelieu" was presented, and Miss Nellie Cummings made her first appearance as Francois. On Thursday, "Othello" was played, with John McCullough as Iago. Friday, "Still Waters Run Deep;" Saturday, "Richard III;" Sunday, "Damon and Pythias," and on Monday, "Macbeth," and last appearance of McCullough.

OMAHA, NEB.—Stuart Robson, the comedian, commenced an engagement at the Academy of Music on the 30th ult., and closed on Nov. 4th. During the week he played "Everybody's Friend," "Camille" (burlesque), "Jones's Baby," "Married Life," "The Skeleton Captain" (burlesque), "Dot," "The Seasick Tobacconist," etc. We suppose that Mr. Robson, having come so far, intends to pay California a visit.

SACRAMENTO.—The Emerson Minstrels opened at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday last to a crowded house, and their success continued during the week. Billy Emerson established himself as an immense favorite with the Sacramentans, and public and press were loud in their praise of him and his talented band of minstrels.

Murdoch gave readings at Music Hall on the 25th ult. to a small audience.

The religious bigots of Utica are trying to talk the drama out of existence. They will find they are only doing considerable gratuitous advertising.

Mr. De Walden has written a new play entitled "The Rising Generation" which satirizes the folly of indulgent parents who neglect the proper correction of their children. It was recently acted at Montreal, the Coleman Children playing the principal characters.

In Boston, Edwin Booth entered on his second week at the Boston Theatre on the 29th ult., and played Macbeth; Tuesday, Hamlet; Wednesday Don Cæsar de Bazan; Thursday, Bratus; Saturday afternoon, Hamlet; and Saturday evening, Macbeth. At the Museum, Byron's new drama of "Daisy Farm" was produced on the 28th ult. The Theatrical News says it is novel in plot, stirring and interesting in action, while the dialogue is crisp and amusing.

At the Globe, "Divorce" still runs. At Music Hall Mrs. Charles Moulton gave a concert on the 30th ult. to a small audience. The Howard Athenæum gives a good show with Harrigan and Hart, the famous little frauds; the Freeman Sisters, William Ashcroft and others too numerous to mention. Cool Burgess is the bright star at the St. James.

Our Metropolitan Theatre has secured E. T. Stetson for an early appearance in the California Metropolis, so says the Boston Sporting Times. E. T. Stetson's play is "Neck and Neck" and its sensation is a terribly real representation of an execution by hanging.

In Philadelphia, Lotta completed the third week of her engagement at the Arch-street Theatre on Oct. 28th, during which time she appeared in a new protean drama entitled "Rainbow," written expressly for her by Mr. Robert Rendell, of New York city. It is the work of a gentleman evidently quite new to dramatic authorship, and, as usual with works of this class, most of the characters are mere colorless sketches without much force or originality, and the dialogue is not sufficiently sparkling to render the somewhat involved plot sufficiently interesting. There are several good situations, however, but these suffer by the author's lack of dramatic experience in bringing about their development. Lotta appears in four characters admirably suited to her abilities, and as Rainbow, Mons. Heller, Corduroy Bill and Persipis Bootsey Buff, she found abundant opportunities for the display of her piquant and vivacious style of acting. As Mons. Heller she performs a couple of moderately difficult feats of sleight of-hand, and in the other characters indulges in several songs, dances, and the inevitable banjo solo. "Rainbow" ran through the following week, and on the 6th inst. Fechter opened in "Hamlet."..... At the Walnut-street Theatre, "Divorce" was produced on the 6th.....At Fox's American Theatre Miss Emma Grattan was the chief attraction. .....At the New Bowery, "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl."..... At the Chestnut-street Theatre, E. L. Davenport having recovered from his sickness, re-appeared in "Hamlet" on the 30th. On the following evening, Lee's tragedy of "Alexander the Great" and the drama of "The Irish Emigrant" were played for the benefit of Charles E. Thorne, Jr.

In St. Louis, Dominick Murray was succeeded at De Bar's Opera House by Little Nell, who opened on the 31st.....At Deagle's, Ella Wesner is a great success in her specialties. The "Ticket-of-Leave Man" was produced, in which Miss Wesner played Sam Willoughby and made a great hit.

The Hyers Sisters (colored) were at the Detroit Opera House on the 24th ult. They did not draw. They have been engaged by Yankee Robinson for his concert troupe which he is organizing for the winter season. Jennie Benson and Little Jennie are engaged here.

Nilsson appeared in the opera of "Faust" at the Academy of Music, New York, on the 1st, and drew the best house of the season.

Ella La Rue is playing the banjo at the Walnut-street Theatre, Kansas, Missouri. The Hernandes Troupe closed on the 23d at this house.

In Bridgeport, Conn., Joe Murphy was billed for the 8th and 9th.

M'lle Morlacchi has returned to her home in Boston, after having concluded a very successful engagement at the Holliday-street Theatre Baltimore.

Mrs. John Wood is to appear at Niblo's Garden late in the season. The lady was not long since offered $20,000 for a three months' engagement by a prominent manager and refused it.

Lawrence Barrett opened at the Opera House Terra Haute, Indiana, on the 30th, for three nights. "Rosedale" was the first play.

Janauschek, supported by Miss Kate Denin and others, was billed for 3d and 4th Nov. in Springfield, Ill., thence to Milwaukie, Wis., opening on Nov. 6th for two weeks, and thence to Detroit for four nights; Toledo, Ohio, two nights, and Cleveland one week.

J. K. Emmet was announced to appear in Syracuse, N. Y., in "Fritz" and "Carl the Fiddler" on Nov. 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th, under the management of Beach Brothers, of Buffalo Academy of Music.

Miss Pauline Markham will make her debut within a month in a drama of the French school. She has been under the tuition of Miss Matilda Heron, and that lady has great faith in the success of her new departure.

J. J. McCloskey is writing a drama for J. H. Budworth.

Little Nell closed a successful engagement at Rochester on the 28th ult.

Theatrical Supper Rooms.

In all the large cities in the world there are adjoining the chief theatres supper rooms where the audience, after witnessing the play, and the actors, after taking part in it, adjourn to enjoy a meal. Such a place is Jones's Oyster and Ice Cream Saloon, in the California Theatre building, immediately adjoining the entrance, where game suppers, Eastern oysters, terrapin stews, and everything that can suit the taste of an epicure, will be served up at all hours of the night, under the experienced supervision of Frank Dumond. The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. SHIRTS,

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that
Newell's Patent Paragon Shirt
Factory's only place of business is at
410 Kearny street, between Pine and California, Room No. 8.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

Pretty English Actresses.

The New York Mercury thus describes the ladies whom Sothern brought with him to support him in "Our American Cousin" at Niblo's Garden:

Miss Amy Roselle, one of the imported beauties from the London Haymarket, is young, pretty, graceful, symmetrical, and stylish. She has light brown hair, regular features, and a head voice. The part of Georgina makes few demands upon the ability of an actress. Miss Roselle is equal to them and to much more. Miss Nellie Kemp, also from the Haymarket, also with a symmetrical figure and also good looking, is dark haired, with well marked features. Her reading was not strikingly good, but she filled Florence Trenchard satisfactorily. Miss Jennie Lee of the London Strand, is a genial little body with a round little figure. She gave Mary Meredith all the life of which it is capable, and played it exceedingly well. Her aspect enlists sympathy at once.

Pastilles de Paris

Booth and Fechter, in "Hamlet."

The Boston Courier says:

Mr. Booth has been playing at the Boston Theatre during the past week to houses scarcely less crowded than those which so enthusiastically greeted Nilsson. "Hamlet" was given on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, and although the vast audiences were profoundly stirred by the tragedian's acting, we must confess that the impersonation with which Mr. Fechter has made us familiar, has taken the edge of interest from the colder and more methodical performance of Mr. Booth. We know that the new Hamlet is not Shakspeare's Hamlet; we know that the sublimest passages in the tragedy are mutilated and made almost ridiculous by the Anglo-French actor; but we also know that beside his glowing and passionate rendering the intellectual and scholarly performance of the American actor seems tame and artificial.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
A well made Shirt, aristocratically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.
Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No handkerchief can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-work, worried garment will not last long.
My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that
Newell's Patent Paragon Shirt

Effects of Smoking.

An investigation of the effects of smoking recently made by a distinguished physician, revealed the following facts. Of thirty youths between the ages of nine and fifteen years, he found that 27 presented symptoms of nicotine poison; and in 22 cases there were serious disorders of the vital circulation, producing indigestion, intellectual dulness, and a very marked appetite for spirituous liquors. In three there was heart affection; in eight a decided deterioration of the blood; ten had disturbed sleep, while four had ulceration of the mucous membrane of the mouth. The above facts are worthy of the attention of the habitual "slaves of the weed."

The Heated Term.

The Washington Critic says:

The "heated term" still continues in San Francisco.

Just so. Our "heated term" generally continues about six hours, and then it begins to blow big guns. We are not so common as to have "terms" and seasons in San Francisco. We have a few hours warm weather, and then we cool off before we have become too hot. We often have Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, in the space of twenty-four hours. "Heated term," quotha!

A Procrastinating Poet.

An Illinois poet of some reputation poetically expressed his reluctance recently to dying in certain months, but was willing to "shuffle off the coil" in October. When last heard from, he was eating corned beef with a vigorous appetite. October was more than half gone, and the undertaker had not been spoken to.

MEDICINAL OXYGEN cures Laryngitis.

To the Unfortunate.

Oakland Hoodlums.

The Sacramento Record has the following:

The Oakland hoodlums are stealing the conveyances of the church-goers of that city, as will be seen by the annexed from the News of the 3d: "Last night a horse and buggy were stolen from opposite the Congregational church, while the congregation was in attending service. The gentleman who owns the horse and buggy is Mr. Wyehoff. The supposition is that some hoodlums got into it and drove off for a freak. Up to the present writing no clue to the thieves has been obtained.

We are surprised at the Record's thinking for a moment that the Oakland News meant to acknowledge the existence of such a being as an Oakland hoodlum. Not a bit of it. When it said hoodlums it meant hoodlums who had come over from San Francisco by the ten-cent ferry boat. The Oakland boys are all nice clean boys. They couldn't raise a hoodlum in Oakland, he'd wither away before he was ripe.

Very Tempting.

The following advertisement appeared in a late number of the Marysville Standard:

TO BE GIVEN AWAY.—The owner of a complete daguerrean gallery, complete and in order for work, for sale very low. Enquire at this office.

We wonder whether any one has been tempted by this contradictory advertisment and attempted to buy this owner of a daguerrean gallery who was at first willing to give himself away and afterwards offered himself for sale very low. As the owner was "complete and in order for work" and the gallery was likewise complete, someone might have bought this human chattel as a speculation.

Too Bad.

It is very unkind of the Pioneer, a paper devoted to the glorification of the female sex to publish that sneering paragraph about Mrs. Bigelowe-Taylor-Montgomery, who drove her last husband to suicide, and then returned to her first. It ends thus: "Her forgiving husband, Arnold W. Taylor, has taken her to his home." Well, wasn't he right? Isn't it one of woman's rights to have a tame husband?

Too Much Salt.

"I say, milkman, you give your cows too much salt."

"Why how do you know how much salt I give them?

"I judge from the appearance of the milk you bring us lately. Salt makes cows dry, and then they drink too much water, and that makes their milk thin, you know."

A Hint.

"The Duke of Wellington said high interest meant poor security."

We expect the Duke would think that a low rate of insurance meant about the same thing.

Speaking of an elopement, to which the parties were a man and his step-mother, a contemporary calls it "a new era in crime." Another paper calls it a "new departure."

Good for a Paragraph.

While superintending the production of Knowle's "John of Procida," I met with an accident, which I only mention for the sake of a characteristic anecdote in connection with it. In passing from the stage into the pit over some planks that had been placed for the purpose of our going to and fro to see the effect of the scenery, one of them slipped, and, falling on the back of a pit seat, I broke a rib and was consequently confined to my house for about a fortnight. On my first visit to the theatre afterwards I crawled out to get some luncheon at the Garrick, and returning to the theatre at a very slow pace, I met under the piazza one of the reporters of a morning paper, with whom I was slightly acquainted. He stopped me, and remarked upon the alteration in my appearance, and the difficulty I seemed to have in walking. I explained to him the cause, upon which he exclaimed, "God bless me! How sorry I am I never heard of it!" I was both touched and surprised at the evident interest he took in the matter, and was about to express my appreciation of his sympathy, when, before I could speak, he added, "It would have made such a capital paragraph."—J. R. Planche, in London Society.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night the popular comedian, vocalist and character actor, Jas. M. Ward, will present to the public of California the tremendously sensational play of "Through by Daylight," which will be produced in the same excellent style that has characterized the previous representations of all pieces produced at the Metropolitan Theatre. Charles Vivian has been engaged for the concert scene and will present a new programme of character songs, and G. B. Waldron, Miss Maggie Moore, Harry Courtaine and others will afford Mr. Ward efficient support. The Eastern press are unanimous in the opinion that there never was anything like "Through by Daylight" put on the stage before and that in it sensation has reached its culminating point. Seats may be secured during the day without extra charge.

Alhambra Theatre.

The rush to see the renowned Kelly and Leon continued unabated last week and the management determined that there shall be no falling off in consequence of a lack of novelty in the entertainment, present a bill of extraordinary merit. Among the novel features, besides the single acts of the wonderful Leon may be mentioned "The Two Doves," by Kelly and Leon; "The Belles of the Kitchen," by Kelly, Leon and Purdy; the new first part finale of the Bachelor Club, by Kelly, Purdy, Howard and company; the characteristic sketch of "Old Uncle Ned," by Charley Howard and G. H. Foster; and "The Ladder of Fame," by S. S. Purdy, John Robinson and G. H. Foster. Everyone who visits the Alhambra must be amused and all delighted with the original, artistic and unapproachable female characterizations of the only Leon.

California Theatre.

This evening Oliver Doud Byron of whom we have heard so much will make his first appearance in California in the sensational drama of "Across the Continent" which will be produced with new scenery by Porter; new machinery by Messrs. Torrance and Stackhouse, and new properties, costumes and calcium lights to give due effect to its numerous representations of scenes in New York and on the Pacific R. R. The public are promised in the fourth act something quite novel in the way of a sensation and which has never failed to bring down the house. During the evening the orchestra, under the direction of Charles Schultz, will play the "Railroad Overture," composed by Signor Operti, of Niblo's Garden, and dedicated to Oliver Doud Byron.

Bella Union.

The very attractive entertainment presented at this house draws crowded houses nightly. Eugenia Gerretta's graceful performances on the globes are generally admired; M'lle Gangain's artistic dances please all; Miss Lotta's ballads are always encored, and Mat Kelly has made a great hit in his local verses to "If Ever I Cease to Love." Among the novelties presented to-night will be the reappearance of Miss Josephine and the production of the screaming farce of "The Persecuted Dutchman," with the versatile Aline Le Favre as Hon. Augustus Oleattarch and J. H. Larkin as John Schmidt.

Theatre Comique.

The members of the company who went for a holiday in the country have returned with new vigor to their task of amusing the public. Miss Lizzie Harmon appears in comic songs; Miss Maggie Knight in new character sketches; Johnny Toers in his wonderful act of the Goat Island Ghost; the Lancashire Bell Ringers in popular melodies; Claude and Maggie in double character dances, and a variety of other entertainments amuse the large audience present.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

Miss Jennie Engles the jig dancer, is announced by the management as the reigning star. Miss Jennie La Forrest will make her first appearance to-night, and Miss Minnie Wells who was to have appeared last week, but was prevented by indisposition, will also put in an appearance. The very comic ballet of "The Rendezvous;" the act of "Before the War" and the great sensation of "The Naked Truth," will be prominent features in to-night's programme. A new local play, written expressly for this house entitled "Mose in San Francisco," is in active rehearsal.

Burnt-Cork Opera Bouffe.

Thousands would have gone to hear French Opera Bouffe as given by the Smecchia Troupe and Lea Silly, had they not feared that not understanding the language in which the operas were given, would prevent their enjoying them. All will, the week after this be able to enjoy these same operas in English, and produced in as perfect a style as has characterized the production of either Italian, French or English opera in this city. The Kelly & Leon Minstrels will commence their season of burnt cork opera bouffe on Monday, the 20th inst., with "Barbe Bleue," produced with a full operatic chorus, new and beautiful scenery, and dresses of the most dazzling magnificence. All last week rehearsals have been held, and they will continue during this week, in order that the result may be perfection.

Hayes Park.

A larger crowd of people than has been seen at this pleasant resort for many months assemble yesterday in the spacious pavilion and all were well pleased with the entertainment of magical feats presented by Professor Griffith and astonished at his wonderful and mysterious rope tying performance. He will present still greater wonders next Sunday.

The Kellogg Opera Season.

It is now stated that the coming season of Italian Opera by Clara Louise Kellogg and troupe will be given at the California Theatre. It will open about the holiday-time, and continue for some two months.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Sothern in Lord Dundreary.

The New York Era has the following concerning Mr. Sothern's impersonation of Lord Dundreary:

In a certain line of work, there are few actors on the Anglo-Saxon stage superior to Mr. Sothern in extreme refinement and subtle inteligence; and his name is now as widely known, if not as popular, as that of Mr. Jefferson.

In his specialty of Lord Dundreary, Mr. Sothern is pleasant and funny to see; but of course can only display the very honest and most "claptrappy" requisites of an actor's art, and this for managers throughout the cities outside of New York is most unfortunate, as he has so refined the role, so emasculated the play to keep the role prominent, that it is much to be doubted that an audience in any Western theatres would ever be sufficiently attracted by it to reward any daring manager by swelling his receipts to half of his evening expenses. The character has been brought by the artistic feeling of the actor within the bounds of probability, and its absurdity toned down to ineffectiveness, save to those who can appreciate such humor as drew a twenty-seven dollar audience to witness Mr. Mathews favorite role in as "Cool as a Cucumber." To sum up, Mr. Sothern comes back to us a more finished artist, and a most dangerous speculation, more dangerous to managers than would be the giving again of five hundred a night in gold to Fechter.

Mr. Sothern has also diminished his own value by diminishing that of the play in which his chief role is the chief attraction. He has so cut it that no interest attaches to the story at all, and so toned down in the acting the role itself, that a Western audience would yawn in his face before he had reached the second act. Where Matthews will draw, Sothern may; nowhere else.

We most implicitly believe what the Era says, and hope that Mr. Sothern may come to San Francisco, where his quiet style of acting would be appreciated.

A New York belle, who was purchasing some gloves, told the clerk she wanted them of a "subdued mouse color." The clerk said they were all out of that shade, but suggested "infuriated rat" as a substitute. He was discharged.

MORNING AND EVENING SONGS.

MORNING.

Like lover, with soft, noiseless feet,
Speechless and sweet,
She enters at my chamber door;
She is so sweet, so sweet.

No promise unto me she makes,
No promise takes,
But beckons; I rise up in haste;
My heart leaps panting with foretaste
Of what it overtakes.

By sunlight I can see the shine
Of things divine
Within her arms; I see her wings;
I hear how as she soars she sings,
In words and tones divine.

EVENING.

The blazing chariots of fire
Roll higher and higher.
She is translated; she has trod
No death; she was beloved of God.
He calls her, lifts her higher.

Never for me she looketh back;
If I could lack
Courage to follow; while I hear
Her song, the right to call her dear
I should forever lack.

Low on the chilly earth I lie,
And watch the sky;
My pillow is my little sheaf;
I wonder that I feel no grief
To see the darkened sky.

It must be in some holy place
I, face to face,
Shall meet her, when from some long sleep,
I wake. God grant that she may keep
For me a smiling face.

Sharp Retort.

Schoolmistress—"Johnny, I'm ashamed of you: when I was your age I could read as well as I do now." Johnny—"Aw! but you'd a different teacher to wot we've got."

Of all uncomfortable persons to associate with, that one is the most so who is egotistical, always thinking of himself.

He who receives a good turn should never forget it; He who does one should never remember it.

Josh Billings says that opera music don't have any more effect on him than castor oil would on a graven image.

An off hand fellow. One who has lost both his arms.

How to turn people's heads. Go late to church.

Theatrical Supper Rooms.

In all the large cities in the world there are adjoining the chief theatres supper rooms where the audience, after witnessing the play, and the actors, after taking part in it, adjourn to enjoy a meal. Such a place is Jones's Oyster and Ice Cream Saloon, in the California Theatre building, immediately adjoining the entrance, where game suppers, Eastern oysters, terrapin stews, and everything that can suit the taste of an epicure, will be served up at all hours of the night, under the experienced supervision of Frank Dumont. Attached to the saloon are private rooms for families and supper parties. Try Jones's. K

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. *

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The bill for this week at this most popular of theatres is a most attractive one. Kelly & Leon's Minstrels are the fashion and consequently everyone goes to see them. First part, interlude and afterpiece, are all excellent, and there is not moment's drag in the entertainment from the time the curtain rises until it falls. The first part finale of "The Bachelor's Club," by Edwin Kelly, Purdy, Howard and company is very amusing; Leon repeats the sketches in which he delighted thousands last week and it is not likely the public will tire of "When Sammy Comes Home" for some time to come; "The Two Doves," by Kelly and Leon is very amusing; Charley Howard appears in one of his best acts, "Old Uncle Ned;" S. S. Purdy in the "Ladder of Fame," and the screaming operatic farce of "The Belles of the Kitchen," in which Leon is himself equal to a small opera company, concludes the evening's amusement.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The sensation-loving public of San Francisco was well represented at the Metropolitan Theatre last night, when McCloskey's drama of "Through by Daylight, or New York in Slices," was produced, with J. M. Ward in the character of the hero. Mr. Ward has a bright, cheerful look, a pleasant voice and good stage presence. His representation of the rollicking Irishman, Dick, and his songs and dances, caused much amusement, while as George Glenroy, the engineer determined to "go through by daylight, or burst the boiler," he gained many hearty rounds of applause. James M. Hardie in the emotional part of Arthur Comstock, the condemned felon, does some capital acting in the prologue, and is equally good as Arthur Comstock, Jr., in the play. Mr. G. B. Waldron presents some strong points as Rufus Appleton, the villain of the piece. Harry Courtaine causes much fun as Mickey Corrigan, "a mason's clerk;" Miss Sallie Hinckley, always pleasing, is particularly clever in the character of Madge Morton, an outcast; Miss Fanny Young is amusingly pert as Julia Larkins, a shop girl, and Mrs. Frank Rea, with her train of six children arranged in sizes, like tallow candles, causes much amusement. Mrs. G. B. Waldron is very effective as Mrs. Comstock and afterwards as Edith Comstock. The sensation of the explanatory prologue is the arrival of an express train with a reprieve just in time to save the life of a condemned felon. The first act presents a faithfully painted view of the exterior of the old Bowery Theatre. Geo. Hinckley has an amusing part in Rip-tearing Johnny. The great scene in this act is the one representing Edith beneath the wheels of a city railroad car, a car drawn by real horses being introduced. In the second act there is a concert scene in which James M. Ward gained much applause for his song, 'The Tipperary Man," and an Irish jig; Miss Fanny Young sang "Red, White and Blue;" Vivian sang several character songs and was encored again and again, and the vivacious Miss Maggie Moore received round after round of applause for her new songs and dances. In the last act there is a terrific sensation leap and rescue by a descent on a rope from the brow of a precipice and the curtain falls to the music of the hearty applause of the audience. "Through by Daylight" is a mass of sensations, and the interest of the audience is never allowed to flag. It is up for a run, and will be repeated until farther notice.

California Theatre.

This house was thronged in every part last night, when Oliver Doud Byron made his first appearance in the sensation play of "Across the Continent." Mr. Byron has an agreeable stage presence, which at once makes the audience well-disposed towards him; he is rapid in his movements and in his enunciation, and acts with so much life and energy that the audience must like him in spite of mannerisms which may be got rid of in time. Joe Ferris has to utter a good deal of Ledger sentiment which would make it a trying part for any actor, and Mr. Byron would occasionally be a little too sentimental in bemoaning the fact that he had never known a mother's love, or something of that sort. Nothing could be better than his acting at the end of each act, where the interest is wrought up to form a denouement and bring the characters into a "picture" on which the drop scene descends. Especially neat is his capture of the forged check at the end of the third act. Altogether Mr. Byron made a decidedly favorable impression, and was applauded to the echo. "Across the Continent" is not altogether a "one-man piece," where all the characters are toned down in order to bring forward that played by the star and owner of the play into startling prominence. While the interest of the piece centres in Joe Ferris as the hero, that character by no means sustains the weight of the piece. Give J. C. Williamson the merest ghost of a part and he will bring it to life and invest it with flesh and bones; this he was not required to do last night for the part of Dennis O'Dwyer, alias Knucklebone Johnny, afforded him the greatest latitude for the display of his talent in character impersonations. It was emphatically a part in which he could "spread himself," and he did spread himself, keeping the audience in a continual roar of laughter during the whole of the time he was on the stage. Knucklebone Johnny's pet saying, "Oh, knock me down!" will be the street word for some time to come. Mr. Williamson altogether gave a terribly vivid impersonation of the New York street boy, which was received with yells of delight by the gallery. Another very funny character in the play is Cæsar Augustus, a colored dramatic amateur, which was acted by Fred Franks in a manner which proved that two years' retirement from the stage had caused him to forget none of his funny tricks. W. A. Mestayer played the villain Adderly with much force; Sedley Smith was a model good old man as Thomas Goodwin; E. J. Buckley as Thomas Goodwin Jr., not a model young man, was very good; Miss May Howard was sufficiently fascinating as Louise Goodwin; Geo. French was good as an Italian, and also as an Indian, and all the characters were well represented. In the underground concert scene, Miss Georgie Loomis, a very pretty little girl about twelve years of age, sang "J'aime les Militaires," that is she would have sung it if she had not been nearly dead with stage fright, as it was, she showed that she knew the song, and afterwards appearing in tights and performing a clog dance, was endorsed by a critical gallery as a great success. "Across the Continent" though there is any amount of trash in it, is not the worst of its kind; it is better than "Fritz," or "Help" or "Schneider," so we suppose it will draw crowded houses. It is certainly worth seeing once by any one. The final scene of the telegraph station and arrival of troops by lightning express, in time to prevent a massacre by Indians, is sensational enough for any one. Some of the scenes by Porter are very fine, the first representing Five Points in a snow storm being especially good. "Across the Continent" will be played until further notice.

Bella Union.

Eugenia Gerretta on the globes; Edwin Montague in gymnastics; M'lle Gougain in fancy dances; Miss Lotta in sweet ballads; Johnny Manning in comic songs; Fanny Garretson in ballads and many more appear in the interlude this evening. In the first part Mat Kelly never fails to receive a triple encore for his new local verses of "If Ever I Cease to Love." The afterpiece "The Persecuted Dutchman," presents the sprightly Alice Le Favre in the character of Hon. Augustus Clearstarch a tremendous swell, and J. E. Larkin as John Schmidt, the persecuted Dutchman; it is full of fun and causes much laughter.

Theatre Comique.

The Lancashire Bell Ringers are as popular as ever. Lizzie Harmon's songs are encored again and again; Little Maggie Knight is the pet of the public; Johnny Tuers is a team in himself; Claude and Maggie gain great applause in their double character acts; Stewart and Kelly's challenge dance is a great feature in the programme and there is always something amusing going on at the Theatre Comique.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The entertainment given at this theatre is so diversified that all tastes are pleased. Pleasing ballads and comic songs, and jokes and conundrums by Charley Vincent and Johnny Campbell form the first part, and this is followed by Jenny La Forrest in ballads; Jenny Engles in fancy jigs; Sally Thayer in comic songs; Minnie Wells in ballads; Bobby Scott in his great clog dance; the Samwells-Nelson ballet troupe in the comic ballet of "The Rendezvous;" the popular plantation sketch entitled "Before the War," by Charley Vincent, R. G. Marsh, Samwells and others, and the entertainment concludes with the highly sensational local drama of "The Naked Truth,"

Pacific Hall

The San Francisco Institute will give the first concert of their third subscription series at Pacific Hall this evening. Signora Tojetti-Tarenghi and Mrs. W. C. Little will assist. The programme comprises selections from the works of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Von Weber, Schubert, Haydn, Franz, Spohr, and Rossini, which will be performed by a grand orchestra. The concert will be under the direction of those accomplished musicians Louis Schmidt and Oscar Weil. The success which has attended these concerts, is gratifying as evincing the existence of a taste for classical music in San Francisco.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. He Wanted Nothing of It.

A zealous representative of the Young Men's Christian Association was a few days ago drumming up recruits for the "noon prayer meeting." On the street he met Mr. ——, now residing outside of the city limits. The representative of the Young Men's Christian Association accosted him, and the following conversation ensued:

"Do you reside in the city Mr. ——?"

"No, sir; I live in the country."

"We have a prayer-meeting around here, and would be glad to have friends from the country meet with us. Will you come?"

"A prayer meeting?"

"Yes, sir, come in and get a blessing."

"No, you don't; you can't come any of your confidence games on me, sir!"

The English Tongue.

English is fast becoming the language of the educated world. Twenty-five years ago French only was sufficient to carry one anywhere, but now it is impossible to find a place, from the pyramids of Egypt to the mountains of Japan, that English will not bring one through. Chinese house servants speak English—"pigeon English" to be sure, but still English; and go where one will, in any society, English now seems to be the prevailing tongue.

Honesty The Best Policy.

The Wilmington Commercial says:

A young man in Raymond's Neck, Kent County, while stealing preserved pears from his ma, one night recently, pulled out from the jar, by the stem, what he supposed to be a fine pear, but which proved after vain endeavors to masticate it, a long-tailed mouse.

Theatrical Supper Rooms.

In all the large cities in the world there are adjoining the chief theatres supper rooms where the audience, after witnessing the play, and the actors, after taking part in it, adjourn to enjoy a meal. Such a place is Jones's Oyster and Ice Cream Saloon, in the California Theatre building, immediately adjoining the entrance, where game suppers, Eastern oysters, terrapin stews, and everything that can suit the taste of an epicure, will be served up at all hours of the night, under the experienced supervision of Frank Dumont. Attached to the saloon are private rooms for families and supper parties. Try Jones's. x

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium.

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-work, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

Newell's Patent Paragon Shirt

FIGARO ON THE CALA. PACIFIC RAILROAD.

FIGARO is thoroughly distributed every day on the cars of the California Pacific Railroad, leaving Marysville for Vallejo and San Francisco at 1 o'clock P. M.

FIGARO ON THE OAKLAND BOATS.

300 "Figaros" are distributed on the Oakland Ferry boats every afternoon, mostly among the passengers arriving by the great Overland Train.

FIGARO ON THE VALLEJO BOAT.

300 "Figaros" are distributed every day among the passengers on the Steamer Capital, on her afternoon trip from Vallejo to this city.

Oh! Yes.

The Anaheim Gazette says:

The San Francisco FIGARO contains a capital hit at the Los Angeles massacre by a fictitious account of a similar affair at Lo Sang Etes in the South of China, where a similar scene is supposed to have been enacted, reversing of course the nationalities of the participants. And additional force is given to the allegory by calling loudly upon our government to demand prompt reparation for the outrage and, if necessary, declare war against China.

That's all right; you like to see your next door neighbors pitched into, do you? We are not so sure that there weren't some Anaheimers engaged with those brutes of Los Angelesers in the cowardly slaughter—No, we take it back, Anaheimers are good civilized people, make capital wine, and as good neighbors as anyone could wish to have.

Kangaroo Tail.

Of kangaroo tail, the latest article of food in England, a London journal says:

"Those who object to the destruction of animal life can eat this meat without a scruple, as the tails of kangaroos are so large that they must be an inconvenience to their owners, while by placing the animal under the influence of chloroform their tails can be painlessly amputated and packed in tins before they are aware of the operation."

The question of the day is whether it is more difficult for a girl of the period to get her clothes in her trunk or her trunk in her clothes.

A Southern paper speaks of the death of several citizens from throat disease, superduced by razors.

"Supper."

People who hurry through breakfast and bolt their dinner, can, after the work of the day is over, enjoy that comfortable meal called "supper." The Pacific Oyster Saloon, No. 337 Bush street, is a famous supper house, and Winant & Co. are celebrated for their roast oysters, terrapin stews and other delicacies. Charley Hasche, formerly of the Antelope and Bay Oyster Saloons, attends to the comforts of his numerous friends who come here to see him. K

Perhaps Not.

J. J. McClosky, writing to the Golden City about his play, says:

I am now negociating with Mr. Bert, of the Metropolitan Theatre, in your city, to play some four or five others—one a California piece, called "Poverty Flat," from Bret Harte's works.

We don't think that Mr. McClosky will play a piece entitled "Poverty Flat" here or anywhere else. The following legal document which was received in this city a few days ago puts a stopper on Mr. Mc Clesky's "Poverty Flat"

No. 10,229B. LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.
Copyright Office, Washington.

L. S. To wit: BE IT REMEMBERED, That on the 31st day of October, anno domini 1871, Frederic Lyster, of San Francisco has deposited in this Office the title of a Dramatic Composition the title or description of which is in the following words, to wit:

The Lily of Poverty Flat, or,
Poverty Flat.

Drama by Frederick Lyster and J. C. Williamson, with an Original Sensation Scene consisting of the breaking in of a level in mine and the saving of the miners through the bravery of one of their number, the right whereof he claims as Proprietor in conformity with the laws of the United States respecting Copyrights.

Appreciated!

We quite appreciate the following compliment paid FIGARO by the Plumas National, published in the jolly little town of Quincy; because the National by the excellence of its selections and good sense of its editorials proves that its opinion is worth having:

One of the Best.—One of the spiciest, liveliest and best papers on our exchange list, is the San Francisco FIGARO. It is well posted in its legitimate business—Theatricals—and always has room for something saucy, witty and interesting. We always open FIGARO with the expectation of finding a good thing, and are rarely disappointed.

A Very Pretty Figure of Speech.

The Boston Watchman and Reflector is a brilliant religious paper. In its last issue it appeals to pastors, deacons etc., and asks:

"Will you not gird up one loin of the mind on behalf of a journal which has so long endeavored to serve the cause of the Master by its labors to diffuse abroad the knowledge that purifies, that sanctifies and that saves men?

Oh! yes, gird up a loin—gird up a tender loin of the mind!

A Wedding Suit.

A burned out girl of Chicago, wrote to her lover in Washington that he would have been surprised to see her the morning after the fire, "with a pair of Jim's old pants on, one slipper, one shoe, and a waterproof cloak." And she remarked, "that would make a splendid wedding suit, wouldn't it?" The young man if he is worthy of the girl, left by the first train for Chicago.

The Giant as a Dwarf.

A simple minded young Frenchman on coming into Paris, was anxious to see the famous General Tom Thumb, then in France, and asked a town friend where he might find him. The mischievous wag gave him the address of Lablache, the ponderous and spherical basso of the opera. Hither the rustic hied; he rang, and the door by a chance trick of fortune, was opened by the obese artist in person. The alarmed visitor drew back in confusion.

"A thousand pardons, Monsieur, there must be some mistake. I hoped to see M. Tom Thumb."

Lablache, taking in the situation at a glance, and enjoying the joke, gravely replied:

"Sir, there is no error: I am Tom Thumb!"

"Why-no-how-certainly, why I thought Tom Thumb was very small!" gasps the astonished visitor.

"Oh! that's no matter," replied the basso gracionsly. "Before the public, you see, I am small, very small indeed, suiting the action to the word and holding his hand about two feet above the floor—but here at home—rising to his full height, putting his thumbs in the armholes of his waistcoat and swelling out that resonant rotundity which was wont to shake the foyer with its thunders—here at home, I take my ease."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Metropolitan Theatre.

A still larger audience than attended on the first night of the representation of the sensation drama of "Through by Daylight," was present last night, and the frequent applause testified to their being well pleased. In the concert scene every performer is encored again and again, and Miss Maggie Moore brings down the house with her song and dance, "How is that for High?"

California Theatre.

"Across the Continent" is a decided hit and Oliver Doud Byron already a prime favourite. J. C. Williamson as Knucklebone Johnny has made a sensation of the hugest description. "Across the Continent" bids fair to have a long and prosperous run.

Alhambra Theatre.

After a capital first part and brilliant interlude in which, besides the performances of the wonderful Leon and the very neat and artistic Edwin Kelly, Charley Howard and Sam Purdy appear in their best acts, the farcical operetta of "The Belle of the Kitchen" (which must not be confounded with the bells that were continually ringing for Sarah) is presented, introducing Kelly & Leon in their famous "Perichole" duet, and Leon in half a dozen different characters.

Bella Union.

"The Persecuted Dutchman," with Aline Le Favre as the Hon. Augustus Clearstarch, and J. H. Larkin as John Schmidt, is received nightly with shouts of laughter and applause. M'lle Gerretta continues to present her performances on the globes, Mat Kelly his original verses of "If Ever I Cease to Love," Miss Lotta pretty ballads, and M'lle Gangain graceful dances.

Theatre Comique.

New songs, new acts, new plays, new farces, are the rule at this theatre. To-night the old favorite, Mike Quin, banjo player and comedian, will make his first appearance, in conjunction with the Lancashire Bell Ringers, Maggie Knight, Claude and Maggie, Kelly and Stewart, Johnny Thers and a host of others.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

The admirable programme nightly presented at this house continues to draw large audiences. Miss Jenny Engels always gains an encore for her fancy jig; the comic ballet is capitally performed by Samwells, Nelson and troupe; Charley Vincent has made quite a hit in the old man part of Jeff in "Before the War," and "The Naked Truth" is full of fun and sensation. The new and original local play of "Mose in San Francisco" will be produced shortly with new scenery and a strong cast.

Pacific Hall

The first concert of the third series given by the San Francisco Musical Institute last night was well attended, Pacific Hall being filled with an audience representing the beauty, fashion and taste of San Francisco. The programme was admirably performed and gave the greatest satisfaction to all present.

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Cmailiu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

Poking Fun at a Tenor.

There is a little-voiced tenor of great pretensions who has been singing in the opera in New York, that the papers are rosting rather thoroughly just at present. One paper suggests that the ladies carry delicately fashioned ear trumpets to use when he sings, so that they can hear as well as see the "deaw creature;" another states he is afraid to venture out alone for fear the police should arrest him on a "suspicion of being a tenor," or uttering false notes. And the New York Society and Season is responsible for the following:

Testy and deaf old gentleman, in box at the Opera: Humph! that's a new idea in opera, certainly! I never saw a dumb tenor cast in the "Barber" before. But I rather like it, after all. The fellow's pantomime is good, you could almost swear he was singing.

A Slight Mistake.

The Postmaster at North Bennington was somewhat embarrassed the other day on being asked by a lady if there was a letter for "my cow." Being disposed to treat her politely, he replied that there was nothing for anybody's cow. The lady, being equally embarrassed and also disposed to be polite, said she inquired for Mike Howe.

Smart Woman.

A Louisville wife, wishing to get rid of her husband at short notice, sent him into the cellar with a kerosene lamp for a pitcher of cider. She gave him just time to get the cider in one hand and the lamp in the other and then shouted murder. She had calculated well. The doomed man sprang up the steps, the lamp fell, and—the woman was free.

London New York.

An American gentleman, on a visit to England, describes his impressions on entering the city of cities. I have heard it said by Americans that entering London was pretty much like entering New York, and I can conceive that If one comes from the station asleep in a cab it may be so, but under no other circumstances. There's something, not merely in the immense distance you traverse, but in the grim solidity of the houses, the ceaseless, thunderous, rumbling carriages, carts and vans, and the dense canopy of smoke, which at once announces, to my mind, at least, the multitudes of human interests, as I have never elsewhere seen or felt to be gathered together.

Long Credit.

A party of wits once stopped at a tavern; when the feast was over, one of the number called in the hostess. "Angelique," he said, "I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. Have you not heard of that great Platonic year, when everything must return to its first condition? Know, then, that in sixteen thousand years we shall be here again, on the same day and at the same hour. Will you give us credit till then?" The hostess, however, had her reply. "I am perfectly willing," she retorted, "but it is just sixteen thousand years since you were here before, and you left without paying; settle the old score, and I will trust you on the new."

The Biter Bit.

A schoolmistress was lately brought before a police magistrate in London, charged with biting one of her pupils. Upon being asked what she had to say in defence, she stated it was quite true that she had bitten him, but he had first bitten another scholar younger than himself, and, acting upon the old principle of "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," she had thought it only right and proper to inflict the same torture upon him which he had inflicted upon his companion. The magistrate, instead of biting the schoolmistress, fined her forty shillings and costs.

Becoming Educated.

It cost Washington Territory $1,031 to transport two prisoners from Vancouver to Steilacoom. The Olympia Tribune thinks that somebody must have taken lessons from Boss Tweed.

The Immortal Squarza.

Squarza has departed from the Golden State, but he has left his works behind him, and even when he dies they will live after him. A magnificent monument to his memory may be seen in the Mechanics' Fair. It is composed of bottles filled with the spiritual essences which he so happily combined to make merry the hearts of men, and is surmounted by a well-executed image of Squarza himself, supported by figures representing the infant Bacchus. Something of the same kind will be exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento, and here and there and everywhere will Squarza's famous punches bear off the first premium. •

A WARNING.

Don't marry an old man, Pearlita,
Don't wed your bright youth with his age;
The gloom of many long winters
Will darken your life's summer page.

Don't marry an old man, Pearlita;
I'm only your old nurse, 'tis true,
But my heart has learned wisdom through loving,
And all of its love is for you.

How can I be silent Pearlita,
When the child I have loved and caressed,
Throws her heart, with its treasure of feeling,
To be child upon winter's cold breast!

You are as fair as a flower, Pearlita!
You can lean on his breast and grow strong;
You are willing to bloom near his bleakness,
To brighten his life with your song?

Ah! my poor, little foolish Pearlita!
How little you know what you say!
Would this earth have its song birds and blossoms
If December should follow the May?

You say that he loves you so truly—
That his words are so noble and grand;
That he'll be both the father and lover:
'Twill be sweet to obey or command'Z

Take this lesson to heart, my Pearlita,
And fling all this folly away:
The rose may not wed the snow-flake,
Nor December weave garlands for May!

Forgiving Man!

A respectable deacon nearly captured some boys who had been devastating his chestnut trees, Sunday afternoon. Shaking his fist after their retreating forms, he angrily shouted, "The sneaking little devils! if I had hold of them a minute, I'd—" and then suddenly capying his pastor on the scene, he impressively added, "I'd pray for 'em!"

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress-art can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-word, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

That "Heathen Chinee."

Bret Harte's "Ah Sin," who, for "tricks that are vain was peculiar," has found an equal in this city, who came it over the electrical physician now in our town. The man with the battery offered fifty cents for any Chinaman who would take the full strength of the battery. The smart Chinaman, who had prepared for the occasion by running a wire through the sleeves of his coat and behind his back, so as to make a complete circuit for the electricity, took the shock and the half-dollar, to the utter astonishment of the man with the machine. The trick was so good that the smart Celestial went to Chinatown and sent another Chinaman to try the same game. The Doctor again got "sold," when he was "posted" by one of the boys. The last Chinaman might have suffered had it not been for the bystanders, who got the laugh on the electrician.—Nevada Transcript, November 2d.

Correct.

The Washington Critic says:

Violent exercise is seldom useful. It was noticed by the early Greeks that no one who in early youth won the prize at the Olympic games ever distinguished himself afterward. The same principle holds good in regard to overtasking the mental powers in early life. An overworked brain is a source of sorrow in later years. The system of cramming in vogue in first-class schools is often injurious.

Stay at Home.

It is said that Lotta contemplates a theatrical tour in Europe next year. This means, we suppose, that she intends to try to get an opening in London,—for she would scarcely attempt Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburgh. She had better stay at home. She flourishes in the United States, but would certainly not bear transplanting.

Kate writes to say that many of the young men who ride in street cars and omnibuses are perfect savages. She probably means that they belong to the Pawnee tribe.

"The Streets Ran with Blood."

On Thursday evening Miss Anna Dickinson preached a pretty but superficial preachment at the Masonic Temple on the subject of "Demagogues and their relations to the Working Classes." It was well attended, and Miss Dickinson spoke with her usual effectiveness and power. In the course of the lecture, she took up the question of Chinese labor, and its bearing on white skilled labor and Trades Unions, and proceeded to exemplify her discourse by introducing what she termed her own personal experience of the condition of the Chinamen in San Francisco. After giving the substance of a highly mythical interview with the firm of Chy Lung & Co., Fung Tong and Ah Choy, she narrated how she had gone down Second street and climbed over Rincon Hill to the P. M. S. S. Co's wharf to see a great China steamer arrive with 1,400 Chinamen on board. How, as she went thither, she was surprised to see "vast crowds" of laborers and artisans proceeding in the same direction and filling parallel streets as they flocked to the whar. How her brother who accompanied her told her they were going to welcome the Chinese—as was customary. How they welcomed them with cobblestones, bludgeons, sticks, bullets and paving blocks until the blood of these "inoffensive foreigners flowed like water in the streets that led towards the centre of the city for a distance of twelve blocks!" This was told in agonizing accents, and with oratorical effect and sympathetic pathos calculated to elicit tears from a deaf mud-turtle. It was very effective and strong; and it had but one drawback—it was not true. The representatives of trades unions and the laboring classes never stooped to the systematic or organized ill-treatment of the Chinaman in California, and even the worst scenes of the many bad ones enacted never excelled Miss Dickinson's picture. It is true that Chinamen on their arrival were often ill-treated, but it was only by the roughs, the thieves, gamblers and scum of the population, who came down from the Barbary Coast to rob, steal or inflict malicious injury. No workingmen, properly so called, ever participated in these outrages, which consisted mainly of the pelting of what they call in San Francisco "gobs of mud" and other similar missiles. That the antipathy of the working classes in San Francisco to the Chinamen is great and deep-rooted is a fact, and one of which the reason is sufficiently obvious, but law and order prevail there to a degree entirely inconsistent with the perpetration of such acts as Miss Dickinson describes. Her theories of Chinese labor in California were as unsound as her incidents and examples were untrue; while the views she takes of the question as well as her arguments and assertions, are based on the narrow and insufficient precedent of the North Adams experiments, and are eminently calculated to mislead, and prejudice the public. —Baltimore Sunday Bulletin.

Suiting the Times.

The Chicago Sun says: "The first play produced on the Chicago stage after the fire—at the Globe Theatre—was the "Poor Gentleman." It was very unkind of Col. Wood to thus tantalize every man in Chicago on account of his poverty. It is bad enough to be a "Poor Gentleman," without being ridiculed for one's misfortunes.

Jefferson's Ten Rules.

A friend of ours sends us "Jefferson's Ten Rules," which he says cannot be too often published. He has written them down from memory, and it seems to us that he has got them quite correct:

1. Never do to-day what you can put off till to-morrow.
2. Never do yourself what you can get any one else to do for you.
3. Never spend ready money when you can get credit.
4. Always buy anything that is cheap. If you don't want it now, you may by and by.
4. If you only have proper pride you can endure hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We seldom repent having eaten a really good dinner.
7. A man should not be too willing to put himself to trouble.
8. It is better to be troubled about imaginary evils than real ones.
9. Take things by which end comes first.
10. When angry, pitch in at once.

Our friend says he has been guided by the above maxims, and has scarcely known an unhappy moment.

Fully Appreciated.

The Marysville Appeal is responsible for the following:

A few nights since, four young gentlemen went out to serenade the heart's idol of one of the party. Arrived at the place where the darling resides, they played their sweetest music and sang their sweetest songs. Alas, the fair one had gone from her home, but the Chinese servant who was at home, took a deep interest interest in the serenaders. He came out on the porch and viewing the party exclaimed: "Him belle good, me likee him, you do so once more, belle good, John." The party went home and employed their mothers to put them in their little beds, and that lady will not be serenaded again very soon.

"The Path of True Love," etc.

There is a pathetic illustration of the constancy of true love in one of our Western States, in the shape of an aged couple who have been engaged to be married thirty years, and during that time have never been out of jail long enough together to have the ceremony solemnized,

A Brooklyn husband who was kissing the chambermaid a little, was surprised by his wife, but got off with one black eye.

Advertising.

The Sausalito Herald says of advertising:

It is a well known fact that the prosperous business man owes his success to a system of judicious advertising. Stewart, the millionaire merchant, whose name and business is known in all parts of the Union, attributes to advertising the enormous business done by him. The largest merchants in San Francisco advertise liberally, and find they are repaid tenfold, though seemingly their business does not require it; while men who are just embarking in trade ignore the only available means of apprising the public of it, and sit in their stores expecting customers to search them out.

Due Warning.

An English journal contains the following brisk advertisement: "Notice—If my husband, who left Bristol four years ago, does not return within three months to his wife from this date, she intends to get married."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

There is no fear of our pub ic wearing of Leon. Anyone so thoroughly original, and at the same time talented and artistic must be a lasting favorite. The Kelly & Leon Min trels with such artists as Charles Howard, Sam Purdy, Gustave Bidaux, Ashton, Miss Fanny Gibson and G. H. Foster is a strong band, and one capable of producing anything in the minstrel line. Next week the season of burnt cork opera bouffe will be inaugurated by the production of Kelly & Leon's burlesque of "Barber-Bia." The full programme which draws crowded houses every night, will be presented at the matinee on Saturday.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The best proof that "Through by Daylight" with J. M. Ward in the character of Glenroy, is a hit, is afforded by the fact that the audiences have steadily increased in size, and that everyone is talking about the play. A locomotive engine, a street car with live horses, and a terrific sensation leap, all in one play should certainly attract the lovers of the sensational and realistic drama. "Through by Daylight" will be played every night until further notice and at the matinee on Saturday. To-morrow evening Mr. Jas. M. Ward will take his first benefit.

California Theatre.

There are so many attractive features in "Across the Continent," that it is no wonder it pleases the general public. The drop scene decends on every act midst a storm of applause, and Oliver Doud Byron just at that moment does a forcible bit of acting, which compensates for any short comings visible in the more "talky" portions of the play. J. C. Williamson's Dennis O'Dwyer in the prologue is a capital character impersonation, and as Knucklebone Johnny in the play, he is a wonderful success. Miss Georgie Loomis is now quite at home on the stage, and receives a nightly encore for her very neat and artistic clog dance "Across the Continent" will be played until further notice and at the matinee on Saturday.

Bella Union.

A bright and amusing programme is given nightly at this popular little theatre. Eugenia Gerretta on the running globes; Edwin Montague in gymnastic feats; M'lle Gaugain in fancy dances; J. H. Larkin in Dutch burlesque sketches; Miss Lotta in ballads; Josephine and Maggie Brewer in essence and many more appear nightly. The performance concludes with the screaming farce of "The Persecuted Dutchman," in which the charming Aline Le Favre is killing as the Hon. Augustus Clearstarch, and J. H. Larkin, causes roars of laughter by his comical impersonation of John Schmidt.

Theatre Comique.

The popular banjoist, Mike Quinn, received a hearty welcome on making his appearance last night and his banjo solo was much applauded. Maggie Knight is the reigning favorite; Claude and Maggie have made a hit in "The Merriest Girls that are Out;" Stewart and Kelly are much applauded for their clog dance, and the sweet music of the Lancashire Bell Ringers is very popular. A new burlesque entitled "Through by Moonlight" is underlined.

Vincent's Globe Theatre.

There is no end to the novelties presented at this live theatre. To-night an entirely new programme will be presented and the new and original play entitled "Mose in San Francisco," written expressly for this house will be produced with new scenery painted by McFarland and a strong cast. In the interlude the ballet of "Valentine and Orson," by Samwells and Nelson and troupe will be presented; the Stanleys will sing a new duet; Sally Thayer will sing new comic songs; Signora Realles a Spanish ballad; Jo nny Campbell will do his Essence of Old Virginny, and a variety of performances which will be found enumerated on our first page will be given. The management announce another new play to follow "Mose," entitled "Through by Midnight across the Continent."

Anatomical Museum.

The Florentine Venus is the admiration of all visitors, and is one of the finest works of art in San Francisco. The Dying Zouave is an exquisite piece of mechanism; the De Chaillu Gorilla astonishes the beholder, and thousands of curiosities too numerous to mention, are on exhibition day and evening.

TO A CORRESPONDENT.—Joseph Proctor played at the California Theatre in "Never too Late to Mend," about eighteen months ago.

Rough on Willie Edouin.

The Baltimore Sunday Bulletin says:

Willie Edouin makes a famous "heathen Chinee." He learned it in San Francisco when he was a youth on the boards of the California Theatre, flourishing tin scimetars, wooden lances, and stuffed clubs, learning his profession. His favorite amusement after nightfall used to be to hunt Chinamen up and down Dupont street, Pacific street and Waverly Place, slicing off their pigtails, and caving in their sconces with effective paving-stones. He was a dashing sportsman, and could fetch his Chinee every pop.

This is a libel. Willie Edouin learned his Chinese in China.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, Nov. 8 h, 1871.

DEAR FIGARO:—I am starving for the light of your beaming countenance, let me hear from you regularly. I am with John D. Stevens Great Western star circuit dramatic company, doing the juveniles. Leona Cavender is with us now for four weeks, then comes McW.de, Chanfrau, etc. Biz is very fair at present with good prospects for the rest of the season. Mrs. Lauder has been lecturing through this way to very good biz, and by the way I met Kate Denin and Annie Firmin last week at Kansas City, with Janauschek, who is travelling with a very strong company. Ciprico is also at Kansas City, where he is giving lessons in elocution and doing well I believe. W. H. Hamilton passed through K. C., last month on his way to New York. I am sorry to see by the N. Y. Clipper that the professionals of Chicago are not being justly dealt with, but I forget they are actors and have no feeling—yet they were the first to offer aid, long before it was known that a theatre in Chicago was burned. We had a benefit arranged and sent the proceeds without distinction to the sufferers. When an actor gives to charity he gives at least the entire proceeds of one day's labor; if other classes would be as generous according to their means there would be very little poverty in the world, and yet those out of employment and in distress in the burnt city are refused their share of what should be a general fund. Yours truly, CHAS. THORNTON.

Spiritual Deadheads.

"I wish I was a ghost; blamed if I don't," said a sweep, as he was soliloquizing in the cold the other morning; "They goes wherever they likes toll free. They don't owe nobody nuthin', and that's a comfort. Who ever heard tell of a man who had a bill against a ghost?—Nobody. They never buy clothes and wittles, nor has to stand out in the cold till Sally lets 'em in."

His Way!

An inebriated individual fell down a flight of stairs the other night, and a passer-by fearing him seriously injured, ran to pick him. But the man majestically staggered to his feet and in response to the proffered aid, roared out: "Now, you jes' let 'lone; wan' no slobberin' round me. I allus come down stairs that way!"

Had Him There.

Said an eminent physician to his son, "look at me, I began as alderman and here I am at the top of the tree; and what is my reward? Why, when I die my son will be the greatest rascal in the United States!" To this the young hopeful replied: "Yes dad, when you die, and not till then."

A bucolic Indiana wayfarer on a Chicago train, being anxious to see what he could see thrust his head out of the window, and into another train, and now shows signs of premature baldness.

A SICK TENOR.

We published yesterday some sharp shots that some New York papers were giving a certain opera tenor of exceedingly limited voice and professional capacity, but of great pretensions, whom the managers of the opera were endeavoring to foist on their subscription patrons. The last New York Society, the organ of the elite and aristocracy of that city, publishes the following clever lines about

THE TINY TUNEFUL TENOR.

I've a dainty little tenor,
Which is very, very shy;
I let it to a manager
At figures pretty high.

I sing at the Academy,
At least I think I do,
For if you cannot hear me
The fault must rest with you.

I warble, trill and trifle
With the music of the score;
My tiny little tenor
Can hardly venture more.

For a dainty, baby tenor,
I cut a stunning swell,
I grow my own side whiskers,
A wondrous thing to tell.

I'm a zephyr in my motions,
So light, so slight, so free,
And a zephyr, too, in singing.
So full of Airs, you see.

A dainty, foppish tenor,
An airy little sprite,
A puny little piper—
Come hear me squeak to-night.

It would seem from the scarcity and prices, that the hens are keeping their eggs for the holidays; that's their "lay" now.

Notice to Strangers

The Occidental carriages continue to be the great favorites among the ladies who make their fashionable calls and who go shopping. It is a pleasure for them to recline upon the soft cushions, pull the bell when they want to stop, give directions to the driver through the speaking-tube, and take a last look in the mirror to see that everything is comme il faut. The landaus are in constant demand for drivers, while the two, four and six-in-hand rockaways are all the rage among our fashionable and Eastern tourists who come here to see the sights. Orders may be left either at the Occidental Hotel or at the stables, No. 1016 Stockton street, near Washington. G

MANUFACTURER OF

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

A well made Shirt, artistically cut to fit the wearer, is not only an indispensable adjunct, the very foundation, in fact, of an elegant toilet, but it is also a priceless boon to the business man, and commends itself to all classes.

Who that has struggled with the ill-fitting ready-made article has not come off with loss of good humor, wilted, and thoroughly depressed. No laundress can smooth that "wrinkled front," and no consolation is left the wearer but the fact that the slop-worn, worried garment will not last long.

My Shirts are made to measure, of the finest material, and warranted for Style, Fit, and Workmanship. My prices are in competition with ready-made goods, and I invite a call. All kinds of Embroidery and Machine Stitching neatly executed by skilful operators.

The Public will please take notice that

Newell's Patent Paragon Shirt

Factory's only place of business is at

Letter From a Donkey.

DEAR FIGARO:—I am a donkey but that is no reason why I should not write letters to the newspapers. Donkeys do that every day, I have a complaint to make. I must explain. I am the donkey at Woodward's Gardens, and I may say without vanity that I am the star performer of those pleasure grounds. I gallop round a ring, that is, half round a ring—with a boy on my back and then I hump myself and the boy falls off. This causes great laughter among the intelligent bipeds who witness the performance. Last Sunday a horrid boy whom I threw off my back sprained his wrist and the Alta maliciously stated that I "broke his arm." But this is not what I wish to complain of. It is that both Alta and Call describe me as a trained mule. Who's a mule? Who are they calling mule? I just wish I could get the editor of either one of those papers on my back or within reach of my hind legs; I'd teach him to call me mule. To call the Alta editor a "donkey" would be insulting my race, for though we are not bright and don't pretend to be, we are not as stupid as he is. Did he ever see a mule with a beautiful gray coat and white nose, such as I have and a beautiful brown cross on his back? That's the only cross there is about me, for I am a thoroughbred donkey. Why, we donkeys look down on mules just as much as we look down on the editor of the Alta. If ever my humble name appears in print again, I only ask that I may not be represented as a mule, but may be written down

AN ASS.

A Cure For Fainting.

At a wedding reception the other evening, a young lady unfortunately fainted. Grand confusion of course, and an immediate rush of four anxious admirers to remove the debris. In their confusion they attempted to convey the lady up stairs feet foremost, whereat, her sense of propriety being strong she immediately "came to."

The Nobles and the Workingmen.

Like a precious jewel in a pig's snout is a sensible editorial in the Alta, yet there was one in yesterday's issue. How it got in is a mystery, but there it was. The Alta explains in a few well-chosen words that there is nothing strange in the Peers of England and the workingmen making common cause and forming an alliance. It gives the whole thing in a nutshell:

It is certain that the Peers as a body have no interest whatever in the labor questions which have lately become so prominent and absorbing. There are not many of them engaged in manufacturing enterprises, except that of a fancy and stock jobbing kind. Their revenues are mostly derived from their ancestral acres and town property. It is rather to their interest that the condition of the workingmen should be elevated. The better off they are, the better it will be for those who have lands and houses to lease. In addition to this, there is probably a deep-seated jealousy in aristocratic circles of the great manufacturers and merchant princes of the kingdom. They are not only outshining them by reason of their greater wealth, but they are gradually acquiring their ancient castles and estates.

The workingman likewise knows that to no one can he turn for help and sympathy with more certainty of receiving it than to the nobility of England. Their ears have ever been open to listen to the troubles of the workingman—their purses to relieve him when in want. John Bright, when he was loudly "blowing" for the workingman, was paying the hands in his manufactory less than the neighboring manufacturers. The workingman knows that when he works for a lord he is sure of a fair day's wage for a fair day's work; if he rents a house of a lord it will be kept in good repair. The lord has his tenants round him, and it is his pleasure to see them comfortable and happy. The manufacturer's only care is to grind as much work as possible out of them through the day; their work done, they slink off to to their hovels in pestilence-breeding alleys, there to remain until the bell calls them to work for him again. No wonder John Bull loves a lord. He has reason to. By the nobility of England he is treated as a man—by the manufacturers as a slave. Many are the kind offices interchanged between the lord and the workingman. It is the laborer who is careful in his search for partridge nests, and gives notice to my lord's gamekeeper that the eggs may be moved to be hatched in my lord's poultry-yard, and the birds let loose to grow before the shooting season. Hodge stands a very good chance of an occasional bird when my lord and his noble friends are shooting. When Hodge's wife or child is sick, it is my lord who sends delicacies from the great house, and it is my lady who calls to see them. Hodge does not envy my lord. He owns that "he knows a sight more than he does, and is a gentleman born," and he's content for him to make the laws. The peer and the peasant may well join hands, the noble and the artisan well form an alliance against the manufacturers, who build up colossal fortunes by the labor of men, women and children for whose lives they care nothing. Between the slaveholder of the South and his slaves there was some feeling of humanity to bind them together; between the manufacturer of England and his scores of white slaves, worse, far worse off than the negro on the hardest-worked plantation, there is no tie. When they die or go to the poor-house, worn-out, broken-down and crippled in his service, he can hire more. It is to the lords and gentleman of England that the workingman must look for aid and sympathy, and as in the past, so in the future he will not look in vain.

What will they do With Them?

It is rumored that the Mormons will accept the situation presented in consequence of the prosecutions for polygamy and will retain one wife apiece. This is all very well to say but it is not so easily done. Perhaps the husband will put himself up to be raffled for by his wives and become the property of the one throwing the highest number. Some will choose the first wife, some the youngest, others the prettiest, few the homeliest. These discarded wives must be disposed of in some manner and we expect to see advertisements something like the following in the chief cities of the United States. "To the unmarried. A gentleman in Salt Lake City being forced by circumstances to reduce his establishment, wishes to find situations for fifteen ladies formerly his wives. A written character given with each." The matrimonial market will be glutted when these discarded wives are thrown upon it, and it must be some time before it recovers from the shock.

Tempting Appetite.

Jessie had been doing something which her mamma had told her she mustn't do. She had been eating currants, and of course, got her mouth all stained; that's the way she was found out. Her mamma said:

"You know you were forbidden to eat currants."

"But mother, Satan tempted me."

"Why didn't you say, 'Get thee behind me Satan?'"

"I did say, 'Get thee behind me Satan;' and he went and got behind me, and pushed me right into the currant bushes."

A Blessed Gift.

A little six-year old girl in a New York family told her mother that she had been thinking what she would contribute to the Chicago sufferers. She thought of the little children who had lost all their dolls, and so she brought her two best and prettiest dolls, those she loved most, and dressed them; and, thinking the little children could have nothing to make fresh dresses when those were soiled, she pinned two changes of clothing to each doll; and they were sent forward. They will gladden some little hearts.
